SLUMVILLE?

Some Areas of Fast-Growing Orange County Are Turning Into Bleak Residential Slums, Planner Asks What Will Happen in 10 Years?

By LARRY LYNCH

From 1956 to 1966: the fastest growing area in the United States.

Tomorrow: a bleak residential slum.

This could be the fate on much of Orange County, according to Alfred C. Bell, a senior planner in the Orange County Planning Department.

It is happening right now, Bell says.

What is needed, he suggests, is for city and county officials to face up to the prospect. The officials should come up with a cooperative course of action before the problem reaches the crisis stage, Bell says.

* * * *

THE SITUATION may not be critical yet, but what is it going to be in 10 years? No one really knows which areas are already run down, which are approaching it and how much time we have in those areas," Bell noted.

There is already evidence of deterioration.

An observer can see for himself. On one side of one of the county's important arterial streets $35,000 homes are being built. On the other side small, box-like tract homes sprawl across unincorporated area, their streets and yards litterd with broken glass, rusty toys and abandoned autos. Farther north a few huge, hastily lettered street signs are going up on a row of what were once snug, single-family homes; now, with little or no remodeling, they are suddenly and crudely being turned into business establishments.

* * * *

BELL FINDS IT easy enough to outline the dynamics of the present deterioration. But, he admits, solutions are harder to come by.

The human element is an unfathomable part of the equation.

"Why does one housing tract run down? And why is another, in which the homes are no better, kept up nicely? How do you stimulate pride in neighborhood?"

His answer now is: "I don't know."

Over the next few years, however, the answers to such questions could be crucial to Orange County's proud communities. Tracts which become eyesores will eventually detract from the value and desirability of

LBJ Ducks Governors' OK on Viet; Takes Off for Guam

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — In the face of Republican reluctance, President Johnson passed up a chance to ask the nation's governors for a new expression of support of his Vietnam policy Saturday.

Saturday night he departed for his two-day conference on Guam to plan war strategy with his top advisers and to meet with South Vietnam's leaders. Johnson, accompanied by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, took off at 11:33 p.m. on an 18-hour flight to the Pacific from Dulles International Airport outside Washington.

During his conference early Saturday with the governors, the President neither asked for nor received a formal resolution endorsing his Vietnam stand, but he did get a toast. The governors, Democratic and Republican, drank to the success of his meeting in Guam this weekend with American advisers and South Vietnamese leaders.

The toast was proposed by Gov. John A. Love of Colorado and seconded by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, both Republicans.

Gov. Reagan comments on President Johnson's use of federal funds. Page A-17.

"We go a lot further than his own party," Rockefeller said afterward, "He (The President) deserves our support and the support of the people and the country."

However, the Republican governors made it clear Friday night that the President would risk their resistance and an embarrassing lack of unanimity if he should ask for a formal resolution on Vietnam.

However, Farris Bryant, former governor of Florida who now heads the Office of Emergency Planning, told reporters after a briefing on the war by Rusk and McNamara that the President did not ask the governors for a resolution of support. He quoted the President as saying that he did not want any resolutions because that had not been the purpose of the meeting.

Johnson had asked and received such resolutions three times before—in July, 1965, in March, 1966, and in July, 1966. Each time, the governors, both Republican and Democratic, responded with an overwhelming endorsement.

However, 19 of the Republican governors met Friday

Q. While on a tour of duty in Turkey, I became friendly with a man who had produced a color film of archeological points of interest in his native country, which he'd sent to Bill Burrud Enterprises in Hollywood. He said the film was shown on television two years ago, but he's never been paid and the film hasn't been returned. Can Action Line help better relations between our country and Turkey? L. D., Lakewood.

A. Yes. The color film is on the way back to Turkey. Jerry Franken, vice president of Burrud Enterprises, said the film wasn't shown on television, but for some reason it became misplaced. "We depend on free lance films from all over the world," he explains, "and normally, we either pay for the films or return them immediately."

Q. Last June my son bought a radio from Capitol Shopping Service, made three payments, then sold it to a friend. The friend paid the remaining payments in a lump sum of $45.21, but we're still being billed for the balance. We've written and called and even sent a photostatic copy of the payment receipt, but we've gotten no answers. Can you help? Mrs. W. H., Long Beach.

A. Yes. Capitol Shopping Service, a division of Capitol Records, moved to Hollywood Jan. 3 from Scranton, Pa., and some of the billings are still being straightened out. However, Mrs. Betty Gridley, control clerk, says as soon as the final payment on the radio—they have the photostat—is verified in Scranton, you'll be notified and the billings will stop.

Q. Can you tell me how to contact Bud Schulberg, or his Writer's Workshop in Watts? I've written a book and I need advice on publishing. Several weeks ago I sent an outline of the story to a television production firm in Hollywood, but they wrote back and wanted $279 for collaboration expenses and writing fees. I'm new in California, so I wanted to ask Action Line or Schulberg if this is customary. Mrs. E.L., Long Beach.

A. Bud Schulberg's workshop is currently located in a house which serves as home-classroom for a growing group of aspiring and published writers, at 9807 Beach St., Los Angeles. A collection of workshop writings titled, "From the Ashes," is slated for publication by the New American Library in about three months, but Schulberg, after heading the school for about two years, is beginning to wilt under the volume of work turned in by his writer-students—about 35,000 words each week. There are about 30 applicants waiting to enroll in the workshop. The production firm, says Harry Martin, staff director, asks the $279 fee for shaping your story outline into a completed script—there is no guarantee of a sale. In addition, the firm retains 30 per cent rights in the script. "We must've thought the outline had some merit, or we would never have written," Martin says. The firm's letter contained a contract which you should read carefully before making a decision.

Q. I've worked in this area for the past year and a half, and have paid $800 into the Carpenter's Pension Fund. This is not paid by the employer, but by the employe. Since I'm not a resident of this area and am working only on a permit, is it possible to obtain a refund of this money? C. A. L., Torrance.

A. Terry Slawson, business representative for the Los Angeles County District of Carpenters, says you've been misinformed. The pension fund is entirely employer supported as a fringe benefit for their employes, and you are eligible for benefits only if you are qualified for a pension. For additional information you can call Slawson at 385-1457.

Q. Is there a place where elderly people can have a physical examination and laboratory tests made without it being too expensive? C. A. R., Wilmington.

A. There is no single place which offers such examinations, but if you'll call Mrs. Olga Tunnell, administrative assistant for the Long Beach Medical Association, she'll be glad to give you the names and location of several offices which can help you. The association is often able to refer specific cases. You can reach Mrs. Tunnell by dialing 432-3971.

Q. Our church group would like to know what we can do to assist in the poverty program. We'd like to help some needy families. R. W., Long Beach, and others.

Voters View Gov. Reagan Reservedly

By DON M. MUCHMORE

California voters have adopted a "wait and see" attitude on the performance of Gov. Ronald Reagan, The State Poll reported Saturday.

While a majority of the voters approved of his actions to date, there is a strong undercurrent of reserving judgment, giving the new governor a chance to prove or disprove himself.

This theme developed from individual responses to an "open end" series of questions posed to California voters by The State Poll in a scientifically selected sampling of statewide public opinion conducted during the week ending March 11.

* * * *

THE STATE Poll survey measured the performance of Ronald Reagan as governor in the eye of the voter.

In addition, questions were included regarding the general acceptability of Reagan, together with the underlying reasons for acceptance or nonacceptance.

When asked to name the one major area or program in which Gov. Reagan is doing an "excellent" or a "good" job, 25 per cent of the respondents said that "it is too soon to tell." This was by far the most frequently mentioned response considering both questions together.

* * * *

WHEN ASKED to evaluate the way in which the governor is handling his job, the results of the poll were:

In general, do you approve or disapprove of the way Ronald Reagan is handling his job as governor?

	Rep.	Dem.	Total
Approve	75%	33%	51%
Disapprove	11	49	32
Don't Know	10	18	15

The Reagan total is strikingly similar to the actual vote at the November, 1966 General Election. In Nov-

SHAW TREATED

JFK Suspect Now in Hospital

NEW ORLEANS — Clay L. Shaw, one of the men Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has accused of conspiring to kill President John F. Kennedy, was admitted to Southern Baptist Hospital Saturday night for what a hospital spokesman termed "rest and unspecified treatment." Garrison meanwhile promised more arrests in his probe.

The hospital spokesman said that was the only information she was allowed to release.

Dr. Martin Palmer, Shaw's physician, said his patient was only resting, and that, "He's all right."

Dr. Palmer confirmed that he had advised the hospital to say only that Shaw was "resting."

When asked if Shaw was brought in on a stretcher, or if he was under oxygen, Palmer said he had stated all he could.

Asked what time Shaw was admitted, Palmer would only say, "No comment."

Shaw's attorney, F. Irvin Dymond, said he was notified when Shaw was taken to the hospital. He said Shaw had indicated his back was bothering him during a preliminary hearing held early in the week to determine if Garrison had enough evidence to hold Shaw for trial.

Air Workers' Strike Averted

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — A threatened strike by National Airlines workers was averted Saturday night — only six hours before it was supposed to go into effect.

A National Airlines spokesman in Los Angeles said the firm's management and members of the Air Line Employes Association (ALEA) had reached "satisfactory" agreement on a proposed contract. The bargaining sessions were conducted in Miami, Fla.

Author William Manchester has accused Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy of inciting Sen. Robert F. Kennedy into a "tigerlike" rage while attempting to "suppress vital facts" in Manchester's controversial book, "The Death of a President."

The accusation is contained in the current issue of Look Magazine, appearing on newsstands Tuesday, and adds that both the widow of President John F. Kennedy and his brother had given Manchester written assurance they would not attempt to censor the book.

In an article entitled "William Manchester's Own Story," the author declares Mrs. Kennedy "blazed high as a bonfire" prior to the court battle over deletions from the text demanded by the Kennedy family.

"At the outset," Manchester writes, "I was trying to find out what had gone wrong. It was futile.

"Like her, he (the late President's brother, now the junior senator from New York) appeared to be wholly irrational. He accused me of raising my voice. He pretended to leave the room, hid in an alcove and leapt out, pointing

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

'Lucky' Financier Reveals How He Made $2 Million

The story of Meshulam Riklis' $2-million killing on the Stock Market this week would make a good movie. And it could be called: "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Riklis, 43, head of a billion-dollar complex of corporations, squeezed through one of the most profitable pieces of Wall Street wheeler-dealership in many months on the quick purchase and resale of 200,000 shares in Schenley Industries.

Riklis, reached at his home in Kings Point, Long Island Saturday, acknowledged he was the man about whom Wall Street observers have been scratching their heads since Tuesday.

He admitted wryly that the whole transaction, profit and all, was mostly an accident — a funny thing that happened to him on the way to control of the huge Schenley liquor empire.

Founder of the expand-and-control-minded Rapid-American Corp., Riklis said he had long wanted to gain control of Schenley, which for some time has been negotiating a possible merger with P. Lorillard Co., of tobacco fame.

Last Tuesday, Schenley stock suddenly dropped from an opening price of 61⅞ and Riklis stepped into the picture, buying 200,000 shares at $50 a share just before the market closed.

He and others along Wall Street speculated at that point that the Schenley-Lorillard negotiations might boggle after the stock slump.

Instead, Schenley and Lorillard announced an agreement the next day, and a disappointed Riklis told his investment bankers to sell the Schenley shares.

Riklis' disappointment turned to delight, however, when Schenley stock soared back up into the sixties Wednesday and Thursday, on the heels of the news of the agreement. The result: A net profit of "just a little under $2,100,000," Riklis said.

"It's a nice little consolation prize," he added.

He said the shares were bought in behalf of the financial branch of Riklis' broad holdings, the Glen Alden Corp, which is 49.7 per cent owned by Riklis' McCrory Corp., which is 51 per cent owned by Riklis' Rapid-American Corp.

Riklis, born in Istanbul and raised in Israel, immigrated to the United States in 1947. He studied mathematics at Ohio Sate University and later taught Hebrew in Minneapolis.

SERMON SET

A surly Adam Clayton Powell said Saturday he would preach on this tiny Bahamian island of Bimini today the Palm Sunday sermon he dared not go to New York to deliver.

The deposed congressman had promised earlier that he would risk arrest by going to New York to walk the streets on Palm Sunday, and to speak in Harlem's Abyssinian Baptist Church on the theme, "When a Man Falls, He Shall Rise Again."

But Powell changed his mind Friday, saying he feared that his arrest would lead to violence and bloodshed by his people.

OUT OF LUCK

The giant state of California spends around $5 billion a year.

But just try to collect a four-year-old debt for $4.10.

Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., got a check for $4.10 from the state four years ago when he was an assemblyman. It paid him mileage between his home in Antioch and Sacramento.

Recently he found the check and tried to cash it. It was returned as void.

Controller Houston I. Flournoy, who used to be an assemblyman himself, wrote Waldie Saturday explaining that the check was void because it was so old.

If he really wanted to collect the money, Flournoy said, Waldie must file a claim with the State Board of Control, which will set the matter for a hearing. If the expenditure is approved, it will be included in an omnibus claims bill during the 1968 general session of the legislature.

To prevent all this, Flournoy said he had established "The Waldie Fund," which he described as a large fish bowl in his office — and established the maximum level of contribution at one cent per person.

Rosemary Dunaway, 17-year-old Arkansas Junior Miss, Saturday night was crowned 1967 America's Junior Miss in the pageant finals at Mobile, Ala.

The pert Little Rock brunette received a $10,000 scholarship as top prize in the contest, which awarded more than $45,000 in educational funds for the 50 girls.

Minnesota Junior Miss Susan Birnig of Wells was first runnerup. The other finishers behind Miss Birnig were Texas Junior Miss Barbara Specht of New Braunfels, Hawaii's Julie Fleece of Honolulu and Indiana's Sharon Ginn of Plainfield.

PICKS AIDE

President Johnson named W. De Vier Pierson, 35-year-old former Oklahoma lawyer, Saturday to be his associate special counsel.

The President dipped into the staff of the Senate-House Committee on Organization of Congress to obtain Pierson, who has been chief counsel for the committee for two years. Before that, he practiced law and was engaged in business in Oklahoma City. For several years, he was vice president of Mid-America Corp., now Doric Corp., in Oklahoma City.

Pierson now lives in suburban Bethesda, Md.

Bill to Ask End to Vets' Tax Break

By JIM McCAULEY
From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The plan to virtually wipe out the veterans tax exemption in Los Angeles County will be backed by new legislation.

This was disclosed Saturday by Sen. Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland, who intends to introduce legislation to:

1. Abolish the veterans property tax exemption statewide.

2. Provide for every homeowner in California a property tax exemption of $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The Petris tax break would be equivalent to more than $100 a year in actual taxes. A resident-owner of a duplex would receive a $500 exemption.

No individual would be entitled to a double exemption. Thus the special tax break for veterans would vanish. The current law provides a $1,000 exemption for any married veteran with assets under $10,000. For single veterans, a $500 exemption is available if assets are under $5,000.

Petris said he will introduce his constitutional amendment for the homeowner tax break when the Legislature returns from its one week Easter vacation. It would require a vote of the people.

The same senator earlier introduced a constitutional amendment to allow local officials to set higher tax rates for buisness than for residential property. Thus, businesses presumable would face an additional tax burden if the home owners exemption becomes law.

* * * *

"I'M CONVINCED the homeowner is at an unfair disadvantage," said Petris. "He can't take the same deductions as a businessman."

The veterans tax exemption already is the subject of a hot controversy in Los Angeles County. County Assessor Philip E. Watson has announced that a recently-passed law on assessment reform will force him to chop off 92 per cent of the veterans exemptions in Los Angeles County.

Watson said the new law compels him to figure home values on a cash rather than a fractional basis when evaluating an exemption claim.

That means most veterans will fail to qualify for an exopinion.

MRS. KENNEDY ARRIVES IN ACAPULCO

While author William Manchester threatened to rekindle the feud with the Kennedy family that erupted over his book on John F. Kennedy's assassination, the President's widow flew to Acapulco, Mexico. She was greeted by her nephew, Anthony Radziwell, whom she holds on lap. The other youngster is unidentified. Mrs. Kennedy, daughter Caroline and son John-John flew to Mexico Friday night.

an accusing finger at me."

"Unbelievable charges were made, unforgiveable words spoken and treasured friendships ruptured," Manchester says of the tumult surrounding the book —an account of the assassination of President Kennedy and the aftermatn of Nov. 22, 1963 — and it recent serialization by Look.

He said he did not realize a year earlier that letters to him from Mrs. Kennedy "that had been signed 'Affectionately, Jackie,' would now coldly end, 'Sincerely, Jacqueline Kennedy.'"

His principal ally in the dispute with the Kennedys, Manchester said, was historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., himself the author of a book on the Kennedy administration entitled "A Thousand Days."

He said Schlesinger sent him a six-page memo and urged that he restore some self-imposed deletions, describing the manuscript as "remarkable and potentially a great book."

But of six high quality works on the Kennedy administration, Manchester said only "My 12 Years With John F. Kennedy" by Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, President Kennedy's personal secretary, escaped censorship. He said Mrs. Lincoln remained so affected by the assassination she could not bring herself even to attend President Johnson's inaugural in 1965.

Manchester said many Kennedy aides and other principals of Nov. 22, 1963, could barely withstand the memory to sit for interviews.

Texas Gov. John B. Connally Jr., wounded in the assassination, suddenly "was perspiring and smoking two cigarettes simultaneously. It was as though I had stumbled upon a secret panel leading to a painful past."

Manchester said that after it was agreed to cut 1,600 words from the Look serialization of his book, Mrs. Kennedy finally brought herself to read the complete manuscript of "The Death of a President."

SLUMVILLE?

It's Happening Now, Planner for Orange County Cautions

neighboring homes, no matter how nice, Bell says.

* * * *

"THE AVERAGE HOME buyer in Orange County today is a pretty sophisticated individual," he said. "Recent statistics indicate the home buyer is looking not only for a good house package but also for a pleasant environment. Some of the newer tracts are trying to offer such an environment."

The older tracts, especially when deteriorating, can't compete.

In many, the homes have only two bedrooms — two few for most of today's buyers. Often all of the rooms are too small. Sometimes the homes front on major arterial streets, while in newer tracts fencing and backyards provide a buffer against traffic noise and congestion.

* * * *

THE PROBLEM IS rooted in Orange County's decade of frantic growth, Bell explains.

From 1956 to 1966 some 250,000 of the county's 400,000 residences were built. Much of the rapid building came under outdated building codes. Subdivision planning and improvement standards were not adequate for the rate of growth. Nor did builders see ahead to today's prosperity.

The result is that too much of the older housing

SURROUNDED by subdivision maps, Alfred C. Bell, senior planner, studies Orange County slum problems.

—Staff Photo

— and it need not be too old — appeals only to low-income families, Bell says.

* * * *

IN LOS ANGELES County, which has grown at a slower pace, the same problem exists only in isolated instances, according to Milton Breivogel, director of the county's Regional Planning Commission. These are instances "where very cheap housing was built and where attached carports have later been enclosed," he said. In some Los Angeles County areas substandard rental units were built to begin with, Breivogel added.

What could be unusual about the development of slums in Orange County would be their patchwork boundaries. Slums have traditionally taken root near a city's core and spread slowly outward. Deteriorating tracts in Orange County are scattered.

Another new aspect might be the speed with which the situation develops.

* * * *

"IN MANY OTHER areas of the U. S., cities have grown stagnant and declined, but it took decades," Bell said. "In Orange County, and now everywhere, things happen so rapidly we have to anticipate our problems more quickly and act on them with less hesitation."

This man's concern about the deterioration of housing in his county is a personal thing — not department policy. In speaking out about it, he is not behaving much like a bureaucrat, of course.

* * * *

WHAT GOADS HIM is what he identifies as a tendency among Orange County civic leaders to ignore, even cover up, the situation.

"Just like any other problem, this one isn't going to be solved until we admit it exists," Bell said.

Efforts to combat the deterioration should have several goals, he concludes:

(1) Stop it from getting worse.

(2) Salvage areas that are salvable.

(3) Prevent this kind of thing from happening again.

One approach could be through the 1970 census, the planner suggests. During the census, deteriorating neighborhoods could be identified and data gathered to set up standards for improvements.

Suspect in Rape Attempt Shot,

A 19-year-old car-wash man, shot twice by an off-duty Torrance policeman following a burglary and rape attempt, was in "fair" condition late Saturday in Los Angeles County General Hospital prison ward.

Patrolman Ron Bryning, 24, was awakened at 3 a.m. Saturday morning by a woman's screams in the apartment house at 718 Amapola Ave., Torrance.

He saw the suspect, Bobby Frederickson of 703 Sartori Ave., Torrance, run from an apartment. Bryning ordered him to halt and chased him for three blocks, firing three shots, one of which went wild. Frederickson was hit in the right shouulder and right arm.

Sara Beth Mitchell, 31, a nurse, said the suspect entered her apartment by slashing a screen.

L.A. Cuts Foreign-Language Classes

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — The Los Angeles city school system will drop its state-required foreign-language program in the seventh and eighth grades next fall under an exemption granted by the State Board of Education, it was announced Saturday.

Dr. Jack P. Crowther, superintendent of city schools, said the exemption was requested by the Los Angeles City Board of Education because of the lack of local funds to finance the state-required program in the 1967-68 school year.

The city schools, faced with a $15 million budget deficit, had also asked that the program be dropped in the sixth grade, but the State Board of Education agreed only to exempt the seventh and eighth grades.

"Even though we have been exempted from the mandatory foreign-language program in grades seven and eight, we hope to offer Spanish, and possibly French, on an elective basis in these grades," Dr. Crowther said.

Dope Raiders Push Drive, Make 11 Added Arrests

Continuing their widespread crackdowns on illicit drugs and narcotics, officers in three Suthland communities combined with state narcotics agents to arrest 11 more persons Saturday. The three raids gave officers a 2-day total of 17 arrests.

A Paramount man, Louis Corona III, 20, of 13427 Brock Ave., was arrested in a Monrovia gas station with Gloria Frontino, a 27-year-old mother of eight from East Los Angeles, and each was charged with two counts of selling marijuana.

Corona's wife, Karen, was arrested a short time later and charged with possession of marijuana.

Police found 22 kilos of marijuana in Mario Garcia's home in Duarte and arrested him on suspicion of selling and possessing marijuana. Garcia, 47, crippled by an automobile accident, was in bed when officers arrived to search his house. They said they found the marijuana in bed with Garcia.

In the San Fernando Valley, seven youths ranging in age from 17 through 24, were jailed in what Van Nuys and Burbank officers described as a combined LSD-marijuana ring.

On Friday, sheriff's deputies arrested six persons at a Bellflower trailer park on charges of selling and possessing heroin. All six were booked at Lakewood station and $2,100 worth of heroin confiscated.

Kills Self After Kin Shot Down

A Manhattan Beach man apparently committed suicide after attempting to kill his brother, sheriffs homicide detectives said Saturday.

The dead man, Arthur W. Kaehler, 49, of 1426 E. 18th St., shot his brother, William Harvey Kaehler, 47, with a .38-caliber revolver, then turned the weapon on himself, detectives said.

The wounded man said he was awakened by his brother's laughter. He said his brother put his hands on his chest and throat and then fired into his face. He struggled free and called police, who found the brother dead on the floor.

Kaehler is in serious condition in South Bay Community Hospital.

fident, emerged from his guarded home earlier Saturday, playfully kissed his children on the front lawn, and told a newsman there was no doubt that further arrests would be forthcoming in his Kennedy assassination investigation.

The towering district attorney, fresh from a courtroom victory that will make Shaw the first man to go to trial in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, said:

"This whole case is a very intricate thing. It will be some time before all arrests are made. But there is no doubt about that, O.K.?"

Then he squeezed his 6-foot-6 frame into a taxi and rode off.

A private patrolman stationed outside Garrison's white brick, two-story home said an around-the-clock guard has been on duty there for a week.

Garrison's chief investigator, Bill Gurvich, hinted broadly that the state did not play all its cards in the four-day preliminary hearing for Shaw that ended Friday. "If we had needed more goods, we would have brought them in," he said.

At a preliminary hearing, a prosecutor normally offers just enough evidence to show probable cause to hold the defendent for trial. The rest of the evidence is carefully guarded until the trial as a means of keeping the defense in the dark.

Indications were that a bill of information, the next step in the process of taking Shaw to trial, would be filed next week by the district attorney.

* * * *

GARRISON RELIED chiefly on the testimony of one witness, Perry R. Russo, to convince three criminal district court judges that Shaw, 54, former director of the International Trade Mart, should stand trial for conspiring to murder President John F. Kennedy.

Russo, a 25-year-old Baton Rouge insurance salesman told of seeing and hearing Shaw, Lee Harvey Oswald and David W. Ferrie talk of ways to kill Kennedy. This talk, Russo said, took place at Ferrie's apartment in September 1963. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

Stanton Police Nab Jail Escape Suspect

Stanton police arrested Robert Boucher, 26, a transient, on suspicion of petty theft Saturday pending investigation of escape from a Stockton jail six months ago.

Officers said they stopped Boucher for questioning when they spotted him carting off some plants from a nursery about 3:30 a.m. He produced conflicting identification papers.

Youth Held in Injury of Father by Auto

A 17-year-old Long Beach youth is being held on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder after his father was run down by the family car following a family fight over the suspect's girl friend.

Police said Larry C. Maxwell, of 4136 Charlemagne Ave., slapped the girl; that his father, Wayne, 38, became angered at the teen-ager's action, and that father and son began fighting.

The youth, a student at Will J. Reid High School, told officers he left the house to "cool off," but returned to the house shortly before midnight Friday and got into the family car, which was parked at curbside.

Young Maxwell said he started the car, saw his father sitting on the hood and started to drive. He told officers he accelerated west on Greenmeadow Road, thinking his father would get off the car. Instead, young Maxwell told police, his father fell under the wheels.

Witnesses said young Maxwell drove around the block, parked the car and tried to aid his father.

Maxwell was taken to Woodruff Community Hospital with multiple cuts and bruises and two broken ribs. He had been dragged almost 100 feet by the car, police said. The youth's mother, Wanda, was not home at the time of the incident.

Poll Shows Approval

ember Gov. Reagan received approximately 58 per cent of the vote. As is evident from the results, approximately the same number of voters who voted for Gov. Reagan now approve of the job he is doing.

In response to the more direct question, "How would you rate Ronald Reagan?", the results were:

	Rep.	Dem.	Total
Highly Favorable	55%	13%	32%
Mildly Favorable	28	34	31
Mildly Unfavorable	6	17	13
Highly Unfavorable	6	27	18
Don't Know	5	9	6

Eighty-three per cent of the Republicans were able to find some degree of favorability, whereas 47% of the Democrats favored the governor.

On the negative side, when asked to name the one major area or program in which Gov. Reagan is doing a "bad" or a "poor" job, responses indicating "nothing bad" or "too soon to tell" amounted to 44% of the opinion sample.

On both the positive and negative sides of these questions, the "wait and see" attitude was by far the prevalent theme, as shown in the summary of responses below:

"In your opinion, what is one major area or program in which Governor Reagan is doing a 'bad' or 'poor' job?"

Nothing bad, or "too soon to tell"	44%
Tuition and Higher Education	28
Budget and Taxes	12
Misc. and Don't Know	16

"In your opinion, what is a major area or program in which Gov. Reagan is doing an 'excellent' or 'good' job?"

"Too soon to tell"	25%
Budget and Taxes	28
Tuition and Higher Education	17
None	19
Miscellaneous	12
Don't Know	19

Unfavorability, to one degree or another among the Republicans constituted 12%, while 44% of the Democrats were unfavorable to Reagan.

The single program which received the highest public response, both positive and negative, was the combined areas of tuition and higher education.

When the respondents were asked whether they approved or disapproved of Gov. Reagan's decision to withdraw for this year his tuition proposal for the University of California and the California State Colleges, the responses were:

Approve	45%
Disapprove	39
Don't Know	6

Among Republicans, the approval amounted to 61% and among the Democrats it was 69%. While the Republican approval related to over-all approval of Reagan, the Democrats were partially expressing their disapproval of tuition itself.

SOUND OFF!

Long Beach is losing its charm for many out-of-towners. Since the Cinderella Ballroom was demolished I've talked to many people from far and wide who used to spend their vacations in the Long Beach area. They enjoyed the dancing, watching and listening to the music, and having a friendly cup of coffee while doing so. Ocean breezes in the hot months made such an evening delightful. A beach without a ballroom is sad. Maybe the city could convert one of those empty, dreary buildings near the ocean into a ballroom. Long Beach at the beach has become a sad place for older vacationers. L.S.G., Santa Ana.

REACTION

In response to the lady who complained about her trash cans being smashed, I'd like to show her the lightweight (cardboard) barrel I've had for 10 years. I make it a habit not to pack my trash in it so tightly it can't be emptied easily. The barrel is still good for several more years. I also have a metal barrel in which I place my grass clippings. I expect the carriers to have trouble emptying it, because the grass cuttings stick to the barrel, and the sides to get banged up a bit. But I have a small rubber mallet which I use to pound them out. If the men didn't knock the grass loose, I guess I'd complain they weren't emptying the barrels. I also think we should consider the size barrels we use. I see too many 55-gallon drums being used—ever try to lift one of them? I find the people who pick up my trash very cooperative, and I try to consider them when I place my trash out for pick up. D. C., Long Beach.

Oswald Died of Gunshot, Autopsy Doctor Says

DALLAS (UPI) — The man who performed the autopsy on Lee Harvey Oswald, and an administrator of the hospital where he died, Saturday challenged the charges of one of Jack Ruby's attorneys that Oswald did not die as the result of Ruby's shot..

Joe Tonahill charged early Saturday that Oswald died as the result of an air bubble in the bloodstream (air embolism), possibly resulting from a plasma transfusion, which eventually resulted in a cardiac arrest.

Dr. Earl Rose, Dallas County medical examiner who performed the autopsy told UPI that "Mr. Oswald died of a gunshot wound."

Rose said "there was air embolized, and there was also a hemorrhage, but these are purely secondary things."

He said the embolism was caused by the gunshot wound, not by a transfusion.

Rose added "I think Mr. Tonahill is being presumptuous in saying that this caused Oswald's death. I say death came from the gunshot wound."

Pete Geilich, assistant administrator of Parkland Hospital, said that Oswald never received a plasma transfusion. "He was given whole blood."

He said the autopsy reports show Oswald died of a cardiac arrest resulting from the wound.

Referring to Tonahill's medical knowledge, Geilich said, "I think Joe Tonahill is probably a very good lawyer."

2-Year-Old Bouncy after Night in Well

By EDWARD K. DeLONG

BEAUMONT, Tex. (UPI) — Teresa Fregia, the 2-year-old who spent much of a night trapped in a well, went home from the hospital Saturday afternoon, with only scratches to show for her experience.

Saturday morning, less than 12 hours after she was released from the well, she awoke and bounced around her hospital crib with less sign of strain than those who watched her ordeal.

With her big grown eyes taking in all the sights of the clean, quiet, slightly hospital-smelling surroundings of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Teresa giggled and played hide-and-seek with a visitor and showed by a vigorous shake of the head that she did not hurt anywhere.

Her hair was slightly flecked with the sand of the well in which she huddled nine hours Friday night and early Saturday, her cries becoming weaker, until a rescue worker was lowered into a hastily-dug shaft next to the well and rescued her. The well was in her grandmother's yard, next door to her home in Votaw, Tex.

"It was the greatest feeling in the world when that little girl grabbed me," rescuer Ransom S. Bill said. "I think she said, 'Daddy.' As I pulled her out of the pipe and we got her out of the sand, she grabbed me one time and squeezed me and said, 'Daddy,' and she passed out."

* * * *

BILL, OPERATOR of the Volunteer Mercy Corps of Houston, cradled her in his arms and was pulled out of the shaft into the glare of automobile headlights and the cheering of spectators and rescue workers crowded about the scene.

Teresa, whimpering slightly from the cold and dressed in a red knit tee shirt and yellow corduroy trousers, was taken to St. Elizabeth's. She arrived there around 3 a.m. and was put to bed. Her parents, Grady and Opal Davis, went home, exhausted, to Votah, 40 miles northwest of Beaumont, a city on the Upper Texas Gulf Coast.

Teresa's aunt, Patsy Allemange, 14, stayed at the hospital with her, in a bed adjacent to Teresa's crib.

Around three hours later, Teresa was awake. Patsy said she woke up and looked over and Teresa was already standing, clutching the high slatted sides of her crib, bouncing up and down.

"She must have slept less than three hours," Patsy said.

A visitor to the room found the little girl wide-eyed but mostly silent.

"She must be shy," Patsy said. "Usually, she will talk to anybody almost any time. She has been asking for everybody. This morning when the (Catholic) sisters came in, she bounced all over the place and laughed with them. She seemed to like their white uniforms (habits)."

LITTLE TERESA edged to the end of the crib and grabbed a curtain and hid behind it, coquettishly peeking out with one eye.

She giggled.

Patsy asked her, "You don't hurt anywhere, do you, Gertrude?" and explained "Gertrude" is a nickname Teresa's stepfather gave her.

Teresa shook her head. A blush reddened her plump cheeks.

X-rays taken a fe whours later confirmed she had no broken bones and no internal injuries.

Her mother was grateful.

"The X-rays did not show anything," she said. "She was just a little scratched."

When the visitor left Teresa's room, the little girl got livelier.

"Bye-bye," she said holding out her chubby hand and waving it vigorously. "Bye-Bye. Bye-Bye. Bye-ye."

She bounced up and down on the pink and yellow blankets.

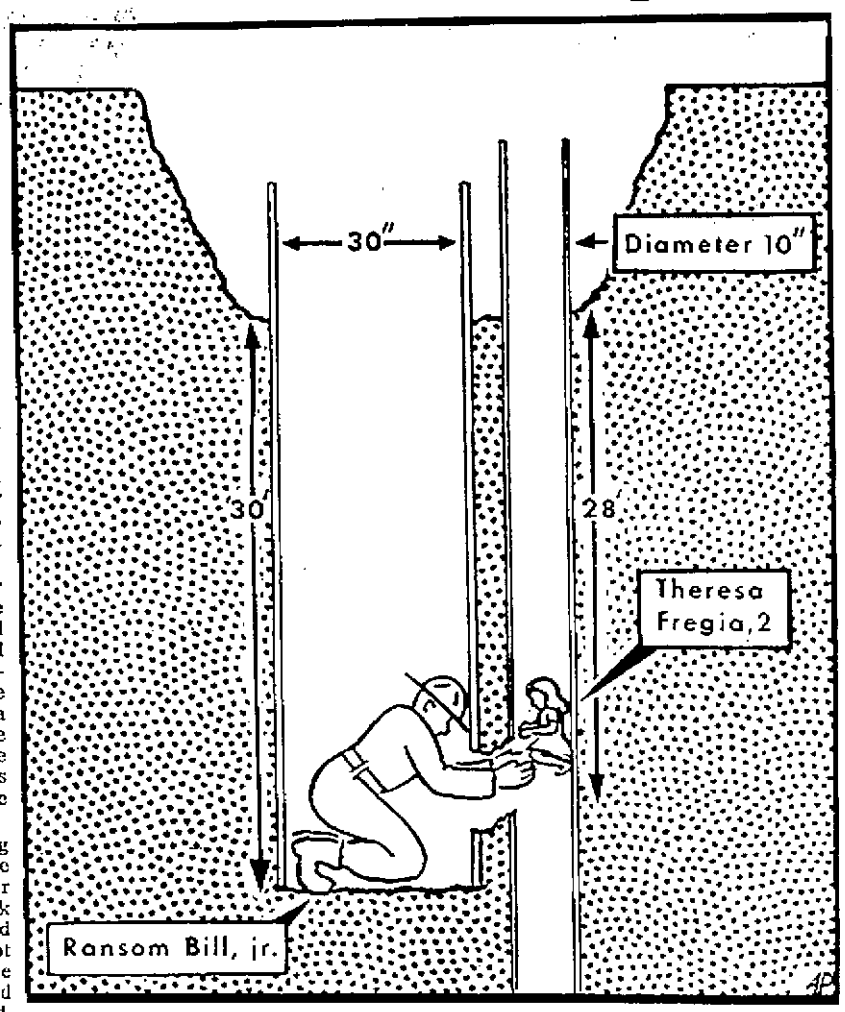

Her mother said the well was being filled in Saturday by workmen.

"We are supposed to move to the coast, but I hope not for a while. My husband is going to work for Dow (chemical company) at Freeport," Mrs. Davis said.

* * * *

TERESA WAS playing Friday and apparently pulled boards from the mouth of the well, got fascinated with the echo of her voice down into the dark hole, and fell in. Her screams attracted Patsy, who spread the alarm. A neighbor and Mrs. Davis called down reassuringly to her for hours while rescuers rigged a rope, dug the parallel shaft, and lowered Bill. He had them drop a hammer to him and he knocked a hole in the wall of the well at the 22-foot depth, above the girl, then reached in and pulled her through.

"I told her, 'Honey, don't holler. I know it's going to hurt you. I'll get you out in a minute.' I thought her bones would break because I pulled so hard to get her through the hole. I pulled on her and I heard bones crack and I knew I was hurting her, but I had to get her out," Bill said.

SKETCH OF WELL shows how rescue worker freed Theresa Fregia (above) from well in Votaw, Tex. after the 2-year-old was trapped nine hours Friday night and Saturday morning. In scene below, workers await arrival of special drill that bored adjacent shaft so rescuer could reach the child. Theresa survived her ordeal in fine shape. She was playing hide-n-seek in the hospital with nuns Saturday. But she had a close call. The well shaft caved in seconds after she was pulled to safety into the larger hole. The crowd above cheered.

Smith Vows He'll Be Commissioner

Burton E. Smith, of Bellflower, vowed Saturday to be California's real estate commissioner despite the State Senate's initial refusal to confirm his appointment.

Smith — an opponent of the Rumford open-housing law — said he would "absolutely not" withdraw his name from Gov. Ronald Reagan's list of nominees.

Smith failed to get the necessary majority of 21 votes Friday, mustering only 20 votes. Legislators faced the prospect of the issue coming up again after the Easter recess.

Smith, a former president of the California Real Estate Association, said he "can be more effective in serving the total public . . . by staying here and doing the job."

Youth Held After Crash Ends Chase

A 16-year-old Garden Grove youth led police on a 110-mile-per-hour chase through Fullerton and Placentia that left one officer injured early Saturday.

Police fired at the youth, but missed, as he fled through an orange grove after crashing his car into a freeway excavation in Placentia. Minutes later they captured the teen-ager, Robert Gordon Burke, of 12641 Hazel St., at Crowther Avenue and Industrial Way. He was booked on suspicion of auto theft, reckless driving and attempting to evade arrest.

Burke, who suffered only bruises in the accident was taken to Orange County Juvenile Hall.

Officer Glenn Devency, 25, who had been pursuing Burke's auto, was injured when the youth sideswiped a parked vehicle and veered into the officer's patrol car, causing it to ram a tree.

Hiker Rescued from Narrow Ledge

ALTADENA (CNS) — A hiker who had been trapped on a narrow ledge in Angeles National Forest for nearly three hours was rescued Saturday night by a combined team of sheriff's mountaineers.

Deputies said 28-year-old David Kase, of Hawthorne, was not injured.

PROP. 14 GOES BEFORE TOP JUSTICES MONDAY

By BOB SCHMIDT

Nearly seven million Californians cast votes on Proposition 14 in 1964. Monday, the votes of at least five more men will be sought. The United States Supreme Court will be asked to rule on the legality of the controversial measure.

Proposition 14, which inspired the most emotional campaign in California political history, repealed existing open-housing legislation and prohibited future antidiscrimination laws from being brought before the State Legislature. It barred citizens from seeking redress in the courts for damages suffered because of discrimination in housing.

The measure was approved by 4,526,460 voters, with 2,395,747 ballots being cast against it.

IRRESPECTIVE of the overwhelming majority favoring the bill, five California Supreme Court judges ruled last May 10 that the enactment of Proposition 14 was prohibited by the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, specifically that portion of the amendment which requires that all Americans receive equal protection of the laws.

It is the appeal from that ruling which the U.S. Supreme Court will consider Monday.

Two court cases have been joined into one for consideration by the nine justices.

* * * *

IN ONE CASE, Santa Ana postman Lincoln W. Mulkey and his wife complain that they sought to rent a vacant apartment in Santa Ana from Neil Reitman in May 1963.

They charge that Reitman refused to rent to them solely because the Mulkeys are Negroes.

In the other case, Carola Eva Prendergast rented a Los Angeles apartment in July, 1964. She is white. In November her husband, Wilfred, who had been working in San Francisco awaiting transfer to Los Angeles, joined her. He is Negro.

Within the month, landlord Clarence Snyder served the couple with an eviction notice, solely, the Prendergasts claim, because of Wilfred Prendergast's race.

* * * *

REITMAN and Snyder freely acknowledge the truth of the two couples' complaints. In asking the U.S. Supreme Court to review the matter, Reitman and Snyder's lawyers acknowledged that in each case there was "a white landlord who had refused on grounds of the plaintiff's race to rent, or to continue to rent, privately owned residential property."

But, they say, it was their property. They could sell or rent it to whom they choose.

Not so, say the Mulkeys and the Prendergasts. Such discrimination is harmful to the general welfare of the citizenry, they argued. The Unruh and Rumford civil-rights and housing acts were enacted to guard against such discrimination.

* * * *

THEY SOUGHT relief in the courts. Proposition 14 denied them that relief. They appealed. The State Supreme Court granting the appeals, overturning Proposition 14 in the process.

Arguing that Proposition 14 is valid legislation will be a brilliant young Los Angeles lawyer, Samuel O. Pruitt Jr.

Against him is an imposing array of legal talent and authority.

Herman Selvin of Los Angeles, a veteran of many appearances before the court, prepared the main argument against Proposition 14 and will be Pruitt's chief antagonist before the justices.

* * * *

FILING "friend of the court" briefs in support of Selvin are the American Civil Liberties Union, the attorney general of the State of California, the attorney general of the State of New York, the solicitor general of the United States, and others.

The solicitor general, Thurgood Marshall, is expected to argue that ratification of Proposition 14 would produce nationwide harm in the fight against discrimination and inhibit the expenditure of urban-renewal funds to help in that fight.

Other briefs against Proposition 14 have been filed, but not all the opponents have asked permission to speak to the court.

* * * *

BASICALLY, the argument concerning the legality of Proposition 14 is this:

The proposition prohibits the state from denying the right of a person to sell, lease, or rent his property to "such person or persons as he, in his absolute discretion, chooses."

Selvin and his cocounsel (which include Long Beach attorney Joseph A. Ball) contend that for the state to say there is no bar to discrimination is the same as saying that discrimination is approved, and this the 14th Amendment prohibits.

People are harmed by discrimination, Selvin argues, and if they are barred from seeking help from the courts to prevent that harm, as Proposition 14 states, then the Constitution has been violated.

The Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, Section I, reads as follows:

All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

"DENIAL of a remedy for irreparable injury wrongfully caused is a denial of due process," he says.

Justice Paul Peek, who wrote the opinion, and four fellow members of the State Supreme Court — Chief Justice Roger Traynor, Associate Justices Raymond Peters, Mathew O. Tobriner, and Louis Burke—agreed.

Pruitt's response is powerful, logical, and articulate.

First, he says, there is the mandate from four and a half million Californians.

". . . if a legislature (or the People) choose not to impose sanctions in this field, then the property owner is under no legal obligation to deal with anyone, for whatever reason, even racial prejudice," he writes.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, he says, the argument that the "neutrality" of the state required by Proposition 14 actually invites discrimination is not valid. Burton Smith of Bellflower, president of the California Real Estate Association (which is footing the bill for the defense of Proposition 14), says that only less than one per cent of California property owners practice discrimination, according to a survey his organization conducted.

Furthermore, Pruitt says, the 14th Amendment's equal-protection clause gives to the property owner the right to dispose of his property as he wishes, and he cites an impressive list of past decisions to support his contention.

* * * *

AND, FINALLY, he argues that the primary purpose of Proposition 14 was clearly the repeal of the Rumford Act, that repeal of legislation not required by the Constitution (and fair-housing regulations are not required) obviously is within the province of the people, and that consequently the "repeal aspects should be severed from any aspects which might be deemed unconstitutional."

In other words, if the prohibition against future legislation and against seeking court relief are denials of due process, the U.S. Supreme Court should excise only those portions of Proposition 14 which are unconstitutional and leave the rest.

* * * *

THIS would result in repeal of the Rumford Act.

Attorneys on both sides admit that the court's inclination in the issue cannot be predicted. Justice Hugo Black, long a champion of civil rights, has taken equally strong stands on behalf of property rights, and figures to be the least predictable of the justices.

The arguments should start early Monday afternoon and conclude Tuesday. The court probably will make its decision anywhere from 30 to 90 days after the argument.

Complete Text

Here is Proposition 14, in full:

"Neither the State nor any subdivision or agency thereof shall deny, limit or abridge, directly or indirectly, the right of any person, who is willing or desires to sell, lease or rent any part or all of his real property, to decline to sell, lease or rent such property to such person or persons as he, in his absolute discretion, chooses.

" 'Person,' includes individuals, partnerships, corporations and other legal entitites and their agents or representatives but does not include the State or any subdivision thereof with respect to the sale, lease or rental of property owned by it.

" 'Real property' consists of any interest in real property of any kind or quality, present or future, irrespective of how obtained or financed, which is used, designed, constructed, zoned or otherwise devoted to or limited for residential purposes whether as a single family dwelling or as a dwelling for two or more persons or families living together or independently of each other.

"This Article shall not apply to the obtaining of property by eminent domain pursuant to Article 1, Sections 14 and 14½ of this Constitution, nor to the renting or providing of any accommodations for lodging purposes by a hotel, motel or other similar public place engaged in furnishing lodging to transient guests.

"If any part or provision of this Article, or the application thereof to any person or circumstance, is held invalid, the remainder of the Article, including the application of such part or provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby and shall continue in full force and effect. To this end the provisions of this Article are servicable."

Johnson Heads for Guam

night to plan their strategy in the event the President made such a request again.

* * * *

JOHNSON TOLD the governors:

"If we are going to meet the challenge of the 'sixties and 'seventies, we are going to have to abandon the old disputes about 'states rights' and 'state wrongs', about 'all-powerful Washington, and unrepresentative state governments.' "

He told the 49 state and territorial governors who were able to make the trip to Washington that federal funds going to the states probably would jump from $15 billion a year to $60 billion during the next five years.

He said he had not asked the governors to the White House to "preach or lecture" to them, but to ask for closer cooperation between all units of government.

The Guam trip is Johnson's third into the Pacific in the last 14 months. A meeting with Premier Ky of South Vietnam has been a feature of each of these journeys.

They met first in February, 1966, at Honolulu, where they set their goals for cooperative political as well as military action.

They met again last October at the summit conference of Vietnam allies in Manila, and during the President's brief visit to Camranh Bay in South Vietnam after that meeting. They agreed then to reassign the South Vietnamese army to the pacification program, while the American forces battled the larger Communist units.

* * * *

MAJ. GEN. NGUYEN DUC THANG, who has impressed many Americans with his performance as head of the Vietnamese pacification program, will fly to the meeting with John. He came to Washington Friday after attending inaugural ceremonies for the new president of Brazil.

Also accompanying the President are W. Averell Harriman, ambassador at large; Walt W. Rostow, special assistant to Johnson; Leonard Unger, deputy assistant secretary for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, and David E. Lilienthal, former chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, whose private management firm is organizing a program of long-rane economic development for South Vietnam with a roup of nongovernmental Vietnamese planners.

Toothsome Bean of Chili Fights That Noisome Fag

BUFFALO, N.Y., (AP) — The red kidney bean, an important ingredient in a bowl of chili, has become a factor in cancer research, a scientist says.

The extract of a kidney bean can inhibit the action of a cancer virus, Dr. Marvin Tunis, a biochemist at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, declared Saturday.

Tunis' work at the state's Cancer Research and Treatment Center revealed that when friend leukemia virus, a virus which produced leukemia in mice, and a particular portion of the kidney bean extract were injected into a mouse at the same time, partial inhibition of the virus occurred.

Symptoms of the infection were not apparent in the mouse for two weeks after the injection Tunis said. Signs of the infection generally appear within one week without the injection, he added.

Kuchel Praises Cypress Urban Growth Planning

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., commended the 10-year-old City of Cypress Saturday for planning against the too-frequent "sloppy abandon" of urban growth.

Addressing 1,200 persons at the dedication of the city's new $782,000 Civic Center, 5275 Orange Ave., Kuchel noted that some subdivisions now are surrounded by "ugly commercial strips" and other undesirable developments. Architect William L. Pereira echoed the sentiment when he told the crowd "Cypress made no small plans." He said one of the major troubles of cities today is that "men did not plan to the scale of their dreams."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH KUCHEL did not mention politics in his talk, he said in an interview that with regard to his expected candidacy for reelection in 1968 he felt he "should be a senator without being a candidate at least for the rest of 1967."

Returning to his remarks on the Civic Center, which contains a City Hall, Police Department, City Council chambers and deck and a plaza, Kuchel said: "More towns and cities will follow the example of Cypress if California and the nation are to survive the burdens of an ever-increasing population."

"Too often," he said "roads and freeways are allowed to crisscross in reckless disregard of the local landscape. Pollution of air and water is tolerated. The menace of the slums is ignored. Open lands are occupied in haphazard fashion.

"The people, together with the paraphernalia of their lives, their homes, cars, roads, children, stores, industries, and parking lots, are overwhelming their green and pleasant land."

* * * *

HAVING GROWN from 1,070 at its 1956 incorporation to an estimated 20,000 today, Cypress has been converted, Kuchel said, into one of the leading residential areas of Orange County.

"With a 50 million population forecast for California by the turn of the century, in a western hemisphere of more than a billion people" he said, "there is an urgent need for master planning by every community — master planning which must be respected by and closely coordinated with the efforts of state and federal governments."

The senator said California "can absorb its hundreds of thousands of annual newcomers if its towns and cities concentrate on building the amenities of life into their expanding domains and if they conserve their open lands."

A herd of about 30 cows grazed in a dairy complex alongside the chic modern center and within sight and sound of the speaker.

Senator, on Grill Before Students, Backs Present Stand in Vietnam

(Editor's Note: The author, an 18-year-old senior at Long Beach's Wilson High School, is editor-in-chief of the school paper, Loudspeaker, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Ware, 326 Arcadia Ave. She was one of more than 300 students covering Saturday's press conference held by Sen. Thomas Kuchel at Culver City during the Interscholastic Press Association's first press conference for Southern California high school journalists.)

Students 'Cover' Senator

Vietnam and the 1968 presidential and senatorial elections headed the list of major issues discussed Saturday by Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif.

Sen. Kuchel feels that a "measured response" is the best answer in Vietnam right now.

"The position of the United States is not to invade or occupy North Vietnam, but to seek to make the price of agression too high for the north to pay," he said.

"I cannot argue or cry out against the present stand we are taking. It is wrong to argue that President Johnson wants "total victory" or that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy wants 'pieace under any circumstances.' I say that both agree that all that can be done ought to be, to bring about peaceful negotiations as quickly as possible to bind up the arms of aggression."

CONCERNING next year's senatorial elections, Kuchel stated he "cannot tell at this time whether I will run for reelection."

Asked if the seeming trend toward conservatism in California would affect his chances, he answered, "I hope not."

He proceeded to define conservatism as a "philosophy of protecting and preserving sound consertion practices."

At the other end of the scale, he labeled liberalism as "a philosophy of attempting to look forward and trying to determine what can cure the ills of the human race."

When the question was restated to him, Kuchel replied, "I hope people's definitions won't affect me too much. I'll spread out my record and hope it's what they want."

* * * *

THE SENATOR also declared he was "proud to be a Republican—especially one from the great State of California. I will remain Republican because I'm proud of the kind of leaders our party has produced—Abe Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt and the newly elected Republican senators. I hope this conference will bring some new recruits to one of the two great American political parties."

Kuchel also touched on the issue of presidential election. He named Mark Hatfield, Charles Percy, Nelson Rockefeller, Ronald Reagan, George Romney and Richard Nixon as potential GOP presidential candidates next year.

Of major concern to students at the conference were the issues of draft proposals and 18-year-old voting rights, but these came up only at the end—when little time was left for discussion.

"I'm surprised no one asked me about lowering the voting age to 18. Well, even so, I am in favor of it," Kuchel said. "you are much smarter than we were, and soon some of you will be wearing uniforms. I think you are capable of handling the responsibility of voting at 18."

Tanker Smashes Boats, 40 Slips

A Liberian-flag tanker which smashed into a Long Beach boat marina while changing berths Saturday destroyed a 65-foot vessel, damaged four small craft and buckled 40 boat slips.

Coast Guard officials said the tanker Speedway was shifting berths from Los Angeles Harbor to Long Beach Harbor at 1 p.m. when it plowed into the Southwind Marina near the Commodore Heim Bridge.

The Lady Vivienne, a 65-foot craft owned by Jack Bauer, was almost sunk. The Coast Guard estimated damage at $40,000. Another motor vessel, the 100-foot Pacific Rescue, received minor damage.

Craft listed as slightly damaged were the 25-foot Dianne Lynn and two 40-foot cabin cruisers.

The marina dock was shifted about 20 feet by the crash, the Coast Guard said, and about 40 boat slips were damaged.

Three tugs were escorting the tanker through Cerritos Channel when the accident occurred, the Coast Guard said.

Fall Off Rig Fatal to Man

A Long Beach oil island worker who plunged 90 feet from an oil rig to a wooden floor on Oil Island A last week died Saturday from his injuries.

Jessie P. Potter, 37, of 211 E. 29th St., died at 9:30 a.m. at Memorial Hospital, police said.

Potter suffered a fractured skull, broken bones and multiple injuries from the March 30 fall.

Auto Parts Stolen

Engine parts and sports car bucket seats valued totally at $1,375 were stolen Saturday from the garage of Mary Lee Wulff, 3817 Linden Ave., Long Beach police reported.

Another Old Bag Makes the Scene

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The black bag apparently is a spreading fashion.

A barefoot being — apparently human and draped head to ankles with a shiny black bag — stepped off an airliner Friday at Sacramento Municipal Airport and was whisked away in a waiting car.

The traveling bag apparently wasn't the widely publicized original black bag of Oregon State University, as that one is reported still on campus.

Asked by newsman who he-or it-was, the bag just mumbled, "An experiment in communication."

And not even the passenger list revealed the bag's true identity. It was logged as "B. Bag."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Giant Tanker Stuck on Rocks

AIR VIEW SHOWS the liberian vessel Torrey Canyon, one of the world's largest tankers after she ran aground on the notorious Seven Stone Rocks of Land's End, England.

PENZANCE, England (UPI) — Attempts failed Saturday night to free a huge American-owned oil tanker which ran aground on the notorious "Seven Stones Rocks," about eight miles northwest of the Scilly Isles.

The 118,285-ton Torrey Canyon, flying a Liberian flag but owned by the Barracuda Tanker Corp., of Los Angeles, was aground on the treacherous shual between the Land's End tip of Cornwall and the Scilly Isles — an area from which only one ship is known to have been freed. The tanker is one of the world's largest ships.

Helicopters from British rescue bases found the vessel's 36-man Italian crew not in apparent danger but unwilling to leave the ship despite its plight, heightened by the cargo of about 40,000 tons of crude oil.

The tanker, built at Newport News, Va., signaled "Water coming over forepart of deck. Listing eight degrees. Six feet of water in engine room. Boiler closed down and unable to use pumps or emergency power."

Cold Sets Records

United Press International

Arctic air pressing southward into Florida set cold temperature records from the Midwest to New England and Dixie Saturday, killing half of South Carolina's peach crop and damaging apple orchards elsewhere in the South.

Frost and freeze warnings were posted again Saturday night for much of Dixie.

The tempterature plunged to 10 degrees at Bridgeport, Conn., a record for the date and the coldest ever this late in the season.

Concord, N.H., had a low of 13 below zero, a record for the date and the lowest March tmeperature in 19 years.

The lows of 8 above zero at Fort Wayne, Ind., and 23 at Athens, Ga., tied records for the date.

The temperature skidded to 24 below zero at Houlton, Maine. Bemidji, Minn., reported 19 below zero. Stevens Point, Wisc., had a low of 13 below zero and it was 12 below at Ironwood, Mich.

Low of 24 were recorded at Atlanta, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., and temperatures in the 40s were reported as far south as Jacksonville, Fla.

Airman Held

HONOLULU (UPI) — A U.S. Air Force man who claimed he was a cousin of Lee Harvey Oswald and that "another President would be killed" was behind bars Saturday for allegedly threatening the life of President Johnson.

Johnson is scheduled to arrive at Hickam Air Force Base early today for a brief refueling stop en route to the Guam conference on Vietnam.

Police and Secret Service agents said the unidentified airman was arrested in the lobby of the Reef Hotel after he alegedly made his remarks to two tourists.

Pool Death

CANOGA PARK (CNS) — West Valley Division detectives Saturday night speculated a 36-year-old Canoga Park housewife may have intentionally walked into a swimming pool after taking pills.

A coroner's autopsy was scheduled to be performed today or Monday to determine the cause of death of Estelle Krause, of 20947 Baltar St.

Mrs. Krause's body was discovered Saturday morning by a neighbor in a backyard swimming pool behind a vacant home at 7813 Royer Ave., Canoga Park.

Envoys Banned

New York Times Service

MOSCOW, March 18 — The Soviet Union tonight announced the explusion of two Communist Chinese diplomats, charging that they had organized "anti-Soviet activity" conducted by the Chinese embassy here.

The action followed by a week the expulsion of two Soviet diplomats from Peking on charges of having persecuted Chinese employes inthe Soviet embassy.

The Chinese diplomats were named as Miao Chun, a first secretary, and Hsu Lin, a third secretary.

New Adventures

HONG KONG (UPI) — Communist China charged Sunday President Johnson's top-level Guam conference was called to plan "new military adventures." An earlier Peking dispatchimplied the United States was planning to expand the Vietnam war to China.

The latest accusation was made in the Peking Peoples Daily in an editorial commemorating what the Chinese said was the 17th anniversary of the real American involvement in Vietnam — an apparent reference to U.S. advisory aid to the French during the Indo-

Adm. Sprow Looks Forward to Job

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

NED W. SPROW
Has A New Job

From April, 1961, until July, 1966, Rear Adm. Ned W. Sprow, USCG, commanded the Coast Guard's Eleventh District from headquarters in Long Beach. It was, he recalls, "a wonderful experience."

One of the things that made it wonderful was what Adm. Sprow, now retired, describes as "cooperation of the highest order from the State of California's Department of Harbors and Watercraft."

When Gov. Ronald Reagan Friday named Adm. Sprow to head the Department of Harbors and Watercraft in his new Republican administration, he was placing the 57-year-old Ohio native in an unusual position.

"If the department, under my leadership, can continue the kind of relationship with other agencies that it evidenced when I observed it as a Coast Guard officer, I will be highly pleased," Adm. Sprow declared here Saturday. The 35-year Coast Guard veteran was an honored guest at a meeting of the Long Beach Power Squadron held in the Lafayette Hotel.

Adm. Sprow confided that the appointment came like a bolt out of the blue.

"I've never even met the governor," he said, shaking his head. "Then I got this call, asking if I'd take the post. I said I'd be glad to."

The admiral — tanned and wearing nautical attire — still isn't sure that his salary is $21,500.

"Nobody told me," he said. "And I didn't think to ask."

Adm. Sprow, turning serious for a moment, ran his hand through his greying, curly hair.

"I'd like not to discuss policies," he said. "Not at this time, anyway. I don't know what the governor's position is on these things and it would be presumptuous of me to voice policies before I speak to him."

He discounted reports that his appointment — which requires California Senate confirmation — might prompt a shift of the department headquarters to the Long Beach regional office. Adm. Sprow and his wife, Babs, live in Huntington Beach.

"We are going to move to Sacramento as soon as arrangements can be made," he said Saturday.

Adm. Sprow, whose children include a son in the Coast Guard — Ens. Ned W. Sprow II — and a daughter in Kansas — Mrs. Jill Stevens — said that he was looking forward to the new job despite thorough enjoyment of his retirement. He said he and his wife had made two trips across country, had managed to get a backyard full of fuchsias "growing profusely" and had even worked enough on his golf game to chop five strokes off his handicap, now down to a 24.

"But the job is challenging," he said. "I hope I can help."

Economic Lag—Yes; But Upturn?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sluggishness in the economy is no longer a projection or a theory, but a reality borne out fully by the government's own statistics.

This was predicted by President Johnson's economic advisers two months ago, but their next prediction — an upturn later in the year — has run into some cold stares from Congress.

And recent events, including a decline in three important economic thermometers, certainly didn't help the administration's case for its proposed 6 per cent surtax to take effect July 1.

The surtax request is based on the projection of an economic upturn during the second half of 1967.

* * * *

THE GOVERNMENT reported in the past week the second substantial drop in industrial output in as many months, and a 2 per cent decline in retail sales during February. It also disclosed a 15.1 per cent decline in housing starts for the same month, disrupting the substantial gains of the three previous months.

The accelerated economic page predicted for the second half of the year was described by the Senate-House Economic Committee as an uncertain basis for policy. But it urged Congress to remain flexible on the tax question.

Some members of the House Ways and Means Committee expressed doubt about the administration's economic projections, but Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler stood by them.

The committee, and later the House, approved reinstatement of the 7 per cent investment tax credit requested only nine days ago by the President. The Senate set hearings next week.

* * * *

OFFICIALS DENIED, however, any attempt to pump-prime the economy, despite the request to restore the tax credit and the administration's announced plans to pour more than $1 billion into the economy.

The economy, they said, is now able to absorb the spending, deferred as an anti-inflationary move last fall, but some officials conceded it would have a mild stimulus on the economy.

B52s Blast Hideouts

SAIGON, Sunday (UPI) — U. S. B52 Stratofortresses bombed enemy targets down the length of South Vietnam Saturday night and this morning in six raids representing some of the most concentrated attacks of the war by the giant warplanes, military spokesmen said.

The B52 raids, all within 10 hours, hit targets in some hard-to-reach Viet Cong ground positions and in support of ground operations.

The bombers, each capable of carrying upwards of 60,000 pounds of bombs, twice attacked the Viet Cong's Shau Valley Sanctuary, about 27 miles southwest of Hue where Communists have launched intensive mortar attacks recently.

Sliding south along the coast, the Stratofortresses went after another enemy base camp 29 miles southwest of the U.S. airbase at coastal Tuy Hoa.

Lawson Co. Gets GI Ration Pact

The Defense Department Saturday announced award of a $4.81-million contract to Lester D. Lawson & Co. of Long Beach for 148,740 cases of troop ration supplement.

The firm, located in the Jergins Trust Bldg., 120 E. Ocean Ave., supervises the assembly of rations for use by troops in the Vietnam war.

SMILING RODNEY, 11, DIRECTS CHOIR IN ENRICHMENT PROGRAM

ACTION LINE SPECIAL REPORT

'Median' Pupils' Lives Enriched in College-Linked Special Work

By ARLINE SHERER AND BOB SANDERS

Rodney, an eager fifth-grader, scrambled atop a table, straightened up with a grin, then raised his arms and began to conduct the A Capella Choir of California State College at Long Beach.

The 11-year-old youngster is a participant in Long Beach's pilot educational project "for the child in the middle," questioned as a secret, forced integration program and lambasted as an expensive luxury by more than a score of ACTION LINE readers since the program started less than two months ago.

The program, called College-Connected Enrichment Classes (CCEC), involves about 300 fifth and sixth grade students—roughly average in intelligence—who have performed well in regular classes. (Schools have special classes for students ahead or behind their class level, but the so-called average students had been left out.) The program was designed to benefit median students.

* * * *

CLASSES MEET at four elementary schools near the college—Kettering, Tincher, Grant and Bixby. There are 10 classes composed of 100 youngsters from schools in the central area—of which 80 are Negroes—and 200 from the college-area schools.

Students get a beefed-up version of standard courses, but the unusual aspect of the program is that students visit the college campus at least 10 times a semester.

CCEC students receive special instruction in fine arts, science and physical education from college professors or graduate students. In addition, graduate students frequently attend classes at local schools to continue the lessons.

Objectives of the program, outlined by W. Odie Wright, school superintendent, include:

...Providing special educational opportunities for selected students by utilizing the education resources of the college;

...Raising the aspirations of promising pupils;

...Providing centers of demonstration teaching and some training for college students planning to enter teaching.

School officials say the project is a district plan.

"For several years central area school staffs and district committees have sought ways to upgrade teaching and increase the students' aspirational levels," said Mrs. Helene Rose, supervisor of elementary education.

"Cal State also was interested in cooperating with the district in some form of demonstration teaching," she added.

"We adopted some teaching techniques used at UCLA and Stanford demonstration schools and studied at the Rocky Mountain Education Lab," explained Neil Philips Jr., special projects director.

Ideas from these sources were refined into a plan by a district committee composed of teachers, principals and supervisors, then referred to Special Projects Office for budget analysis.

The school board unanimously approved the program Oct. 19, 1966. The State Board of Education allocated $158,278 in federal funds after State Superintendent Dr. Max Rafferty endorsed the program.

Federal funds, provided by the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, were available only during the 1966-67 school year, and because approval came in October, classes began mid-year.

Some ACTION LINE readers questioned how funds were spent. Philips said the money, $34,000 more than would have been spent normally, was used to hire five new teachers, several college students to act as teacher assistants, neighborhood aides who travel with the children on bus trips and assist teachers, enrichment consultants and supporting staff.

Special equipment, such as encyclopedias and science kits, was purchased.

He emphasized some of the new employes would have been hired anyway to reduce the teacher-pupil ratio in classes.

A more controversial issue than funding, was ACTION LINE readers' contention the program was shrouded in secrecy. One reader asked, "Why were the parents . . . not notified until two days before the program started? Why was there nothing in the newspapers?"

School officials pointed out announcement of the program appeared in The Independent, Press-Telegram Jan. 4, about four weeks before the program started. In addition, PTA councils and boards were told of the plan, and all parents, teachers, aides and children involved took part in orientation sessions.

"I interviewed the parents of each child we thought would benefit from the program and gave them details," said Mrs. Anna Donnelly, Gant principal.

In other schools, parents were told either in personal conferences or small groups, and all had to give written consent. Only a handful refused. Many asked their children before approving.

"Heck, I wanted to go even before Mom and Dan asked me; our school counselor had told me all about the field trips," explained one fifth grader.

Others were more reluctant. "I think many were afraid of losing their friends," said one parent, "my daughter is somewhat withdrawn and needs this experience."

* * * *

WHILE TEACHERS seek to excite the children to learn, some readers are wondering if the purpose of the program is actually racial integration.

This view is discounted by school officials, who explain the law requires the federal funds to be spent in areas where the number of economically deprived families is greatest. They argue that by combining students from these areas with other pupils, they were able to broaden the base and benefit more youngsters.

Most schools were selected for nearness to the college to reduce travel time for both students and college personnel and provide minimum interruption in the normal school day.

The integration claim is based on belief CCEC is a busing program designed to correct racial imbalance.

Superintendent Wright said, "The project definitely is not a busing program. Busing programs have proved unsuccessful in a number of cities throughout the United States and have not been favored up to this time by the Board of Education."

He added the board believes CCEC programs will raise the educational sights of the youngsters.

To provide motivation, the basic fifth and sixth grade curricula are enriched with special Science Research Associates reading materials, book collections, field trips—including one to Palos Verdes Hills to study fossils—audio-visual materials, and talks by graduates and student assistants.

The program shows contributions of various ethnic groups.

"We want the children to have an appreciation for the background of all people, so we don't de-emphasize the contributions of any group," explains Mrs. Rose.

The enrichment process continues when the children visit the college. In one class, they study ceramics, learn the meanings of such terms as "fire" and "Texture." In another, they learn the basics of drama—from script writing and prop design to final production—before closed-circuit television cameras. In still another, they classify insects.

These classes and others, such as choir, band and physical education are taught by authorities in the fields who attempt to involve the children, rather than just let them sit and listen.

One parent said, "My daughter came home and asked me if I knew the color of grasshopper's blood."

Another explained, "Janice is beginning to read at home once again. She is full of excitement about the many things she is doing at school now."

And a teacher commented, "I've noticed some of the children, who were very quiet and content to let others take the lead in discussions, are finding they too have many things to tell. They seem motivated to comment and question as they haven't before."

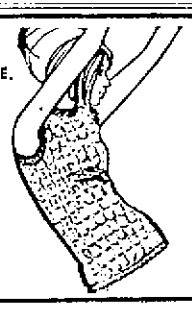

But the real authorities are the children like Rodney, who climb down from the table top and say, "That was fun."

CHAT AFTER CHURCH

A quiet life, difficult for a public figure, is achieved by Dwight D. Eisenhower at Palm Desert where he and his wife winter. Here the Eisenhowers greet choir members and youngsters after a recent Sunday morning service at the Palm Desert Community Church.

AT PLUSH WINTER OASIS

Ike Lives Out His Winter Years in 'Busy Leisure'

By GENE HANDSAKER

PALM DESERT (UPI) — By 8:30 of a morning, the sun blazes across the Coachella Valley, ripening its multimillion-dollar crop of dates and grapefruit.

Sweating players swat tennis balls, bikini-bare sunlovers lounge beside pools and golfers flail away on 21 courses.

At one of the plushest golf clubs a man with military bearing, tanned bald spot and famous grin emerges from his leased, six-bedroom home.

Passing several olive trees he has planted, he steps into black Lincoln Continental sedan bearing Pennsylvania license plates, a stubby two-way radio antenna poking from its roof.

Driven by a Secret Service man — one of eight who guard him in relays, primarily in concern for his health — Dwight David Eisenhower, 76, is off to work.

THE CAR ROLLS slowly through the grounds of the Eldorado Country Club, a lushly green oasis nestling in the pastel desert against the jagged Santa Rosa Mountains.

Acacias, firs, oaak and towering date palms border fairways of the "Taj Mahal of the West." The 500 members pay an initiation fee of $10,000 and annual dues of $720. Eisenhower is an honorary life member.

Passing a row of terraced fountains and a guardhouse, the car turns right into Palm Desert, a quiet residential community of 9,000 with homes ranging from $12,500 to $100,000. Tourist-attracting Palm Springs, 12 miles north, is bigger and more commercial.

Sitting in the back seat as the southbound car picks up speed on State Highway 11, the 34th president and World War II allied supreme commander can see——The Bermuda Dunes Country Club, which has its own airstrip for flying golfers.

—Date farms billed as "the greatest concentration of groves outside the Near East."

—Shields' Date Gardens, featuring dates, date candy, date milkshakes and a 108-seat theater offering a free movie on "romance and sex life of the date." ("Dates are the oldest known cultivated tree crop . . . There are male and female date palms. One male palm cares for 48 female palms. Learn about 'ma, pa and the little ones.'")

After 10 miles the car approaches verdant Indio, "date capital of the United States" and "hub of the California desert playground." Population: 16,000. One of its schools is the Dwight D. Eisenhower Elementary School, opened in 1961.

The car turns right for a mile, then left into the vast citrus ranch of financier Floyd Odlum and his wife, flier Jacqueline Cochran.

IT STOPS at a two-story, green stucco guest house. Birds twitter loudly in dense vines that climb to the tile roof. In the background are immense lawns, orange and the distant Santa Rosas.

Ike's office is the first-floor living room. His huge desk is covered with a leatherlike fabric. On it is a model old-style locomotive, the tender an empty container for cigarettes. He doesn't smoke.

His secretary is attractive, fortyish Miss Lilian (Rusty) Brown, nicknamed for her hair shade. He dictates replies to correspondence that grows heavier with every mention of his name in the news.

He also works on occasional articles about World War II experiences he didn't include in his book, "Crusade in Europe." Another book coming out in mid-June will describe incidents, people and occasions that have stuck in his memory.

ABOUT 11:30 HE rides back to Eldorado for lunch in its huge dining room overlooking the serene golf course. He may chat with the telephone operator and office help, then he goes to his house for a rest.

Afterward he chips and putts awhile on the golf green and next takes an auto ride with Mamie. Occasionally they visit an art gallery. They have seen and warmly approved the site for an Eisenhower medical center to be built on 80 sage-and-mesquite-dotted acres donated by Bob Hope.

So go the busy-leisurely retirement days of Dwight Eisenhower in the sun-warmed spa about 100 miles southeast of Los Angeles. Here he and Mamie spend the winters of their winter years. Here, remote from the mainstream of world affairs, he can do as he pleases—a rare luxury for a world figure.

Yank Forces Ending Long French Stay

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press International

MONS, Belgium (UPI) — The great Allied military pullout from President Charles de Gaulle's France is nearing completion.

At 4 p.m. on March 31 the command switches will be thrown.

For the first time in 16 years an Allied supreme commander will flash orders to forces under his command from northern Norway to the Black Sea from headquarters located in Belgium instead of France.

A year ago De Gaulle set midnight March 31 as his deadline for all Allied forces and bases to get out of his country.

* * * *

THE UNITED States met that deadline by lowering the Stars and Stripes over its military installations in France March 14—18 days ahead of schedule.

Supreme Allied Headquarters will leave France March 30 and set up shop here in Belgium on the afternoon of March 31 with just about eight hours to spare.

Allied officers said the immense new headquarters setup now rising on the flat, featureless Belgian countryside about five miles from here will be ready on schedule.

It was begun only on Oct. 10 last year. But an army of 1,400 workers, aided by one of the mildest winters in recent years, has driven it to near-completion for all essential purposes—more than one month ahead of schedule.

* * * *

THE NEW headquarters is located on a 220-acre site that until recently was an almost derelict Belgian army installation known as "Camp de Casteau," close by village of Casteau. Some of the older barracks date back to 1821. They were built for the Dutch army in the days when Belgium and the Netherlands were a single country. After Belgian independence in 1830 the area was occupied by the Belgian army.

The original buildings have been taken over as offices by SHAPE. But the main headquarters, including the top secret concrete command post and the office of Allied supreme commander Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, has been erected in the past six months.

The headquarters layout consists of a number of three-story blocks of offices built in prefabricated concrete.

* * * *

FIRST TO BE completed was the vital communictions center, without which SHAPE cannot function. The main office blocks and the fortress-like secret command post still are being rushed to completion.

Only 13 days before the move-in they still were a chaos of loose wires, paint pots and ladders.

Total cost of the move is estimated at more than $40 million.

But a spokesman said "everything will be ready for the day."

The new headquarters represents a striking change from the old, one-story plaster-and-lath barracks in which SHAPE has camped out since April 1951, at Rocquencourt, 10 miles west of Paris.

The old headquarters buildings were constructed to last only five years. Several years ago, when the other allies proposed replacing them by something more permanent, the French vetoed the idea—probably the first tipoff that De Gaulle planned to kick his allies out of France this year.

They were in such a bad state of disrepair that roofs leaked and some offices literally had to be evacuated in wet weather.

ONE OF THE main headaches involved in the hasty move was housing. Mons is a quiet little provincial town of only 27,000 population with little in the way of spare accommodation for the 3,000-man SHAPE staff and their 5,000 dependents.

The advance guard, with the help of local Belgian housing authorities, has scraped up about 400 houses or apartments in the Mons area.

Russ Airline Delegation Due in U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI) — A delegation from the Soviet Ministry of Civil Aviation is scheduled to fly to Washington Monday to complete talks on opening a Moscow-New York passenger service in May.

Pan American and the Soviet government airline Aeroflot plan to begin nonstop flights at a date in May yet to be fixed. Each airline will fly twice a week in summer, once a week in winter.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the delegation will be led by G.V. Voitsekhovich, head of the Soviet ministry's Aviation Engineering Administration, and A. F. Borisov, head of its international secion.

Most details of the new service have already been worked out in talks here by U.S. government aviation officials and Pan American representatives.

The spokesman said one technical detail remaining is testing the TU114 turboprop airliners, which Aeroflot will use, for noise. The New York International Airport has restrictions on the amount of noise planes are allowed to make in its vicinity.

Swiss Miss Is a Belly Dancer

By MICHAEL DENNIGAN

CAIRO, UAR (UPI) — Four years after she first set foot in Cairo armed with four languages and a diploma in hotel keeping, a blonde Swiss miss is climbing the ladder in a local art form: belly dancing.

Lisa Mac, 27, from Zurich, in see-through gauze costume and the traditional hip-swivelling style, is giving local girls an unexpected challenge.

She is the star of the show at one of Cairo's tourist nightclubs and packs in the customers.

"Four years ago when I came to Cairo I couldn't dance a step," the bouncy former language student said. "But I had seen belly dancing and I decided this is what I wanted to do."

* * * *

SHE BROKE with her Lebanese husband because, she says, he and his political family in Beirut objected to her ambition. She likewise ignored opposition from her middle-class family in Zurich to take lessons at a Cairo bellydance school.

Apart from the occasional drunk who tries to get in on the act, she claims her job is pretty quiet — although a big contrast with the hotel business her family wanted her in.

While learning to be a belly dancer, Lisa also developed some other show biz skills. Appearances on Cairo television showing Egyptian housewives how to make shopping bags and hats led to non-dancing bit parts in local movies and on television.

In 1966 she had a prominent supporting role in the UAR's biggest-budget movie of the year, "The Yemen Revolution."

"Whenever the director needs an exotic foreign femme fatale, they send for me," she says.

90 BEAUTIES TO GATHER

Preview to Be Presented of April's IBC Pageant

By MARK CLUTTER

Plans are going ahead briskly for Long Beach's 1967 International Beauty Congress, which will hold the world-of-beauty stage April 18-30.

A preview of this year's IBC will be given by James A. Willingham, president, and W. R. Pierce, president-elect, at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday at the Community Forum Breakfast of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce at the Crown Cafeteria Dining Room, First Street and Alamitos Avenue.

Wednesday's breakfast meeting like all Community Forums, is open to the public.

There is a gap of 20 months between this International Beauty Congress and the last, because of the shift from late summer to spring for the gala event.

MORE THAN 90 of the world's most beautiful young women will gather in Long Beach in quest of the title of Miss International Beauty and the prizes that go with it.

Indications are that this year's crop of beauties will be the fairest in the history of the pageant, IBC officials said.

The "average" early entrant is brown-eyed, brown-haired, 20 years old. Measurements are classic — 36-23-36 inches.

Entrants are running a bit taller, with the average height 5 feet, 7 inches. The average weight is a healthy 120 pounds.

MOST SIMILARITIES stop with these statistics. This year's group promises to be the most diversified of all.

Included in the list of careers are beauty consultants, teachers, secretaries, models, actresses, students, financial experts, singers, a dancer from Las Vegas and a press agent.

The girls were questioned about their interests and tastes. Ranking high on their list of favorite historical characters are John F. Kennedy, Winston Churchill, Simon Bolivar, William Shakespeare, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Sophia Loren piled up an impressive lead as favorite actress. Other favorites were Julie Andrews, Jane Fonda, Brigitte Bardot, Audrey Hepburn and Elizabeth Taylor.

Richard Burton and Paul Newman led the male actors.

Only Miss Japan gave baseball as her favorite sport. Swimming, tennis, water-skiing and basketball topped this list. Among the girls are a fencer, a marksman and a soccer player. Miss Australia is the Australian Junior Women's Tennis champion.

STEAK TOPS the list of favorite foods, but the girls also have healthy appetites for lamb chops, strawberries, sweet and sour pork, artichokes, lemon meringue pie, dill pickles, Mexican food, salmon, cake, liver and lasagna.

Men who might have romantic aspirations will find themselves in for a rough go. The girls are almost unanimous with an emphatic "No!" to the question, "Do you believe in love at first sight?" Only Miss Sweden was undecided. Her answer was maybe yes, and then again, maybe no.

During the weeks ahead the rest of the contestants will file their entries. Their pictures will be published and the public will begin to choose favorites. The girls will arrive for a hectic, chaperone, fun-filled IBC pagent.

Public enthusiasm reaches fever pitch as the event progresses. A massive crowd from all parts of the Southland jams Ocean Boulevard for the big parade. The choosing and crowning of Miss International Beauty are gala occasions of the first magnitude.

RENATE SCHMALE, Miss West Germany, is a Munich school teacher. She has brown eyes and black hair and measures 36-21-36.

DAWN SULLIVAN, Miss Wales, is now a receptionist in Margate, Kent. Her ambition is to see the world. She measures 36-26-36.

Outdated Films in School Training, Says Candidate

Obsolete and dated materials may be creating a credibility gap in the first grade in Long Beach schools, school board candidate Sydelle Lemmerman charged Saturday.

Social studies audio-visual aids, specifically in elementary grades, are hampering effective teaching, Mrs. Lemmerman said, primarily because the materials are outdated and obsolete.

She cited as examples a "modern" farm film, "Pig Tails," made in 1924; "Shep, the Farm Dog," made 28 years ago, and "Airport," made 19 years ago.

The farm film shows boys wearing knickers, she said. Films on space discuss the "possibility" of putting a man in space.

"These films are addressed to children who have watched countdowns, takeoff and recovery of astronauts and are knowledgeable enough to know that the materials presented are false," she said.

"Daily our students see jet age commericals on TV, but in our schools they watch an air age film of a stewardess bringing a pillow for a passenger's lap tray.

"If students are aware that this material is false, do they also question other materials presented? How are they to make the transition? Are we creating a credibility gap in the first grade?"

L.B. Attorneys Support School Board Incumbents

A committee of Long Beach attorneys has been organized in support of incumbents James M. Crawford, Jerry S. Jacobs and Dwight C. Sigworth for reelection at the school board election on Friday, April 7.

George Taubman and William D. Began have been named co-chairmen of the committee. They will be assisted by an executive group of attorneys which include Joe Ball, Marvin Tincher, Donald C. Wallace Jr., George R. Johnson, Joe Madden, William C. Price, George Hart Jr. and Elsie M. Farris.

The attorneys issued a statement in which they said:

"We believe retention of leadership that has given our district one of the outstanding school systems in America is of vital importance to our youth and to our community.

* * * *

"MUCH OF THE success of our schools, we believe, has been the result of the emphasis that has been placed on the mastery of the basic skills of reading, writing and arithmetic. We favor, too, the stress the schools have given to the mastery of our American heritage of freedom and to the development of over-all standards of excellence for all classroom work.

"Further, our school district has developed a vocational education program that is second to none. Labor, management and the schools have joined together to develop a strong diversified program of marketable skill training to serve our communities. At present more than 7,000 youth and adults are enrolled in vocational classes in our school district.

"All this has been done with one of the lowest school tax rates in the county. The Long Beach Unified School District has a lower tax rate than more than 90 per cent of the school districts in our county. We salute this remarkable record and publicly pledge our support to incumbents Crawford, Jacobs and Sigworth who have headed our superior school team."

Police Seek Duo Who Sent Cars Crashing from Cliff

Police are seeking two teen-age boys who pushed two stolen late-model cars off a 250-foot San Pedro cliff.

Two fishermen—Robert Bingham, 25, of 2245 Knoxville Ave., Long Beach and Henry Burkonnell, 25, of 1148 N. Laguna Place, Wilmington—spotted the first wrecked car at the base of the cliffs along Paseo Del Mar at 2:30 a.m. Saturday.

They left their fishing gear and went to investigate. Then another car tumbled down the embankment, crashing about 50 feet from them.

The fishermen said two youths came to the edge of the cliff, looked down at the wreckage and then fled in another car.

Watts Opens Week-Long Festival of the Arts

Watts, which felt the first stirrings of a cultural awakening after the riots of August 1965, will bring forth another expression of its flowering this year with its second annual Watts Festival of the Arts.

The festival, much larger than the first, will begin at noon today and run through Saturday at two locations: Markham Junior High School at 104th Street and Compton Avenue, and the Watts Happening Coffee House, on 103rd Street near Wilmington Avenue.

The major portion of the week-long program will be presented free at the junior high school, and will include, in addition to a large display of graphic arts, a number of theatrical presentation, talks and panel discussions.

Keynoting the festival will be Los Angeles City Councilman Thomas Bradley, who'll talk at the school at 2 p.m. today. A concert will follow.

Two of the nation's top Negro talents in the entertainment field — actor Ivan Dixon and actor-director Frank Silvera—are also billed, the former with a film in which he stars, and the latter with a stage production.

Dixon's "Nothing But A Man" will be shown at 2 p.m. for five successive days at the school, starting Monday. Silvera's production of "For My People Now" will be offered at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

* * * *

ALSO ON THE performing arts agenda is Jimmie Sherman's "Ballad From Watts." Sherman is a product of author Budd Schulberg's writers' workshop in Watts.

In the graphic arts field, there'll be a collection of artifact assemblages produced from the debris of the riots, adult paintings, a selection of children's art works, and sculpture and ceramic works.

The Coffee House segment of the program, which will also run through the week, will include jazz, poetry readings, a chess tournament and choral singing, as well as a talk by Black Nationalist Ron Karenga.

Many of the graphic arts offerings will be from amateur and professional Caucasian artists, according to a spokesman for the festival. The bulk, however, will be from members of the Negro community.

Although the festival will get under way at noon Sunday, the starting time for the remaining days will be 2 p.m. The general public has been invited.

Reagan Says LBJ Right to Funnel Funds to States

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
From Our National Office

WASHINGTON—Gov. Ronald Reagan said Saturday that the Johnson administration is moving in the right direction in funneling more federal funds to the states.

However, Reagan made clear his belief that the Johnson administration does not yet "fully trust local governments" to handle federal allotments without considerable strings attached.

At a press conference following an all-day White House conference, Regan endorsed a tax-sharing plan under which a portion of federal tax revenues would be turned over to the state in which they were collected as soon as they had been received by the collector of internal revenue.

But he said he sees no philosophical change on the part of the Johnsen administration to indicate that such a system "is in the immediate offing."

REAGAN said his administration will give "all the cooperation in the world" to any federal program that funnels more local funds through the states.

By-passing of the states in allotment of some federal monies has resulted in inefficiencies, Reagan told reporters.

Although Reagan said Viet Nam was hardly discussed at the meeting of 45 governors, the President and top administration advisors, the governor said he emerged from the session with the feeling that our strength there has built up to the point "where victory is inevitable."

Reagan reiterated his belief that the U.S. should bring as much of its power to bear as is necessary for a quick victory.

The California governor said he and other GOP governors discussed a Viet Nam position paper at a private dinner Friday night, but its issuance was not resolved. Although Reagan did not say so, his remarks hinted that a consensus was not reached on the formulation of such a paper.

HE SAID the governors did not discuss the Viet Nam war in the context of a campaign issue in 1968.

"It might be over by then," Reagan said. At the White House sessions Saturday, Reagan said the President's trip to Guam to confer with U.S. leaders in Viet Nam and Premier Ky was not discussed.

Nor did Reagan ask the President or any of the administration advisors about problems of specific interest to California—such as creation of a redwoods national park, Colorado River developments or seizures of tuna boats by Latin American nations. He said the discussions were too general for this.

Reagan refused to admit to having a feeling that the president has decided to go slow on the administration's great society program. He admitted that such an expression would be "a great temptation to someone of the opposite party."

He hailed a new tendency for the federal government to put less red tape around its local grants "in the right direction." He emphasized his belief that "the goal all of us should be seeking is reducing administrative overhead."

The direct tax-sharing plan would greatly help do this because now some of each tax dollar is siphoned off on its trips from the states through Washington and back to the states, Reagan said.

Subsurface Power Lines to Be Laid

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Underground power lines will be installed in a long-established residential area for the first time next week.

City regulations require such underground installations in new tracts, but this marks the first time the Water and Power Department has put in such underground wiring in a "non-tract" area, a spokesman reported Saturday.

The project, in the Hillside section of Studio City, will cost nearly $700,000.

It eliminates the need for new, unsightly overhead power lines.

The circuits, which will be installed in 10 weeks, will run from Ventura Boulevard and Vineland Avenue to Laurel Canyon Boulevard and Dona Emila Drive.

Fish Flak May Harm Latin Aid

From Our Ntional Bureau

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's rquest for a massive boost in Latin American aid funds is expected to run into some fish flak when it comes before the Senate and House this week.

It could develop into a situation that might weaken the chances for a Western Hemisphere summit meeting in Uruguay next month.

The measure, being pushed vigorously by the White House, is expected to run into trouble from West Coast congressmen who are increasingly disturbed over what they feel is the administration's soft attitude towards molestation of U.S. fishing vessels by Latin American nations.

The administration wants to add authorization for about $1.5 billion in Latin aid funds to the foreign assistance act to back up President Johnson's participation in the summit meeting, an act of statesmanship he is eager to perform.

But West Coast congressmen, led by Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., have become increasingly upset over the State Department's reluctance to enforce a Kuchel amendment to the act.

THE KUCHEL amendment empowers the administration to cut off aid funds to nations that molest U.S. fishing vessels "on the high seas." Several Latin American nations that claim boundary lines of up to 200 miles seaward have made gunpoint seizures of U.S. fishing vessels operating within this limit but outside the 12-mile zone that is the most commonly recognized fishing boundary.

The State Department last month reminded Peru and Ecuador of the Kuchel amendment after several more seizures.

This warning sent Peru and Ecuador into a huff and they threatened to boycott the summit meeting at Punta del Este, whereupon the State Department issued a backpedaling statement designed to placate the Latinos.

But Kuchel and other congressmen were far from placated by the statement, obviously inspired by White House fears that the summit meeting might be aborted by the issue.

There is some likelihood that the State Department's action might result in a congressional move to make the Kuchel amendment mandatory.

Don't Bed in The Park, Hippies Told

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Golden Gate Park is not a bedroom; the San Francisco recreation and park commission has held.

The commission ruled the park off limits between sundown and sunrise after complaints that hippies from the nearby Haight-Ashbury district were camping in the park at night.

The hippies were making mattresses from bushes, flowers and tree limbs, the commission said.

It also said a "health and sanitary problem" was created.

Police Capt. Dan Kiely said hippies weren't the only problem.

"Lots of colllege kids come up just to see the action and use the park," Kiely said.

Reuther Says Strike Isn't Inevitable–But

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Despite having staked out what appears to many to be strike-producing goals for new contracts, United Auto Workers President Walter B. Reuther insists he has not boxed himself in and that a strike is not inevitable.

Asked if three demands he says must be met before he signs any contract didn't make a strike almost inevitable, Reuther replied they did not.

On the other hand, an industry spokesman concluded: "Mr. Reuther appears to be suffering his triennial delusions."

Current three-year agreements with General Motors, Ford and Chrysler expire next Sept. 5. Bargaining on new ones will begin in early July. Since 1955, contracts with the big three have been negotiated every three years.

"We never approach the bargaining table on the basis a strike is inevitable," Reuther told a news conference.

Reuther told the same news conference however, he will not sign new contracts in this year of lagging auto sales and worker layoffs unless the agreements meet three conditions.

He said they must contain a guaranteed annual income, a substantial wage increase, and equal pay for Canadian auto workers.

Boy, 3, Dies Trapped 15 Minutes in Drier

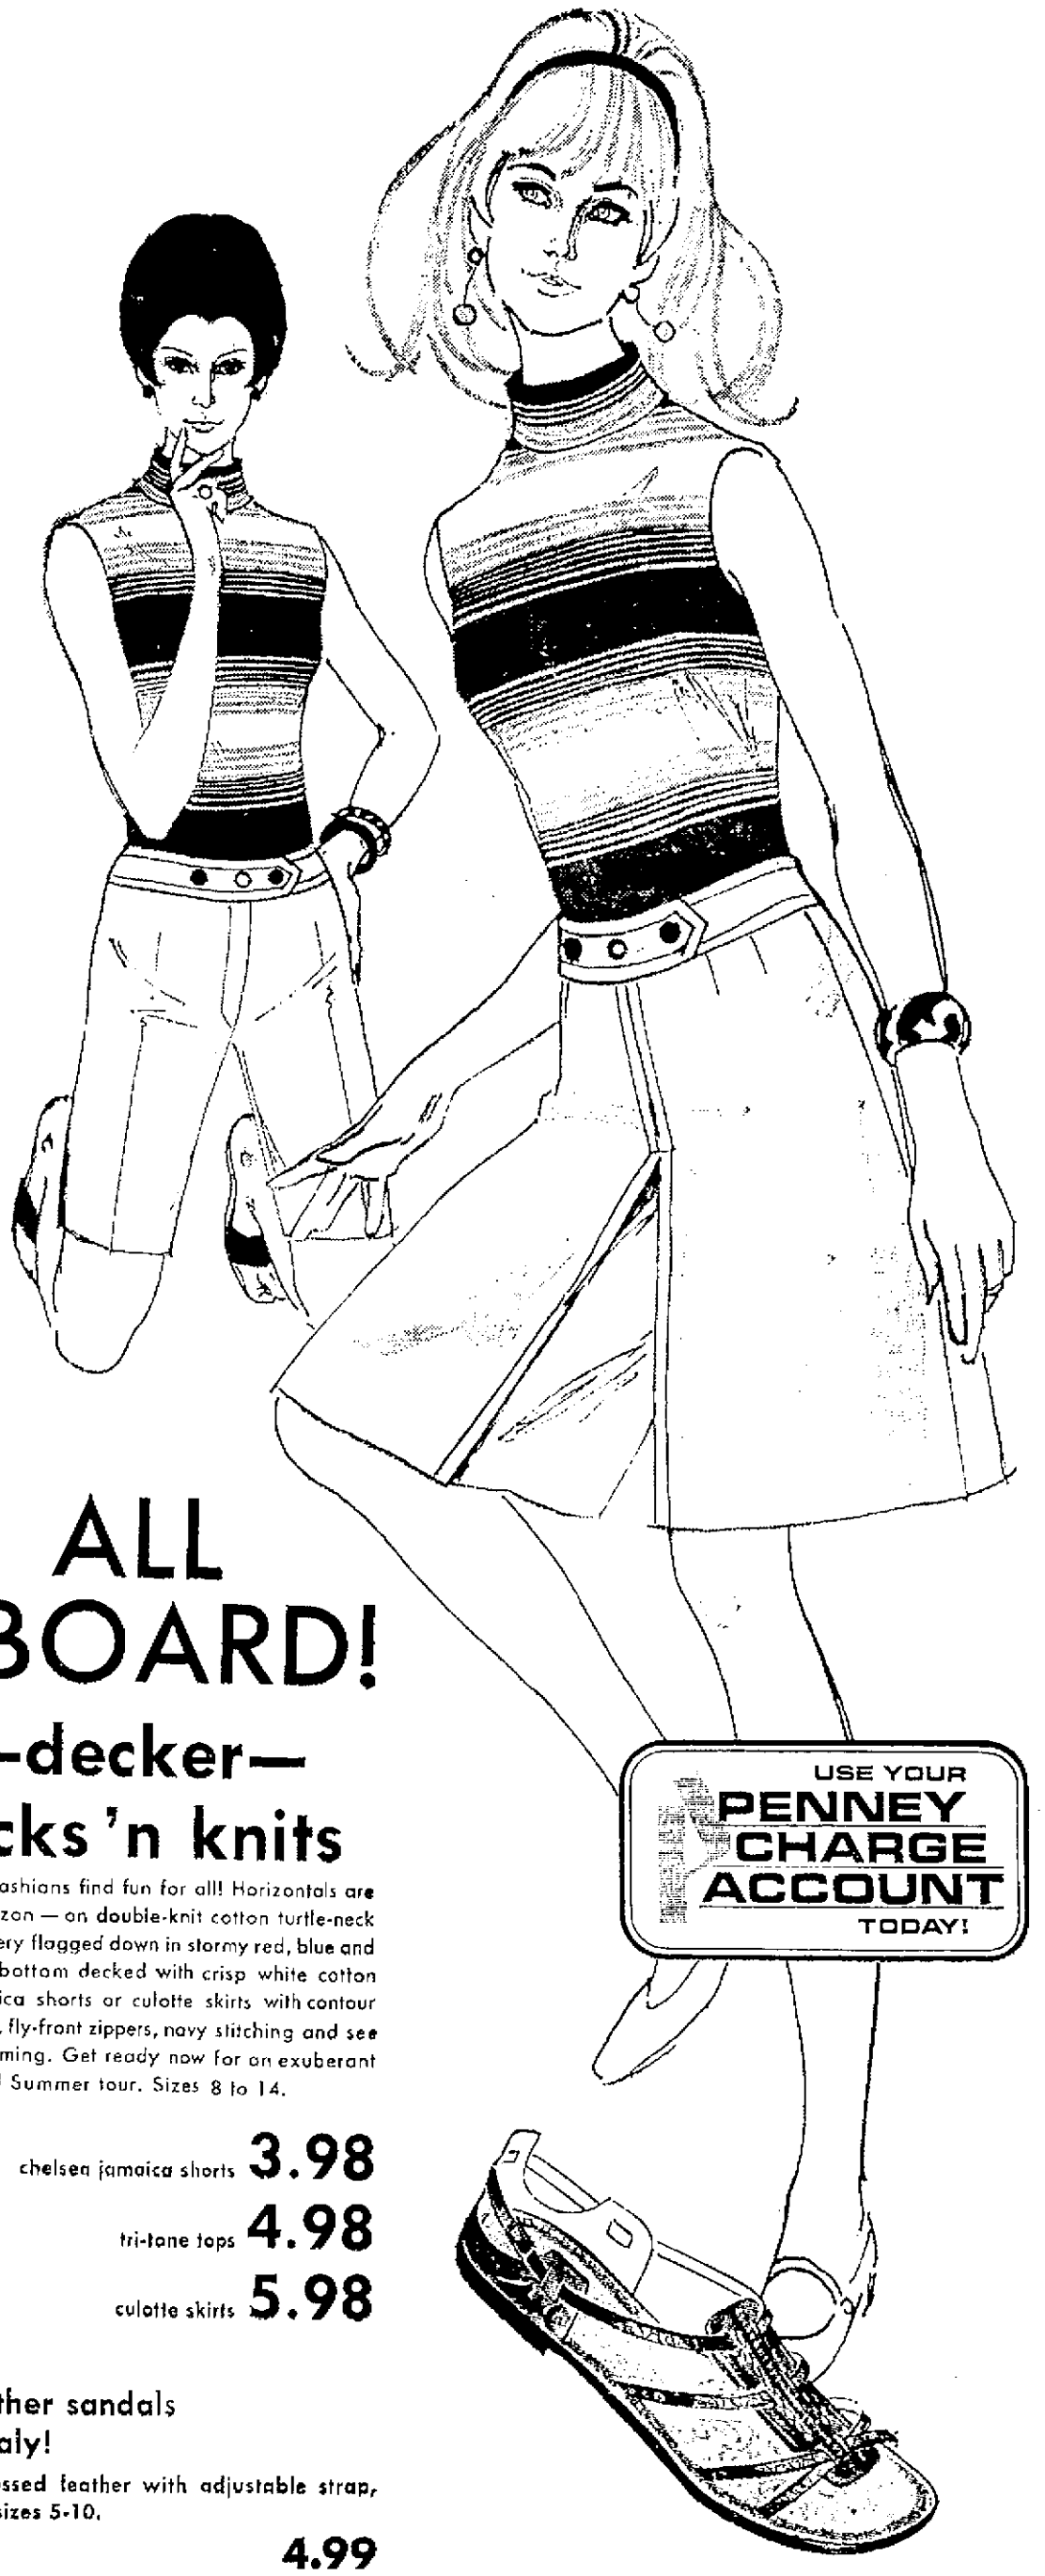

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Darrill Little, 3, was injured fatally when he became trapped Saturday for 15 minutes in a clothes drier in operation in his suburban Henrietta home.

Monroe County sheriff's deputies said the boy apparently crawled into the drier, and the door then snapped shut, setting the appliance in operation.

Darrill, his body badly burned and bruised, was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

SAVED NAVY DEPARTMENT $300,000

This Long Beach trio has been cited by the Department of Defense for its part in a cost-cutting program at Long Beach Naval Shipyard. From left: Ray Arnett, 1645 E. 53rd St., Joseph Anthony, 2250 Belmont Ave., and Otto Schuck, 250 Lindero Ave. They developed and implemented a new process to repair Packard aluminum Diesel engine blocks aboard minesweepers in lieu of taking out and replacing the engine—a $20,000 expenditure.

Risk Factors Studied at Fullerton Airport

They began measuring Fullerton Municipal Airport last week for the first time.

The U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey sent a team headed by James Collom to make the airport study with a field party. He said he expects to finish the job in three weeks.

The study, part of the Federal Aviation Agency's program to advance air safety, will cover a circular area around the city's field. It will result in a survey of the approach and takeoff zones, the elevation of the field, its exact length, obstructions and navigational aids.

Collom said the survey's findings will be translated onto an airport obstruction chart the Coast and Geodetic Survey will publish in about six months. The FA uses the information in planning operational procedures for aircraft using the field.

Instructor Dr. Solon Samuels says required reading for the course is "Transactional Analysis in Psychotherapy," and "Games People Play," by Dr. Eric Berne. Sessions begin promptly at 7:30, he stressed.

USC Sets Musician Congress

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Sixty young musicians between 16 and 23 years of age will visit the University of Southern California School of Music for eight weeks this summer to participate in a congress of strings, Dean Raymond Kendall announced.

This will be the first year at USC for the program, sponsored by the American Federation of Musicians and started eight years ago at Michigan State University.

With the assistance of a $60,000 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, split over the next three years between USC and the Performing Arts Center at Saratoga Springs, N.Y., two groups of 60 students each will be awarded scholarships to the western and eastern campuses.

In the past, 100 students were sent to Michigan from all over the United States.

* * * *

MUSICIANS in all states west of the Mississippi River will hold auditions and select scholarship winners to attend USC from June 19 to Aug. 11 with all expenses paid.

They will choose 16 first violinists, 14 second violinists, 12 violists, 10 cellists and eight double bass players.

Dr. Walter Ducloux, who heads the School of Music's opera and conducting departments, conducts the USC Symphony Orchestra and the university's Opera Theater, will be director of the USC branch of the congress.

A faculty of musicians and guest conductors will be announced soon, Dean Kendall said Saturday, to teach the students individually, and in chamber music groups and as full orchestra.

ANDREW WINTHER
Expresses Views

Candidate In Views on Schools

Andrew W. Winther, candidate for the April 7 Long Beach School Board election, aspires to provoke public participation in both the election of board members and in the board's continuing operation.

He starts out by acknowledging the Long Beach Unified School District has a "good" system, "but it is neither superior nor outstanding."

A retired Navy man and now a contract administrator with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Winther said there is room for improvement in any school system when its superintendent states, "Our quality program cannot be continued at its present level . . . unless the State of California increases its financial support for public schools."

* * * *

SAID WINTHER, "if the success or failure depends upon the benevolence of the governor during the governor's economy drive, then we truly are in confrontation with problems of a serious nature."

He called for board members to meet with the public, the voter and the students to reassure them that board efforts toward "a good level of educational achievement" are effective.

Winther also suggested that the district's success, generally credited to the board, be shared with the district's teachers and its superintendent.

The candidate says he was prompted to seek election after observing the board devoting its attention to such matters as payment of a bill for paper cups, pickles and removal of a wooden board walk. Winther says these matters should be delegated.

* * * *

URGING AN all-out community effort toward producing a respectable board election turnout April 7, Winther reminded that good schools don't come "by magic processes, or by a 12 per cent turnout on election day or by the perpetuation in office of school board members who may or may not have demonstrated their right to reelection."

He noted the present school budget of more than $63.5 million and said the school program which that budget should support "may be seriously compromised unless the voter measures the incumbents and the challengers and also the questionable advice and recommendations of well-meaning but frequently misinformed committees."

Winther is married and is the father of two daughters and a son who is a senior at Millikan High School. He lives at 5101 E. 28th St. A native of New Jersey, he has lived in California since 1937, and in Long Beach since 1953.

Poly First in Chess Tourney

Poly High took first place in the first city-wide high-school chess tournament at Poly Saturday.

A perpetual trophy was awarded. Wayne Metsker, of Poly High, acted as faculty sponsor.

WEEK IN REVIEW

Big Plans Shaping Up for Vietnam

THE WAR

The week brought hints of big things to come — though not necessarily a quick peace — in the campaign to rid South Vietnam of Communist fighting forces.

In a speech at Nashville, Tenn., President Lyndon B. Johnson said he planned to send unspecified "top-flight military personnel" to assist Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander, "in the intense operations he will be conducting in the months ahead."

The President said that in addition to his weekend conference with South Vietnamese leaders in Guam, he would meet representatives of all nations fighting on the U.S.-South Vietnamese side in Washington, April 20-21.

* * * *

AT THE SAME TIME, he announced the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge as ambassador to Saigon, and the appointment of Ellsworth Bunker, 72, who negotiated settlement of the Dominican Republic crisis, to succeed him. Lodge's deputy, William J. Porter, also resigned. He'll be succeeded by Eugene M. Looke, now ambassador to Pakistan.

The United States, said the President, is determined to "stay the course" until "an honorable peace can be negotiated."

* * * *

MEANWHILE, BOTH the White House and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy denied that the President and the New York Democrat traded swear words in a Feb. 6 confrontation on Vietnam policy.

The meeting followed published reports that the senator had received a North Vietnamese peace feeler during a recent trip to Paris. Kennedy denied he brought home such a feeler.

The senator has advocated halting the bombing of North Vietnam and then making an open appeal to Hanoi for peace talks. The White House view is that past bombing pauses brought no softening of Hanoi's position, and that there is no reason to believe the Kennedy plan would work.

* * * *

ON THE BATTLEFRONT, the enemy hit the U.S. air base at Dan Nang with Soviet-made 140mm rockets, the heaviest weapons so far used by the Communists, and wounded 19 Americans.

In midweek, official statistics disclosed the death in action of 175 Americans and the wounding of 892 in a seven-day period. Two American planes were shot down, bringing the total admitted lost since the fighting began to ..47.

THE NATION

In the early morning of the late winter day a chill rain pelted the trees in Arlington National Cemetery then dripped from denuded branches to the sodden ground below.

But the persons gathered on the cemetery hillside appeared oblivious to the vagaries of the weather.

They had come to join in the consecration of the new, permanent grave of the assassinated President John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

Several hours earlier the body of the late president had been moved about ten yards from its temporary grave to a new grave on a slope of the cemetery overlooking the nation's capital.

At the same time the bodies of Kennedy's two children, who never knew their father, were buried alongside him.

They were Patrick Bouvier, who died Aug. 9, 1963, two days after his birth, and an unnamed girl, stillborn on Aug. 23, 1956.

The reinterment and the consecration ceremony were carried out in the highest secrecy to prevent the instrusion of the curious on what was essentially a private ritual.

Present at the graveside rites were the president's widow, Jacqueline, who left a simple bouquet of lillies of the valley on the new grave.

President Johnson also was in attendance as were the late President's brothers, sisters and their spouses.

Richard Cardinal Cushing, who conducted the funeral mass for Kennedy on Nov. 25, 1963, officiated at the reburial ceremony.

The tall, gaunt cleric, blessed the grave and after a brief prayer concluded:

"Be at peace, dear Jack, with your tiny infants by your side, until we all meet again above this hill and beyond the stars. May the good Lord grant you eternal rest and let perpetual light shine upon you and yours."

* * * *

IN A NEW ORLEANS court, Perry R. Russo, a 25-year-old insurance agent, testified that in September 1963 he heard Lee Harvey Oswald and two other men plotting the assassination of John F. Kennedy. . . .

Russo named the other man as David W. Ferrie, a former airline pilot — who has since died — and Clay L. Shaw, a New Orleans businessman. Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has charged Shaw with conspiring to have the president slain. Shaw says he never met Oswald or Ferrie.

On Friday, Vernon Bundy, 29, an admitted narcotics addict, testified he had seen Shaw and Oswald exchange a roll of what appeared to be money during a rendezvous on the shore of Lake Pontchartrain.

The court ruled after the four-day preliminary hearing that Shaw must stand trial on the charge.

* * * *

SEN. THOMAS J. DODD, D-Conn., denied before the Senate Ethics Committee that he improperly used a large part of $450,000 in political contributions for personal expenses.

Dodd insisted that much of the money was not intended by the donors to pay for campaigning, but took the form of tax-free gifts which he could use as he pleased.

Chairman John J. Stennis, D-Miss., said the committee would prepare a report for the Senate as quickly as possible, but that it would take "some weeks, at least."

* * * *

IN NEW YORK'S HARLEM, long the political stronghold of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Republicans named Lucille Williams, a comely, 50-year-old Negro grandmother, to run against him in a special election April 11.

Civil rights leader James Meredith earlier had accepted the GOP bid to be its candidate, but he changed his mind.

Powell, an 11-term Democratic veteran, was ousted by the House for various shenanigans. He is trying to regain his seat by court action. But win or lose in court, he's expected to score an overwhelming triumph at the polls.

Politician-preacher Powell had vowed to return from his vacation retreat on the isle of Bimini to the Harlem church were he is pastor on Palm Sunday. But on Friday he announced he had changed his plans. Powell is subject to arrest in New York City for contempt of court. He said he feared that any attempt to arrest him would touch off a riot.

* * * *

THE ADMINISTRATION SCORED a major victory last week when the Senate approved the long-pending consular treaty with Russia designed to protect American travelers and foster better East-West relations. The vote was 66 to 28, only three votes more than the two-thirds majority required for approval.

The pact now goes to President Johnson for signature.

Senate approval took on importance beyond the treaty contents because it came in the midst of the Vietnam war despite protests in the United States against Soviet aid to North Vietnam. Mail against the agreement had been flooding senators' offices for weeks.

* * * *

THE NATION'S EMPLOYMENT picture remained strong in February, the Labor Department reported.

The unemployment rate held steady at 3.7 per cent, exactly where it was in December and January. Employment rose to 72.5 million, up 350,000.

And the California State Chamber of Commerce reported that the Golden State led major industrial states in manufacturing, income and employment growth between 1950 and 1965.

THE WEST

Property tax exemptions for more than 200,000 veterans in Los Angeles County were loppd off last week by Assessor Philip Watson, who said the state's new assessment reform law makes the exemptions of doubtful legality.

"We have been forced to move on the assumption that if an exemption is of doubtful legality we must deny it," Watson said. He added that he has been trying to get a legal ruling on the matter but cannot wait any longer if his office is to meet the July deadline for completing the assessment roll.

The legal complication is caused by the reform law's clear distinction between assessed and market value of property.

Traditionally, the state's assessors have used assessed value in determining veteran exemptions, which allow a $1,000 reduction to single veterans who own property under $5,000 and married veterans with property worth less than $10,000.

* * * *

THE REFORM LAW for the first time requires assessors to list market values, assessed values and assessment ratio on tax bills. Since market value and assessment ratios were often not previously available, the courts allowed assessors to use the assessed value in determining veteran exemptions.

Watson said the required listing of the additional information means assessors can use market values in determining exemptions. "How can an assessor grant an exemption to a veteran whose tax bill shows he owns property with a market value of more than $10,000 when the constitution limits the exemption to veterans who own property with a maximum value of less than $10,000?" he asked.

* * * *

FOUR THOUSAND STATE JOBS will be eliminated over the next few months as Gov. Ronald Reagan continues his economy drive.

The cutback was announced by Philip M. Battaglia, the governor's executive secretary, who said it would save the state more than $20 million in payroll expenses. The reduction in employes, said Battaglia, "is deliberately being programmed over many months to allow us to do everything possible to place those affected either in private sector jobs or in jobs that must be filled in state government.

The state has about 110,000 civil service employes and Reagan froze new hiring shortly after he took office. Battaglia said the freeze will remain in effect.

* * * *

IN THE FIELD OF HIGHER education, beset by uncertainties because of the governor's proposed budget cuts, Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke, of the state college system, announced most of the problems had been solved. He said the enrollment freeze put in effect at California's 18 colleges last January is off and that all qualified students will be admitted in the fall.

Dumke said he had been assured by Gov. Reagan that the colleges will get enough financial support from the state to insure admitting of all eligible applicants. He said the assurance followed weeks of discussion with the governor and State Finance Director Gordon Smith.

Dumke told a meeting of the statewide Academic Senate in Los Angeles that the governor intended to add $19 million to his original budget proposal of $172 million to bring the total of state financial support to $191.8.

At this level of support, Dumke said, the colleges will be able to hire an additional 590 faculty members to teach the anticipated increase of 17,000 students to this year's total of 172,000.

Gov. Reagan also said, after a meeting of the regents of the University of California, that he and other members of the board were near agreement on the final budget figure for the university.

THE WORLD

France's "Le Grand Charles" last week almost went down to defeat in national elections that left the Gaullist party with a bare majority of one in the National Assembly.

A surprising swing to the Communists and other leftists by French voters resulted in the Gaullists losing 22 seats. The Communist party gained 32 seats and other leftists gained 26. The makeup of the assembly now stands at 244 seats for the Gaullists and 242 for the opposition parties.

The near defeat is not expected to change the policies of President Charles de Gaulle, but it will make his strongman rule more difficult.

Among the Gaullists who were defeated were four members of De Gaulle's cabinet, including Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Defense Minister Pierre Messmer.

* * * *

VOTERS IN WEST BERLIN repudiated neo-Nazis and Communists in municipal elections that returned the Social Democratic party to power.

The Communists were humiliated at the polls, getting only 2 per cent of the 1,481,338 votes cast. The Neo-Nazis were so weak they did not nominate candidates for the city parliament, but they tested their strength by calling on West Berliners to boycott the election. This failed completely. Despite rain on election day, 85.7 per cent of the voters turned out.

* * * *

A PUBLIC PROSECUTOR in Aachen, West Germany, filed manslaughter charges against nine officials of the company which produced the tranquilizier thalidomide.

The prosecutor, Heinrich Gierlich, said about 5,000 children were born deformed in West Germany alone after their mothers took thalidomide during pregnancy.

The trial is expected to open some time next year.

* * * *

IN THE CONGO, former Premier Moise Tshombe was sentenced to death in absentia for high treason by a special military court. Tshombe is presently living in Spain.

Tshombe, now 47, on July 11, 1960, declared copper-rich Katanga Province independent of the new nation of Congo and himself president. He stood off attempts by the United Nations to return the province to the Congo fold for three months. He finally capitulated on Jan. 15, 1963, after U.N. forces routed his gendarmerie.

He went into exile in Europe and appeared destined to live out his life there, but in little more than a year he went back to the Congo and became premier of the nation on July 10, 1964. There was constant criticism of his regime and on Oct. 13, 1965, he was ousted and again went into exile.

* * * *

THE 21-YEAR REGIME of Indonesia's "President for Life" Sukarno was officially ended as the congress stripped him of all powers and titles. General Suharto, who has been in control of the country since an abortive Communist coup in 1965, was sworn in as acting president. He will serve until elections are held in 1968.

Sukarno's official ouster was accepted quietly by his supporters and the 65-year-old fallen ruler remained in seclusion in the presidential palace in Bogor.

PRIME MINISTER Fidel Castro of Cuba made what sounded like a declaration of independence from Moscow. Singling out Soviet trade relations with anti-Communist Colombia, he said that anybody who does business with such governments undermines the Castro guerrilla movement in Latin America.

Traffic Circle Clutter Due to Disappear

By DON BRACKENBURY

Motorists northbound on Pacific Coast Highway as they approach the Traffic Circle may, one of these days, no longer have to look through clusters of power poles and lines at a littered and erosion-scarred hill.

Architect Hugh Gibbs, a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee for Community Improvement, said this week things "look very favorable" for beautification of the easterly slope of Signal Hill.

Last month, Gibbs complained that there is "uncontrolled erosion," trash dumping, an advertising firm's "junkyard," and topping it all, the dilapidated rock letters, "AAE," marring the slope above the Traffic Circle.

Gibbs was named chairman of a subcommittee, which includes Hubert S. Mathews and Dwight E. Jenkins, both members of the advisory committee, to look into the problem.

When he brought up the matter, Gibbs suggested that the "AAE" and the "junkyard" be removed, that oil pumping units be screened, and that the area be landscaped.

"We have one advantage and that is that there is one principal landowner, the Alamitos Land Co.," Gibbs said. "The Water Department owns the top of the hill."

He said his committee will meet with officials of the Water Department and Alamitos Land Co. to try and work out a program that would improve the area's appearance "until such time as it can be developed in an orderly, organized way."

As for the power lines, feeding to and from the substation on the northeast quadrant of the Traffic Circle, Gibbs said his son and fellow-architect, Don, had met several times with George H. Hanawalt, district manager of Southern California Edison Co.

YOUNG GIBBS SAID Hanawalt is "very cooperative," and the committee hopes to work out arrangements for planting around the substation.

One of the first things to go, Gibbs said, will be the big, "AAE," formed from rocks painted white and placed on the hill in the late 1930s by City College students affiliated with the American Association of Engineers.

Although the area has existed in its present condition for some time, Gibbs said his campaign has picked up support.

"Apparently, after people have looked at an undesirable thing for a certain length of time, they tend to forget it is there," he said.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

IT WAS a good day for Adm. Ned Sprow, the former Coast Guard boss here, but the biggest break cost him what was on its way to being one of his best 18-hole golf scores.

Sprow was going great guns on the course, with a nine-hole score in the low forties, when he stopped between nines to telephone his wife, Bab.

She told him to call Sacramento. He did and learned he had been named by Gov. Reagan as director of the state dept. of harbors and craft. He was asked to come to the capital the next day and decided he didn't have time for the second nine.

It was a symbolic end to the leisure days he has been enjoying since he retired a year or two ago from the CG. He's stepping into a busy post, but one for which everybody says with gusto he's well-qualified.

A BROKER acquaintance of mine was invited to attend a meeting of an investment club, composed of sedate ladies who convened at a home of one of the members.

Just after some one made a motion on some business matter, the hostess' dogs interrupted the meeting on their way toward the front door. They frisked about before they were put outside.

With order restored madame president, somewhat flustered, rapped the table and said:

"Ladies, there's a movement on the floor."

IF ANYBODY tells you a story about a female convalescent home resident who told off another patient about a hairdryer, don't believe it. It's one of those yarns that relates an "incident" alleged to have happened in just too many places to be true.

I first heard that it occurred at an east side institution here, and since it has been located in various spots. Latest, at an East Bay convalescent home, with the Oakland Tribune telling it straight-faced.

Anyhow, it goes like this: This old lady writes to thank the Community Chest for providing her with a hairdryer. She goes on: "The lady in my room has had a hair dryer she wouldn't let me use. Yesterday her dryer broke down and she asked to use mine. I told her to go to . . ." The rough language in the original story was rougher than that.

FOR Fred Wilson, the raggedy bicyclist who used to tread our streets, there may be some good news, and something better.

Atty. Phil Poppler, who represented Wilson in getting him out of Camarillo, has received three envelopes from the gov't addressed to Wilson, obviously containing Social Security checks.

But where's the raggedy bicyclist? He was last heard from around South Gate or Downey. His home address, according to rumor, is under a bridge up there, and evidently the govt doesn't have it. Wilson appears to be shying away from L.B., where his arrest on a simple traffic charge started him to the mental institution.

From what I know about Wilson, it may disturb him to learn he's now a Social Security number. That guy's really a free spirit.

DRIFTWOOD — Sen. Geo. Deukmejian promises this dept. the first card he has printed to show tv and radio gents how to pronounce Duke-may-jin. Since Geo. is now carrying a bill to increase liquor tax, he thinks he maybe should change it to Duke-may-gin. . . . Big rabbit population at Leisure World apparently will stay big. When plans were made to do some rabbit-eradication, state game officials said the bunnies are game, mustn't be slain. Leisure Worlders are wondering about anti-pregnancy pills. For rabbits? Gee.

KIYOKO TAKASE OF TOKYO . . . Off to A Good Start

103 DAYS — $500

Japanese Miss Traveling Cheap

People are always trying to "do" Europe on $5 a day, so petite Kiyoko Takase of Tokyo decided she could tour America on that kind of a budgt.

With an assist here and there, she might make her goal of 103 days of travel on $500.

She admits it will be close, but she's off to a good start. She arrived aboard the Argentine Maru at Wilmington Friday and was met by a delegation including her Orange County hostess, Mrs. Elizabeth Shaw-Pelley of 1361 Laguna Road, Tustin.

Kiyoko's stay in Orange County probably will be not only the cheapest — it won't cost her anything — but the most fun. On her schedule: Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm, Mission San Juan Capistrano, Marineland, Hollywood and lots of other places.

Plus teas and receptions so she can meet many more people who are interested in her unique, if somewhat impractical, approach to the tab for a tour.

The tiny Miss Takase — she's less than five feet tall and weighs a bit under 100 pounds — proudly disclosed that she has "letters of introduction to a dozen mayors" of cities across America. She'll be the guest of some of them. And she expects to stop in cities which have YWCA rooms.

FOR HER TRAVELS, she will adopt Western dress — sometimes. She likes the Japanese garb — for color and comfort.

When she arrived at Wilmington, she wore a "very pink" kimono and a bright red kimono coat, just so she'd be recognized.

The hundred days of touring she'll have might result in a book, or some kind of a story — "if enough interesting things happen to me."

Blind Student Tackles Computers

By MARK CLUTTER

Anyone for reading Dostoevsky in the Russian?

Or for baby-sitting with a newborn infant?

Or for hiking or swimming or bicycle-riding?

How about a discussion of computer systems and data-processing?

Or a pleasant chat in French or Spanish?

Or organ music? Or recordings of classical jazz? Or a live concert of folk music?

Or an informal dinner of steak charcoaled in the patio?

Or doing some ceramic art work?

Perhaps a merry party of foreign students?

Or a conversation by short wave with a friend in Australia?

All these are commonplace in the home of the Nels Hinmans at University of California, Davis.

Nels is still remembered in Long Beach as the "1962 Student of the Year" at Wilson High.

As a high school boy, he was an accomplished organist, pianist and guitarist. He was proficient in Spanish. He was an enthusiastic amateur radio operator. He had done art work. He had a nearly "A" record. And he rode a bicycle.

Not bad, eh?

Not bad at all for a boy who was born blind.

From Long Beach, Nels went to Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., where he plunged into the difficult Russian language, often working as much as eight hours a day to become proficient.

At Georgetown he met a girl named Joanne who shared with him a universal thirst for knowledge. She had done well in French, Spanish, Russian, sociology and psychology. And she loves to sing folk songs.

Joanne, too, was born blind.

ON MARCH 9 THEY BECAME parents of a girl whom they named Lori Jean. She has normal vision. "When I got the word, I surprised the professor by walking out of his class," Nels said.

Even for a man as versatile as Nels, blindness has its handicaps. "I've decided against going to work directly in the Russian language," he said. Lack of English-Russian dictionaries in Braille is one of the problems.

"In September, I am going to start a course in computer programming at Systems Development Corporation in Santa Monica," he said. A Braille printing attachment makes it possible for the blind to operate the machines.

Both Nels and Joanne are graduating seniors, and the press of school work plus parenthood has slowed down their other activities somewhat. The short wave, for instance, is not in operation. "I still ride a bicycle sometimes, but it is as much as life is worth," Nels said. His fluency in Spanish has declined because of heavy concentration on Russian.

They are not bothered by the problems of rearing a sharp-eyed child. "There is much information on the problems of blind parents with sighted children," Nels said.

Blind students must depend upon Braille books, tapes and readers. The readers usually are students from the same class who get some studying done by reading to them.

"The blind has to be right the first time," Nels said. "You can't go back and pick up what you've missed during the reading. It requires a special kind of concentration."

Some courses are almost impossible because of the lack of books, tapes and readers.

"We have an interesting life. Never a dull moment," he said.

He harked back to his days at Wilson. "There are some marvelous teachers there," he said. "They are very sharp people."

Partisan Battle Looms on Reapportionment

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — A possible partisan battle threatens to engulf the legislature's 1967 redistricting chore: congressional reapportionment.

Assemblyman Jack R. Fenton, D-Montebello, early in the session introduced bills paving the way for one-man-one-vote reapportionment of Congressional and Board of Equalization districts.

And some time ago our national bureau reported how California Congressmen had come up with their own redistricting plan — one that generally was designed to protect present office-holders.

The Washington-plan was likely to be the guide for the legislative drawing of district lines. And there already had been preliminary discussions between Washington and Sacramento leaders.

But now the whole protect-incumbents arrangement may be jeopardized — an upshot of the 1966 election.

Privately, Republicans are grumbling that the GOP could have captured both legislative houses if Republican state lawmakers hadn't agreed to a protect-incumbents plan.

JAMES McCAULEY

The argument goes that the lines originally were drawn in 1960 to hand Democrats a healthy majority of districts. Any further protect-incumbents plan merely tends to freeze the Republican Party into a minority position.

Republican Party opposition was not a factor a year ago when Democrats commanded both the legislature and the executive branch. But Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan poses a problem for the protect-incumbents plan of California's congressional delegation.

Republican partisans are theorizing that Reagan will veto any bill that makes safer any Democratic-held districts. Republicans, confident due to the Reagan landslide last November, are willing to gamble that they can do better with a number of marginal districts in an era when a GOP trend may be shaping up.

Other Sacramento Soundings:

SCHOOL-GOING APPOINTEE — James E. Johnson of Santa Ana, doesn't intend to cut short his goal for a law degree just because he has been appointed state director of veterans affairs. Johnson, who previously attended Santa Ana College of Law, plans to enroll in night law-school to complete his course.

OPPOSITION FOR SMITH? — Real Estate Commissioner Burton E. Smith of Bellflower may receive some no-votes when his appointment comes up for Senate confirmation. Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, noting realtor Smith helped lead the campaign for Proposition 14 in 1964, stated: "It's a little like placing a fox in charge of the chickens."

WALLACE BOOM? — Newspaper ads are seeking California help to place ex-Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama on the California presidential ballot.

DELEGATION UNITY — The five-man Long Beach legislative delegation deserves acclaim for pulling together on key Long Beach issues. The latest: pressing jointly for early acquisition of a site for a central-state office building. In contrast, the San Francisco delegation is so split it couldn't agree on a chairman.

Your Right to Know Threatened

THE CALIFORNIA Supreme Court is being asked to prohibit wall of censorship and suppression which a Los Angeles Superior Court judge proposes to erect between sources of news and the people who have a right to be informed.

County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy, Los Angeles City Atty. Roger Arnebergh and counsel for at least five newspapers as well as the California Newspaper Publishers Association will seek a writ blocking the drastic action by Judge Alfred Gitelson.

On Fe. 24 Gitelson served notice that, unless overruled by a higher court, in 30 days he will enjoin police and prosecutors from releasing crime news to the press, except for skimpy and uninformative outlines of the facts, between the arrest and arraignment of a suspect.

Kennedy noted that the ruling is "so far-reaching it may impede swift law enforcement."

He and Arneberg, naturally, are concerned primarily with the effects of Judge Gitelson's prospective injunction as an invasion of the executive branch of local government by the judicial branch.

While the officials are not limiting their protests to that point, the newspapers are in a position to make a broader argument — that the public is the real "party in interest."

The public does have a right to reasonably full and timely information on crime, as on other subjects of sharp social impact.

Yet Judge Gitelson, in a 130-page memorandum, asserted in effect that the harsh restrictions he proposed would not infringe on the First Amendment guaranty of free speech and free press.

He said that that actual prejudice, or a clear and present danger to the rights of the accused, is not the test. "It is sufficient that it may or might possibly create or result in prejudice."

In general terms, almost anything that might be said or published could be supppressed under that rule.

Not to be unfair to Judge Gitelson, the guidelines for censorship he would impose by injunction are spelled out and appear to conform with the recommendations of an American Bar Association committee.

In practice, however, they may well persuade prosecutors and police that the best way to escape a citation for contempt is to divulge as little information as possible.

That possibility actuually occurred within 24 hours of Judge Gitelson's pronouncement. The case involved the murder of a clerk by a shoplifter. The investigating and arresting police agencies refused to give the local newspaper any information except the name of the man arrested and the name of the victim. According to the publisher of that newspaper, it was necessary to threaten an injunction to get the police to give his reporter enough information to make an intelligible story.

Notwithstanding the Bar Association committee's opinion, a committee headed by former Federal Judge Harold R. Medina believes that the courts "lack any power whatsoever over the police or the news media before a criminal case goes to trial."

Shell Joins Patrick but Not for CRA

JOE SHELL could teach William Tecumseh Sherman a few things about how to say "no."

Sherman claimed he would not run if nominated and would not serve if elected. Shell, former Los Angeles Assemblyman who ran nor governor against Richard M. Nixon in 1962, was rumored recently to be in the running for state president of the California Republican Assembly. The CRA will elect during its three-day convention in Long Beach March 31, April 1 and 2.

BOB HOUSER

Shell, when queried about the candidacy, said: "I was never asked to run. I never inquired about running. I have never given it any consideration whatsoever. I do not seek the office. Under no circumstances would I run for it or accept it. My answer is an unequivocal 'no.'"

Actually, Sherman got firmer: "If forced to choose between the White House and the penitentiary for four years, I would choose the penitentiary."

TOO BAD about Shell. His candidacy would have spiced what now appears to be a routine convention. The rumor of his candidacy was linked to continiing talk of persistent efforts of cosmetics tycoon William Penn Patrick, of Tiburon, to build grass roots GOP strength toward a 1968 candidacy of U.S. Senate against Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel.

Shell, almost inevitably referred to as a wealthy oilman during his past political campaigns, recently sold all his oil production and signed on as executive vice president of Patrick's San Rafael-based Holiday Magic cosmetics concern.

Shell also was mentioned in connection with Patrick's abortive maneuver last January to elect an ultraconservative as vice chairman of the official Republican State Central Committee.

Asked a few days ago if he would work in a 1968 Patrick-for-Senate campaign, Shell answered, "If he runs I would give him any kind of advice he asked for."

Although Shell lost his primary fight for governor to Nixon by an almost two-to-one margin, he got 656,000 votes, apparently capturing the right-wing and locking it in place. Many political observers felt the Nixon-Shell primary fight created the breach between moderates and conservatives which resulted in Nixon's loss to former Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

SHELL ALSO was on the outs with Ronald Reagan before Reagan announced for governor. Shell told the press Reagan had assured him he would not contest Shell for the governorship.

In addition to Patrick, at least two other strongly conservative types appear to be on the brink of challenging Kuchel. They are Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, and ex-Air Force Gen. Curtis Lemay.

This budding scramble to capitalize on the state's conservative mood, as signaled by Reagan's massive victory, has to be read by moderate Kuchel as good news.

The rote political line on Kuchel has been that he would have no trouble getting reelected if Republican conservatives didn't knock him out in his own party primary. Now if conservatives field a team of Senate aspirants, they would almost certainly dilute the rightish vote enough to make it smooth sailing for Kuchel.

Time Fuse in Case of Svetlana?

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — All governments concerned have done a magnificent job of reducing the decision of Josef Stalin's daughter to exile herself from the Soviet Union to the dimensions of an essentially unimportant personal matter. It is hard to escape the feeling, however, that this affair has a time fuse on it, however long. And that it will one day detonate with quite a bang.

The Indian government, having troubles enough with Communists just at the moment when it was trying to organize itself anew, did not wish to accept Svetlana Stalina, or Madame Alliluyea, as she currently prefers to call herself. The most it did was not stand in the way of her seeking asylum in the United States.

The United States government, seeking more amicable relations with Russia, and driving from its mind the words of Emma Lazarus inscribed on the Statue of Liberty, looked around like a panicked quarterback and handed Svetlana off to the Swiss. In Washington conspicuous apprehension seemed to be based not only on the possible political consequences of inviting in a lady of such celebrated identity, but on what she might say about her former compatriot's once Life, or Look or the Saturday Evening Post, or somebody else got exclusive rights to her story and sat her down at a typewriter.

The Swiss, who perhaps better than anyone else in Europe understand the art of preventing political assault or homicide within their borders, accepted the fugitive for rest and recreation. Not for political asylum. It noted that she had not been known to engage in political activity, although simply being Stalin's daughter would itself seem to rate as a rare and exotic form of political activity.

The Soviet Union, after thinking the matter over, decided that her stay abroad was her "private affair." This did not quite square with authoritative reports from India that angry representations had been made to the Indian government by Soviet emissaries when it became known that Svetlana was not buying a return ticket.

The atmosphere generated by the episnde in Washinglon was decidedly not as tranquil as the White House and the Department of State wished to make it seem. There were questions for which answers have not yet been forthcoming.

Is she ever going to be given asylum in the United States, which was her first choice? If not, why not? Is she ill, or in the grip of acute nervous disturbance? Why did she not wish to return to the Soviet Union? Had she been threatened, at home before she left, or in India as her stay became suspiciously prolonged?

Have the United States and the Soviet Union slapped a sort of embargo on the import trade in defectors, which for so long had been kept at the highest possible level by both sides?

By way of refusing comment, the State Department said it did "not wish to complicate further the personal problems which Madame Svetlana Alliluyeva may face." What personal problems? Although Secretary of State Rusk says discussions about her never reached the point of whether to issue an entry permit, it is rather well established that she traveled from India to Rome to Geneva in company of a CIA officer, apparently on United States funds, and she may be living on U.S. funds now. In Washington, it was possible to encounter the grim opinion that although she may be safe for quite a long time, the Kremlin itself is not likely to forget her or her action.

This is not quite a spy story — or at least, is not known to be. It is, however, a real-life story of international intrigue, and one of great magnitude, and it is not hard to suppose that one day it may have the public on the edge of its seats again.

Sharing of Light Costs Paying Off

A PRIME example of public and private sharing of costs for community improvements is Long Beach's street-lighting program.

In recent years 28 of these projects involving special assessment districts have been completed at a cost of $1,090,000. Some 1,500 new light standards, with all the appurtenances, have been installed in areas from Naples on the south to the far reaches of North Long Beach.

Now the City Council has approved the largest project of all, an estimated $507,274 outlay to light most of West Long Beach. Added to a dozen others now in various preliminary stages, it will bring the total scope of the program well above $2 million. Most of the improvements have been accomplished since 1963.

The key to the rapid advance to better lighting is the council's policy of paying half of the total cost from city funds.

Initiated under a 56-year-old statute, the assessment procedures give repeated opportunities for property owners within the districts to protest. Few have done so. Most apparently consider the arrangement a bargain.

Like the residents, the city also considers it a bargain from a standpoint of crime control, accident prevention and enhancement of neighborhood sightliness.

The net result is that many older areas are being brought up to the lighting levels of newer subdivisions where the special projects are not needed.

Good Work of Youth

THREE HUNDRED young people turned out the other day in Springfield, Mo., a quiet city of 96,000, for a street demonstration.

Except in the immediate area, their actions rated only a scant three or four inches of type under a small head in most newspapers — and none at all in others.

What they were demonstrating, in addition to themselves, was $850,000 worth of new vehicles lined up near the international headquarters of the Assembly of God Church.

The 300 young people, along with others in their age group, had raised the money to buy the equipment and send it to the church's missionaries in 73 foreign countries.

The scant space accorded this event is the sort of thing for which newspapers are constantly being reproached. We are sorry, but quiet good works seldom qualify for a big play under the immutable rules of newsworthiness.

It is conflict, tension, the bizarre, the unusual that make up the prime stuff of news. You may have noticed that even the youth protest rallies don't draw so much attention any more. They are getting too commonplce.

A pleasant afterthought is that the youth of Springfield, Mo., and their counterparts everywhere were not motivated, as are a good many of the violent demonstrators, by a desire for sensational news coverage.

THE FLIGHT OF THE UNICORNS. By Anthony Shepherd. Abelard-Schuman. $5.

Five years ago the Arabian oryx, generally held to be the unicorn of fable, was believed to be nearing the fate of the dodo. In an effort to save it from extinction, the Fauna Preservation Society of Great Britain sent an expedition through the Aden Protectorate to the remote "Empty Quarter" of the South Arabian desert. This is an account of that expedition, written by one of its members.

With the aid of an airplane and a specially built surface vehicle on which they could balance while lassoing the animals, the expedition members managed to capture and bring out alive three of the graceful creatures. The three were sent to the Phoenix (Ariz.) Zoo as the selected home of a world pool for the survival of the species. Several others later were donated, calves have been born in captivity, and there is now a flourishing, if small, herd which has boosted hopes considerably that the Arabian oryx will survive.

If you're ever in Phoenix you may wish to take a look at some of the rarest antelopes in the world.—Bob Martin.

L. A. C. SAYS

Have You the Itch to Change Your Job?

By L. A. COLLINS SR.

KIPLINGERS Changing Times Magazine gives some interesting questions for the young person who has the urge to change jobs. It suggests that any individual with the urge take a sheet of paper and tabulate his or her arguments in two columns. Ask yourself some questions and answer them without emotion.

Here are some questions to ask yourself: Does your job utilize your skills, offer challenges, give you enough to do? No job is perfect, there doesn't have to be a new challenge every day. But if there is never a real test of your ability you are probably justified in making a change.

How about the company? Do you agree with its promotion and pay policies? This is tricky—few of us make as much money as we think we need or are worth. But look at other companies in the same field. Be sure there are greater opportunities in another company than you have in the one where you already have seniority.

How well has your company kept up with changes in its field? If it has fallen behind in pay, promotions and is lagging in technological or other areas, could it be the company or you that's bogged down. Does your boss encourage initiative and give you a chance to show what you can do? How do you and the boss get along? Do you respect his judgment, follow through on his suggestions or do you think you could do his job better? If you are unconsciously in competition with him you probably aren't doing your best work. Chances are you won't unless you change your attitude. But that attitude may be the same under a new boss.

Now take your own measure. How expert are you? Compare the work you do with that of those on your level and with those a step above you. Do you pull your weight, do as much or a little bit more? List the things you have done that you think entitles you to greater consideration. How adaptable would you be to another employer? Do you really have talents to offer that he would utilize and reward?

HOW WELL have you kept up with changes? If you judge the company on this point it's only fair to judge yourself on it also. Maybe others are coming along faster because they are more up to date. Have you learned along with them or are you resting on seniority and discontent?

This is some good advice from Changing Times. There is a great deal of job switching in the present labor market. It applies to executives as well as workers on the assembly line. Many young people recently out of college become frustrated. Some of them expected promotion at a much faster pace than has occurred. But many also expect promotions because they are college graduates, not because of the demonstrated ability upon which promotions are usually made.

If you are planning on a job change be sure you know about the opportunities in the new job, but above all carefully assess your own ability and attitude. If you do not you may find you have gained little, because success is largely dependent on your own ability and willingness to judge your own capabilities.

Freedom of Choice

EDITOR:

George Robeson's excellent column has convinced me that his campaign to eliminate the death penalty in California deserves more support. Since the majority of Californians consistently oppose repeal, I suggest that compromise legislation be enacted to guarantee individual freedom of choice to the humane minority.

Under this plan, voters would be permitted to register the names of themselves and their minor children as potential victims whose offenders would be guaranteed immunity from capital punishment.

Registrants could popularize this movement by wearing a distinctive decoration, such as a small bull's eye over the heart.

You Could Be Next

EDITOR:

For some odd and frightening reason, there has been an increased robbery spree in Long Beach. A neighbor 'down the street' was robbed a little more than a month ago, and now a vacationing neighbor had his color TV set stolen.

It's weird finding your neighbors' home with their sliding glass door smashed and locks broken. It's heartbreaking to see their faces when they are told what has happened. It's a feeling of insecurity when you think that you could be the next one.

Lack of Confidence

EDITOR:

Reagan's lack of confidence in politicians comes out. Recently in Washington when asked to name his choice for '68 GOP standard bearer he said: Let's wait and see if some new faces may appear, maybe from the business world. In other words he's not specially impressed by any of the present contenders. Then, as a candidate for governor he confided that he would "turn to the people for advice rather than to politicians," if elected.

The governor's lack of confidence in the ability of news media to be fair to him is also showing badly. He and/or his friends are paying for radio and TV releases to insure that the public gets the news about his administration straight and not distorted, but hardly objective.

His views on politicians could well change in a year or two when the full awareness comes that he, too, is now one of them, standing in the same relationship to the people as they. Whether he modifies his attitude about the fairness of the press or his low opinion of higher education is another matter. These could be held firmly at the deeper level. When the governor of a great progressive state frowns at "intellectual curiosity" being supported by state funds some of us feel he's striking a blow at research which has brought so much progress in technology in agriculture and industry. For research and curiosity cannot be divorced.

Early Mail Wanted

EDITOR:

Earlier morning mail delivery would enable citizens to read their mail at the breakfast table.

Carriers are a tired lot after a day of walking and likely do not retire late, so are prepared to start work earlier than at present. In warm weather especially, carriers would benefit. Mail collections on earlier schedule would expedite the mail.

White House in Mind?

EDITOR:

What is Mr. Reagan trying to do to the State of California? We had a wonderful state until he came into office. Why did he take the governor's office when he has the White House in Washington in mind? If he should run, how can he have his mind here and in Washington?

He has been in for two months, and caused more trouble than ex-governor Brown in his whole term of office.

Another thing, he is a rich man. His children will not suffer for want of an education, but our children will and to think that this was what California was noted for, our wonderful education system.

Sacramento mansion isn't good enough for his wife, but why do we have to pay extra help and guards for two houses? If it is an unsafe house for the Reagan's why do they allow help to live there and to have parties Sure wish they would impeach him.

Reagan Upstaged

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Bobby Did It at Gridiron Dinner

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — After all his years in show biz, California Gov. Ronald Reagan knows when he's been upstaged.

Reagan last week admitted to confidantes that he came off second best in his first appearance on the boards with that New York scene-stealer, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, when they were the featured speakers at the Gridiron Club's annual white tie bash here preceding Saturday.

The banquet is a difficult house to play, because the audience is a gathering of highly sophisticated government officials and Washington newsmen.

Reagan, who had never before attended one of the sessions, found his earnest talk wasn't on the right wave-length. It suffered by comparison to the bantering, "in-group" speech given by Kennedy, a veteran of the banquets.

However, Reagan can take comfort in a consensus of many of those present that his speech was at least as well received as extended remarks given that evening by that old quipmaster, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

FOR YEARS, House liberals have conducted a spirited but unsuccessful effort to block passage of an annual appropriation to the House Un-American Activities Committee on the theory that this would halt the committee's activity.

Last week they learned that all of their effort was in vain.

Had they been successful in lopping the special appropriation HUAC would have continued on although on a somewhat reduced scale. As a standing committee, the group's regular operating funds are buried in various other pieces of routine legislation and the furiously-debated appropriation is a special measure for additional activities.

DURING A recent debate over creation of a permanent House Ethics Committee, Rep. Charles Mathias, R-Md., held aloft a copy of the "Code of Ethics for Government Service."

The code, a list of 10 virtues written in general terms "a full day's labor for a full day's pay," is handsomely printed with a red, white and blue border and hangs in many congressmen's offices, including recently expelled Rep. Adam Clayton Powell.

Mathias commented that it may have been symbolic of the times that he found the code in a trash can in the basement of one of the House office buildings.

CAPITAL CHATTER

REYNOLD T.(Barky) Bergquist worked for the late Rep. August Andresen, R-Minn., for 27 years before becoming administrative assistant to Andresen's successor, Rep. Albert Quie, in 1958.

It's understandable, then, that Bergquist made a mistake recently when he answered Quie's telephone with the words, "Representative Andresen's office."

ONE OF the Congress' most erudite and articulate members last week turned to rough-hewn comedian Jimmie Durante for an explanation of the U.S. Constitution.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., who can cite Blackstone or Sophocles from memory, discussed civil rights with a Georgetown University group and quoted Durante on the first 10 amendments to the Constitution—

"Da Bill of Rights means dat da guhvm't shood leave da people da hell alone."

FAST LIFE

THE FAVORITE drink of New Orleans Dist. Atty. Garrison, who claims to have solved the crime of the century, is cream soda and gin. With just a dash of opium?

THE NEW ORLEANS district attorney isn't tipping his hand justyet, but the word has leaked out that he's got his eye on everybody in Louisiana.

ADAM CLAYTON POWELL'S congressional district is without representations, and his constituents will probably continue that state of affairs by reelecting him.

Reagan Was 'Good Boy' at Congressional Lunch

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Gov. Ronald Reagan of California acted like a "good guy" in one of his late-night movies as he hosted a luncheon for Democratic and GOP Congressmen from California in the Rayburn Building. He avoided controversy and was even gracious to GOP Sen. Tom Kuchel, who leads the moderate wing of the Republican party.

Only flareup was when GOP Sen. George Murphy of California made a short speech in which he favored the importation of bracro low-wage workers from Mexico for U.S. farm jobs; also opposed the 160-acre limitation on water rights for Western farms. Murphy criticized Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz for taking the opposite position on both issues.

"I thought that this luncheon was to get acquainted, not to bring up controversies," shot back Rep. Jeffrey Cohelan, a Democrat. "However, while we're going on the record, I want to say that I strongly oppose the Senator and agree with Secretary Wirtz."

At an earlier, all-Repbulican breakfast, Reagan declared that "the public is behind me" in the budget-slashing of the University of California. No Republicans challenged this, though somebody asked:

"What about those youngsters who can't afford to go to our universities in California under your program? Where are they going to get the money?"

"Maybe they can get it from the CIA," quipped Reagan.

THERE'S something awfully suspicious about the price paid for helicopters the Army is using all over Vietnam.

Known as the "Air Jeeps" or the LOH (Light Observation Helicopters), they are purchased from the aircraft division of Hughes Tool Corp. of Los Angeles. In the original contract awarded last May the Army agreed to pay $19,800 for the air frame of this helicopter, including a rotor and drive shaft but without the motor or combat facilities.

However, when the Defense Departmet later asked Congress for a supplemental appropriation, it was estimated that the same air frame would cost the government between $48,000 and $50,000.

The suspicion is that the Hughes firm may have bid at $19,800 for the first frames, taking a loss, so as to get in on the ground floor, lock up the contract, then boost the price. When Rep. Porter Hardy, D-Va., called Assistant Army Secretary Robert A. Brooks for an explanation, he nervously admitted that procurement at the higher cost had been discontinued.

"It wouldn't be that this inquiry had anything to do with that?" suggested Hardy. "You needn't comment, because I know what your answer is bound to be."

The interrogation petered out in a classified cloud of military secrecy. However, the Army is already using the LOH effecively in Vietnam and needs more and Hughes is the only manufacturer equipped to turn them out according to specifications.

This is how the taxpayer pays and pays for our huge military budget.

THE House of Representatives is having more trouble making up its mind on who should police its ethics than in passing the $71.3 billion defense program.

The alternative is between creating a brand new ethics committee under purist Rep. Charles Bennett, Florida Democrat, or using the old-line House Administration Subcommittee under old-timer Wayne Hays, the Ohio Democrat.

Some Congressmen figure the oldtimers would be too easy on ethics, and that Bennett would be too tough.

Bennett, they claim, would start peeping into bedrooms and scrutinizing congressmen's relaxations after hours.

What the majority of Congressmen want is a committee which will check on gifts from lobbyists, conflicts of interest, payroll padding and monetary matters.

The irony is that the real reason Adam Clayton Powell was booted out of Congress so fast was his extracurricular trips with his shapely secretary who won the Miss Ohio beauty contest and the manner in which Adam snubbed his wife. Yet the majorityof Congressmen want to keep personal extra-curricular activities off the record as far as furture investigation of themselves is concerned.

Orange Soon to Be 2nd County in Population

By MOLLY BURRELL

Sometime late this month Orange County will become the second most populous county in the state.

At that point — an estimated 1,289,678 persons — it overtakes San Diego County with its estimated 1,289,600 to stand next to Los Angeles with its more than 6 million.

Estimates are based on figures from the State Department of Finance and its county population projections of 6,542 new residents a month versus 4,401 a month for San Diego. Last count in July, 1966, showed the southern county about 19,000 ahead.

* * * *

BY APRIL 1, county planning department officials indicate that not only will the former orange grove center of the Southland hold more people than trees, new residents will be arriving at the rate of about 218 a day.

That rate will continue and accelerate until a projected 3,000,000 is reached by 1990, they say.

The transformation from rural agricultural area to a major residential and industrial center has happened mainly within the past two decades and increases have followed a consistent pattern: between 1940 and 1950 population nearly doubled (130,760 to 216,224) and more than tripled by 1960 when the census tally was 703,925. Since then population has almost doubled again, and will probably triple before 1970, planners say.

In addition to the obvious drawing cards — climate, availability of land and services, extension of the freeway system — officials attribute the growth to:

A continuing healthy employment situation.

Aggressive attempts to attract new industries.

A continuing reputation for fine schools.

Abundance of recreational facilities and scenic areas.

The search for a less congested living area.

* * * *

WITH ALL THESE plus items on the ledger growth was inevitable and continued population influx to be expected.

This is the crux of the problem facing planners today: can they come up with an overall general plan which can solve the most pressing problems — open space and pollution — in time to head off these urban headaches.

That's the challenge before the planning staff as a whole and Dick Ramella in particular. As senior planner in charge of advanced planning, he directs a staff project to undate the 1947 general plan.

* * * *

WE NEED TO LOOK into the future, as far as 50 years, establish goals, decide on what kind of a county we want and how to get there, establish needs and priorities. We need overall and detailed projections based on economic factors, natural resources and availability of open space," says Ramella.

This latter issue he regards as the most pressing problem the area faces.

"Because the open space issue is less dramatic, less tangible than pollution, people can ignore it, be unaware of it," he says. "However, unless we plan today, there won't be any unoccupied land tomorrow and the county will be diminished by that quality which now makes it so desirable," he says.

To augment the general plan project, authorized by county supervisors in 1964, citizens advisory groups will be named to recommend goals and priorities. Within the next two years a 20-year projection should be ready, and within another five years a comprehensive plan should be developed.

In addition to the more urgent problems, Ramella says the county faces these exigencies:

— better, more efficient use of land, including redevelopment of some urban areas into high rise regions.

—more efficient transportation facilities.

— fuller use of existing and development of new recreation areas.

County planning direitor Forrest Dickason adds: "Contrary to what many believe, the major growth of the future will probably not be in the southeast area. Much of the remaining land there is too difficult and expensive to develop because of the rugged terrain. The growth will probably be in the already built-up western part of the county and will be made possible through redevelopment."

Education Board Elections to Attract 50 Candidates

By DON KIRKLAND

Nearly 50 candidates will seek posts on the boards of education of Southland communites April 18 when local voters get a chance at biennial reshuffling of their school districts.

In Torrance, balloters also will beasked to decide the fate of a $2.3 million bond issue to allow city takeover of five county libraries.

The lineup:

Artesia - Bloomfield - Carmenita School District (ABC)—Three incumbent board members are seeking relection, contested by four candidates. Incumbents whose names will appear on the ballot are Gretchen A. Whitney and Richard A. Franks, representing the Artesia district, and Lynn Fletcher of the Carmenita district. Carmenita member Daniel K. Morrison, the board president, will not seek reelection.

Opposing the incumbents are Walt Damyanek, Robert Elliott and Mrs. Beverly Wood in the Artesia district and Ray Hansen in the Carmenita district.

Bellflower Unified School Distrist—Of seven board members, two are seeking reelection unopposed: C. A. Bower and Dr. C. H. Ozaian.

Cerritos College District — Four of seven board seats will be sought by six candidates, four of them incumbents. The present members seeking reelection are Harold T. Tredway, Dr. Curtis Paxman, Arthur Kulzer and Leslie Nottingham. Opposing them will be John F. Butkiss and Rudolf F. Valdez.

Compton City School District—Two incumbents are among a field of 11 hopefuls in a hotly contested battle. Seeking to retain their posts are Howe Durham and Mrs. Evelyn G. Waldo. Clarence Pearl, a member of the board since 1957, is not seeking reelection.

Opposing the incumbents are Maurice A. Bowie, Wendell T. Handy, Dr. William K. Payne, Carl E. Robinson, Robert W. Ruger, Gilbert B. Thompson, Henry Watton, Jardine C. Wilson and Mrs. Mavis C. Wilson.

A citizen group has announced it will withhold a proposed recall action pending outcome of the election.

Cerritos Drain Job Offer OKd

By VINT MADER
From Our L.A. Bureau

Award of a $351,626 contract to R.E. & R.W. Crane, Inc., of Lakewood, to build storm drain facilities in Artesia, Norwalk and Cerritos has been recommended to the Board of Supervisors.

Walter J. Wood, chief flood control engineer, also will advise the board at its meeting Tuesday to take jurisdiction over a Bellflower stormdrain and make an agreement for use of Southern California Edison Co. lands in San Gabriel River channel development.

* * * *

WOOD ADVISES acceptance of the Crane firm's offer, the lowest of bids submitted for a flood Control District project in sections of Norwalk and Artesia Boulevards, 166th, 183rd, 195th, Ashworth and South Streets and Ely Avenue.

For a Bellflower-Downey flood control project that will come before the board later, bids were opened in the district offices Friday. Charles T. Brown Co. offers on four alternate plans apparently were lowest.

The Brown firm, of San Fernando, submitted tenders of $373,658, $405,288, $437,401 or $485,815 on the four variants that would permit an award based on funds to be made available.

* * * *

ENGINEERS, who estimated a total cost up to $600,000, designed a project about 1½ miles in length with concrete conduits varying from 33 to 78 inches diameter, the district says. They will analyze all bids submitted, which total 14, before a recommendation is made to the supervisors.

The tmeporary entry permit to use Edison lands, which involves no funds, is recommended for a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers project to improve the river flood control channel northward from Cecillia Street in Downey. It allows entry over a parcel at Florence Avenue and the San Gabriel River Freeway.

The city-owned Bellflower storm drain in Stoneback Street has been offered to the county by the City Council. The line will connect with a project now under construction by the Flood Control District.

The four variants in the pending Downey-Bellflower project take in sections of Woodruff, Rosecrans, McNab, Pepperwood, Bluegrove and Clark avenues and Washington, Brightley and Van Ruiten Streets.

3 Die in Crashes; Policeman Hit

Three Long Beach - area persons died in traffic accidents Saturday, and a young Santa Ana policeman was in critical condition after he was struck by a car.

Dead are:

——Larry D. Boley, 25, of 1111 Daisy Ave., Long Beach.

—Shanna Lee Dunn, 18, of 2905 S. Spruce St., Santa Ana.

—Anna Belle Maxwell, 20, of 8251 Sterling Ave., Huntington Beach.

Long Beach police said Boley was dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital at 3 a.m. after he missed a curve on Magnolia Avenue southbound near 14th Stret.

Officers said his auto skidded off the road and wedged between a brick wall and a power pole.

The crash snapped three power lines, disrupting service for an hour to 300 homes and businesses on the west side.

Services for Boley were pending at B. W. Coon Funeral Home.

Miss Dunn died when the sports car in which she was riding collided with a pickup truck at Newport Boulevard and Bristol Street, Costa Mesa, at 1:45 a.m.

The driver of the car — George Richard Garcia, 19, of 1521 W. San Lorenzo Ave., Santa Ana — was in satisfactory condition at Hoag Memorial Hospital, Newport Beach, with head and internal injuries.

The truck driver, Max Dillman, 41, of 1322 E. Ocean Front, Newport Beach, was unhurt, police said.

Miss Maxwell was killed early Saturday in a crash near Springfield, Mo., where she was a student at Southwest Missouri State College. Three other persons were injured.

The Santa Ana policeman, William W. Eldridge, 22, who joined the force nine months ago, was struck by a car at Fourth Street and Garfield Avenue while investigating skid marks from another accident.

Lt. Dwight Gross said the driver of the car that struck him, Pete Perez, 25, of 17312 Santa Clara St., Fountain Valley, was not cited.

Eldridge was rushed to Santa Ana Community Hospital after the 9:36 p.m. Thursday accident, and has remained in critical condition there.

Six Bulls Death Caused by Snail

PINEROLO, Italy (AP) — Six bulls nuzzling a water trough on a farm at Baudenasca suddenly fell dead. The farm family found the culprit was a snail that caused a short circuit by inching along a power line connected with an electric pump that fed the trough. The bulls and snail all were electrocuted.

Power Squadron Seats Leaders

Cdr. C. P. Von Herzen of the San Fernando Valley unit of the United States Power Squadrons was sworn in as commander of District 13 before 250 members attending the district spring conference in Lafayette Hotel Saturday.

Cdr. Von Herzen relieved District Cdr. Roland L. Hulbert of the Centinela Unit in the change-of-watch ceremonies.

Other officers elected included Baxter Wolf, Santa Barbara Unit and William Grant, Rio Hondo Unit, as Lieutenant Commanders, executive and administrative, respectively and W. G. Harper, Jr., Valley Ho Unit, Secretary.

Maurice Barr, Long Beach Unit, was re-elected district treasurer.

The conference was under the chairmanship of R. P. Drake of the Rio Hondo Unit, the host squadron.

During the morning session, squadron members attended one or more of the 24 seminars to share knowledge and experiences relating to the USPS primary objective — the teaching of safe small-boat handling to the pleasure-boating public.

The new commander of the 16 squadrons of District 13 pointed out that during the past year the various squadrons offered courses in pleasure boat handling to Southern California's sail and powerboat operators.

"With the ever-increasing interest in boating in Southern California where we are blessed with a year-around season we should intensify our efforts to interest more boaters to take advantage of elementary and advanced boating courses," said Cdr. Von Herzen.

Chartered under the by-laws of the 60,000 member national organization, each squadron must offer at least one class each year in elementary piloting, the new commander pointed out. He said the squadrons should make a concerted effort to create a demand for the advanced classes such as seamanship, advanced piloting and the two navigational courses.

"We should aim to enroll at least one new student in our fall classes for each new boat that will be launched in Southern California waters during the 1967 season — and that is going to be a great number," Von Herzen said.

The conference concludes tonight with a semi-formal dinner dance in the International Ballroom.

Torrance Parades for St. Patrick

Torrance honored St. Patrick a day late, but with plenty of Irish spirit in a two-hour parade Saturday.

The event featured bands, floats, marchers, horsemen, costume groups and clowns — 150 entries in 29 categories, according to the Torrance Chamber of Commerce.

HONORARY GRAND marshals of the parade were Charles Joseph McCorry, 93, and Robert Irwin, 87. A dozen or so other Irishmen were honored in the parade.

A game of Irish football was played at 2 p.m. at Bishop Montgomery High School, with bagppipers and Irish stepdancers at halftime.

Eager Taxpayers Mail Checks to Wrong Offices

Hey, taxpayers! You're supposed to send the federal income tax return to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and the state income tax return to the California Franchise Tax Board.

Some of you apparently haven't been doing it.

In a plaintive voice, Maurice W. Kenworthy, manager of the Long Beach office of the Franchise Tax Board, Saturday told of "large numbers" of federal returns received at his office.

"Of course," he said, "we send them on to the Internal Revenue Service, but it just causes delays in the processing and it also complicates our handling." He added that some state returns, missent to the IRS, had been forwarded to the state offices.

Kenworthy urged all citizens who have yet to file their tax reports to double check the envelopes before mailing them.

You might, he added, also check to make sure you've enclosed your check to the state. That's important — and often omitted — too.

Orange County Gets Kelp Help

By BARBARA KNESIS

Orange County's jungles of kelp, almost wiped out several years ago by an onrush of warm water, are being primed now for a comeback.

Doing the priming is Caltech Professor Wheeler J. North, with a $3,000 grant from the Orange County Fish and Games Commission.

Kelp rich in animal plants, is almost as important to a sportsfisherman as his rod, since it draws fish who feed on it.

Orange County could boast approximate 2.5 square miles of kelp in 1955 but then the warm waters came, taking away much of the rich sea plants.

Since then, North said the water tempertures have cooled to the extent that kelp is coming back.

But he added he feels he can hurry the process.

"What we believe happens now," he explained, "is tiny spores liberated by the plant do not travel very far and settle quickly so the comeback is quite a slow process.

"We can speed up the whole thing by moving the plants."

That's exactly the technique being used by North and his crew in the Newport Harbor area.

Explaining the underwater reforestation program, the associate professor of environmental health engineering said:

"Divers just pry loose the plants from the bottom of the ocean. Unlike land plants they have no roots. They do have clining devices of hold-fasts. Then we tow it by boat to where we want it, and usually put a nylon line through the hold-fast and attach it to the rock on the ocean floor."

North said he planned to move about 200 such plants into the reef in Newport.

If the project is successful and if the money holds out, he said he would then move onto other areas along the coast.

North said he has no reason to believe that the conservation program will be any less successful than the ones he has directed elsewhere.

But even if the plants do adapt to their new surrounding North said they would not be safe until they've grown a little since there are certain fish "who just love to eat the tiny plants."

Veterans to Stay Exempt

Orange County Assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw said this week he's convinced that Los Angeles County Assessor Philip Watson is "100 per cent wrong" in denying exemptions to veterans.

Hinshaw said he intends to allow assessment exemptions to about 57,000 veterans in Orange County this year, and said he "does not accept" Watson's interpretation that new statutes change procedures.

The Los Angeles County official held that 1966 legislation calls for deciding exemptions on the basis of full market value of property involved, rather than on 25 per cent of value.

* * * *

IN DECIDING that exemptions should be allowed only on the basis of full market value of property listed, Watson knocked out 92 per cent, or about 200,000 claims, usually filed with his office annually.

Veterans had been allowed $1,000 exemptions on assessments, if their holdings were not valued at over $5,000, figured on average valuation of 25 per cent of market.

Hinshaw said he will continue to honor that rule since "it makes no sense to assess properly for tax purposes at 25 per cent, but value it at 100 per cent of market when figuring exemptions." The exemption filing period ends April 15.

* * * *

THE ASSESSORS' Association of California was asked for an opinion — which stated in effect that the 1966 changes were "wrongly interpreted" by Watson.

Only Watson, of all the assessors in California counties, moved to deny exemptions to veterans this year. He claimed it would yield about $220 million in taxes.

The Orange County assessor said that claims for exemptions have been decreasing in recent years, presumably as the war veterans "become more affluent."

British Scientist to Speak

Sir Peter Medawar, British scientist who in 1960 won the Nobel prize in medicine with a sensational—and now controversial—theory of how to cure social ills by controling genetics, will be speaker April 6 at University of California, Irvine.

His appearance will be the occasion for UCI's "spring conclave," and classes will be dismissed at 2 p.m. so students can hear him speak in Campus Hall. The public is invited to attend, university officials said.

* * * *

THE TALK by Dr. Medawar will be on the topic "Genetic Cures For Social Ills," and the conclave will allow time for student and faculty participation in discussions on the controversial issue.

Medawar developed a method of inducing immunological tolerance for transplanting living organs, thus opening a whole new field of genetics control.

His theory's application would mean that social problems of crime, poverty and unemployment might be cured by eugenics. His belief is that traditionally - genetic inheritances of hemophilia, diabetes, and types of insanity, among other ailments, might be controlled by scientific application of genetics selection.

Beach 'Dracula' Is in Usual Vein

By RALPH HENMAN JR.
Drama Critic

"Dracula" gets into the bloodstream of many a theatergoer—as evidenced by a full house at Huntington Beach Playhouse's opening Friday night of the venerable shocker.

We keep coming back umpteen times to see the new terrors a creative director may have added.

We're not all that concerned about four of the central characters. It's foregone that Dr. Seward will be a stolid, unimaginative Englishman; his daughter, Lucy, a cold fish; Jonathan Harker a callow but courageous youth, and Dr. Van Helsing a calm Dutch genius who surmounts all evils.

* * * *

NO, IT'S the portrayal of Dracula himself that intrigues us; how he ranks with Bela Lugosi and lesser Transylvanian emigre vampires we've known. And the character development of Renfield, the madman, there's something to study, too.

How much shock is imparted by this director's or that's flying bats, Dracula's materializations, the chase through the vault and the final climactic scene? This is what we go to see.

We were not disappointed at Huntington Beach.

Traditional performances without surprises were turned in by a stolid C. R. Mannering, a cool Kass Sylvester, a callow Jerry Barwick, a calm Ron Lambert. This was comforting and strangely satisfying.

Howard R. Solomon did Dracula in a style all his own. It was very good. And Jack Hebert was a sly madman who finally, unwittingly, undoes the count.

Two sruprises did develop: LaDonna deBarros and Martin Fuchs, in the usual servant bit parts, added several delightful touches of comic relief—which, of couse, is a breach of traditionalism.

* * * *

DIRECTOR Phil deBarros, set designer Mike Barber, and Paul Sullivan and Peggy Davidson on light-sound came up with enough new twists. Even callused Dracula-goers such as this one were wondering what's next.

So here's your chance, fellow members of the Dracula Fan Club of Southern California, to view yet another version. There's enough new material to supply several months' discussion topics at club meetings.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. March 31 and April 1, 7 and 8. The address is 2110 Main St.

Pair Bidding to Join Select Oscar Circle

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Although 152 Oscars have been awarded for acting achievement in almost four decades, only a dozen performers have more than one.

And when the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences makes its 39th presentation April 10, only two actresses will be vying for a repeat award.

Elizabeth Taylor, who was named best actress for her role in "Butterfield 8" in 1960, will be seeking a second Oscar for starring in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

BEST SUPPORTING actress of 1958, Wendy Hiller, again is competing for an Oscar. She co-starred in "A Man for All Seasons." The 1958 award was for her role in "Separate Tables."

During the academy's history, only one performer has won three Oscars — Walter Brennan. His honors all came in the supporting category.

Five women — Bette Davis, Ingrid Bergman, Luise Rainer, Vivien Leigh and Olivia de Havilland — and three men — Spencer Tracy, Fredric March and Gary Cooper — have won more than one Oscar in the best performance by an actress and actor.

Davis Concert Well Executed

By Daniel CARIAGA
Music Critic

Colin Davis, the Los Angeles Philharmonic's sixth and final guest conductor of this season, finished his single pair of Pavilion concerts Friday afternoon. Next week Zubin Mehta returns to his own orchestra.

Despite the fact that one of the other podium guests was the great Hans Swarowsky, Davis' concerts may well have been the most satisfying of the 8-week duration. Certainly, they seemed better rehearsed, more lovingly conducted, and more immaculately executed.

The program listed only two complete works — Richard Rodney Bennet's Symphony (1966), and the Violin Concerto of Paul Hindemith — and portions of another — Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet—" but it left no doubt about the young (39) Briton's persuasive leadership, his penetrating musicality, or his collaborative gifts.

We found no particular delight in Bennett's seemingly overwritten symphony, which keeps every member of a large orchestra busy for 25 minutes, but we must admire the devotion Davis applied to it, and the near-clarity the orchestra achieved.

* * * *

WITH SO MUCH sound activity going on, and a thicker texture than most ears can absorb comfortably, this work, which Nicolas Slonimsky's verbose program notes informed us is "serial in structure," seemed more like two separate works (one tonal, the other serial) being played simultaneously.

Isaac Stern closed this season's survey of 20th century violin concertos with a magnificent reading of Hindemith's. It is a work full of joy and depth, and Stern, with extraordinary partnering from Davis, delivered its song as well as its speech. The difference between the way the Philharmonic plays under these conditions, and the way it performs on an indifferent day, is hard to believe.

In City College Auditorium Friday night, we saw the second of three Opera Workshop performances of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble in Tahiti," conducted by Akira Endo, with vocal direction by Wayne Gard, and staged by John Noschese.

* * * *

NOSCHESE ALSO WAS Sam to Linda Speer's Dinah, and we reveled in their diction (crystal clear everywhere but in the gym and hat shop scenes), their telling use of good vocal equipment, and the understated naturalism of their acting.

Alienation is the theme of "Trouble," as it is also of "Candide," and "West Side Story." In the earlier work, Bernstein creates structure out of contrasts — that between what is said and what is felt, between what we are and what we pretend to be, between the gnawing loneliness of the individual and the clicheed, obsessive togetherness of the crowd.

The realization of these contrasts, and of all the details of music and stagecraft which combine to fortify them, is a large order, despite the small cast (two characters and an all-important Trio) and relatively uncomplicated scenic requirements.

With no apologies, and near professional smoothness, the Workshop production made Bernstein's musical and dramatic points nicely.

* * * *

ENDO'S STUDENT orchestra — they offered, as a curtain-raiser, a rousing account of the Overture to "Candide" — played well, and let the singers be heard. The Trio (Laurel Farley, Steven Wurner, and Edward Cleek), effectively placed in the pit, was excellent in its delivery of the quasi-jazz lines. Only their makeup violated Bernstein's wish for simplicity and naturalism.

David Emmes coordinated the production; J. L. White provided technical direction and lighting. Student designer was Lynn Craven, whose drop for the focal scene, the meeting in the rain, was lovely but admirably unobtrusive.

Because all participants obviously had ample rehearsal, there was throughout a sense of solidity and routining refreshing to one who regularly views "Carmen's prepared in two rehearsals, "Messiah's" prepared in one, and standard concertos thrown together without benefit of even one full orchestral rehearsal. Refreshing, too, was Endo's clear conducting, which was thorough, but which left all the histrionics for the stage.

"Colonel Maggie" Feels Safer Touring Vietnam

NEW YORK — Martha Raye, or "Colonel Maggie" as they call her in the Special Forces, was playing hostess and check-grabber in Sardi's to four GI medics soon to fly to Vietnam...and was clearly trying to give them some good cheer.

"With all the rapes and murders in the States, I feel a lot safer over there than I do here," the Honorary Colonel said. Martha laughed softly and began worrying about their drinks and their steak sandwiches. One boy had a vodka and pernod. Colonel Maggie took her butter knife and stirred his drink.

"You're really going back?" Pfc. Nick Lalumia of Dallas, now in the 5th Medical Hospital Evacuation unit, said.

"Sure am. Either Oct. 4 or 11. I promised Gen. Westmoreland," Martha paused to sign an autograph for somebody who'd just seen her in "Hello, Dolly!"

"She's in the Army, same as we are, a scrub nurse, same as we are!" one of the GIs said. "She's too much."

"Yeah, that's how I spend about half my time, scrub nursing in the field hospitals," Martha said. "But I did all my basic, intelligence, language, radio, guerilla combat, parachuting. I did my rifle when I first went in back in '39."

"You jumped in a parachute?" I asked.

"You only had to jump five times. I didn't jump — they pushed me!" She looked at the boys who laughed.

"How did you happen to go in in '39, when we weren't in the war yet?"

"There were a lot of our boys in the R.A.F.," Martha said. "You remember '39, fellas?" she said to the boys — the oldest of whom probably hadn't been born till at least 5 years later.

"I was in three years then, and then a year and a half in Korea."

"Do you do it out of patriotism or adventure or what?"

"I guess it's from feeling needed," Martha said. "It's one of the most rewarding things you can do. You receive so much more than you give. It gives you a richer life. Actually, it's a selfish motive."

* * * *

MARTHA FLIES in the choppers into the jungles to pick up wounded, she sees men die frequently, and between times, she entertains.

"I spread myself around, and there's a lot of me to spread around," she said. Regarding her as a soldier rather than as star of "Hello, Dolly!" these boys asked her what they'd find. "How many shots will we have to have?"..."About 12. They're not bad, really"..."Is it pretty rough?"..."You can go for a while with nothing happening, and all of a sudden, BOOM. It happens, and for nights and nights they bring in the wounded."

Martha the war veteran said, "Those C rations are great compared to what they were in World War II and Korea!"

"How come you're not eating now, Martha?"

"I eat all during the show! Roast chicken, beets, mushrooms. Everything's real except the dumplings I keep eating. That's cotton candy. That's my dinner every night."

"Do the surgeons operate out in the field under tents?" one medic asked.

"Uh huh, when they're choppering down to get the wounded out of the jungle. Sometimes we have to drop a cable down into the jungle and bring the wounded out on a light steel litter. We try to stop the bleeding first."

* * * *

THERE WERE 40 or 50 people back at the stage door just to have a look at the woman colonel.

"Just my luck to open my show at tax time. I would open in Tel Aviv during Yom Kippur and in Boston during Lent."

Martha, that is to say, Col. Maggie, for her true name is Margaret O'Reed, said, "I feel better when I'm over there. I'm the only woman—I'm an idiot!"

THE WEEKEND WIND-UP.— His Mar. 21 appearance at Philharmonic Hall will mark the 50th anniversary of Fred Waring & the Pennsylvanians...Anita Bryant had to turn down the White House performance of "Guys & Dolls" (March 18) because NBC wouldn't release her from co-hosting the Junior Miss Pageant...Gene Saks, who'll direct filming "The Odd Couple" beginning Apr. 28, toured NY for locations...Joey Heatherton's the GI favorite on the Vietnam circuit...Jack Jones is said to have given Jill St. John a diamond and emerald bracelet.

Songwriter Gladys Shelley is working on a B'way musical for Ann Moffo...Over 1,000 items will soon carry the Deborah name...Joey and Cindy Adams are going to Yugoslavia, where Cindy's Sukarno book was just published "We can't take our money out," Joey said, "but we can live there like king and queen—provided we don't eat."...Jack Palance, filming "The Dragon Killers" with Fernanda Lamas in Hong Kong, isn't lonely after his divorce. He was surrounded by seven beauties at the Honk Kong Hilton bar.

Judy Garland's pals predict she and Sid Luft'll reconcile...Adam Clayton Powell's considering a "revival" tour, like "Elmer Gantry"...Diahann Carroll rented an ocean-front house on Fire Island, but dosn't know how to swim...Benny Goodman's taking oil painting lessons from daughter Benjie...Richard Nixon couldn't resist playing a tune on the piano at the Jolly Sixpence.

STARRING AT DISNEYLAND

The world-famous Mills Brothers, Donald, Harry and Herbert, will star in Disneyland's Vaudeville '67 on Wednesday as part of the week-long series of entertainment features during Easter week.

Biggest Disneyland Easter Week Opens

Disneyland's biggest Easter week opens today. Special entertainment has been scheduled for every night starring such top recording artists as the Mills Brothers, Martha and the Vandellas, the Ward Singers, Hank Thompson and the Seven Souls.

Providing a colorful climax on Easter Sunday will be an Old Fashioned Easter Parade at 2:30 p.m. followed by a flight of two daring young men in their helium filled balloon.

The sneak preview of Disneyland's Summer '67 opens tonight with a Hootenanny of favorite folk music followed on Monday night by a Disneyland Humdinger with Steve Alaimo and Tina Mason of "Where the Action Is" television fame.

SPECIAL HUMDINGER guest stars will be top teen-favorite recording stars Martha dnd the Vandellas, whose best seller hits have included "Heat Wave", "I'm Ready for Love" and "Quicksand".

The Monday night show also features the Mustangs and Humdinger dancers.

The alltime favorite Mills Brothers will star in a brand new Disneyland feature on Wednesday night—Vaudeville '67—an up-to-date edition of Palace-style varieties.

In addition to the famous Mills Brothers singing group, the show will feature ventriloquist Bob Karl and Company plus the acrobats of the Hardy Family and the Disneyland Dancers.

On Friday night, Country Music takes the spotlight as 30-million record seller Hank Thompson and his Brazos Valley Boys take star billing. Others featured in the Country Music Jubilee include Mary Taylor, the Country Cuties and Buddy Cagle.

NIGHTLY entertainment throughout Easter Week includes music and dancing to Bill Elliott and his Orchestra, the Ward Gospel Singers, Young Men from New Orleans, Mustangs, Delta Ramblers, Royal Tahitians and other groups.

Special added attraction Monday through Saturday nights will be the Rock 'n Roll favorites "Seven Souls".

Disneyland is open daily this week 9 a.m. to midnight.

On Easter Sunday, with the park open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., Walt Disney's most famous characters will join turn-of-the-century promenaders in the 12th annual Old Fashioned Easter Parade.

'Minute for Peace' Prayer by All Urged

NEW YORK (UPI) — John McConnell, former newspaper editor and founder of the "Minute for Peace" appeal, urged Saturday that Easter Week be a time for daily worldwide prayers for peace.

Addressing himself to "people of all religions," McConnell said in a statement:

"Let us join each day of Easter Week at 1900 Greenwich mean time (5 p.m. PST) in faith for peace in Vietnam. This is an appropriate time, for it is the moment when the United Nations charter was signed in 1945 and it has been designated a 'minute for peace.'

"Let each individual who believes in the power of prayer, of faith, of good will, join with others each day during Easter Week at the time of minute for peace, 1900 GMT, conscious of being linked with others throughout the world at that very moment as they pray for peace, or purpose peace in their hearts and minds."

McConnell, 52, of Oakland, Calif., stated "Minute for Peace" in 1963 shortly after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, whose death in Dallas was announced at 1900 GMT, or 1 p.m. Dallas time. He was at the time editor of the weekly newspaper, the Mountain View Pictorial, in Mountain View, Calif.

"Minute for Peace" prayers have had the endorsement of the United Nations and been broadcast throughout the world since McConnell began promoting the idea.

"... the last of the HOOPERS"

BENTLEY Continental with 'Coachwork by Hooper'

Few words within the auto industry can match company with BENTLEY.

Never more will there be Coachwork by Hooper.

This Continental Classic was hand-crafted as one of the last two 'Hoopers.' One went to the French Riviera; this one came to Pasadena.

During its 57,000 miles of travel, it has received the exceptional care and maintenance befitting a world renowned passenger car. If you enjoy being tansported in the Bentley manner, call Mr. Harrington at 796-0311 (days) to arrange to see this masterpiece. It is the only one in the U.S. and one of the two in the entire world. (The price is $12,000, but please discuss it discreetly in the presence of "Lady Bentley" for she is most sensitive about bargain prices. Thank you.

UCLA, 80-64—On to Louisville!

SUNDAY Sports
Independent-Press-Telegram
SUNDAY, MARCH 19, 1967 SECTION S—Page S-1

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

CORVALIS, Ore. — The UCLA Bruins are still unbeaten, but they discovered Saturday night that not everyone faints and falls at the sight of them.

Coach John Wooden's sophomore-dominated team had to go at full speed all the way to turn back stubborn University of Pacific, 80-64, and win their fourth NCAA Far West Regional basketball championship in five years Saturday night before 8,628 spectators at Gill Coliseum.

Only the fittest survived the gruelling game, probably the most physical of the season for the Bruins, who remained unbeaten in 28 starts and earned a trip to Louisville for the national finals Friday and Saturday.

UCLA will face another rough-and-tumble team, Houston, in the first round. Dayton and North Carolina clash in the other first-round game of the four-team field.

Texas Western, defending NCAA champion, settled for third place Saturday night, edging Wyoming, 69-67.

Although UCLA wound up with a 16-point margin over UOP, it did not dominate the Tigers as it had Wyoming Friday night and many other teams during its string of victories.

In fact, without a strong performance from Lew Alcindor, the Bruins might have been a victim of the shockers that seemed to prevail in regional competition around the country.

Alcindor, rough-housed most of the game, scored 38 points and came through with crucial baskets a couple of times when the Bruins appeared to be fighting the jitters.

UOP players assigned to defense Lew committed nine fouls, which Alcindor converted into 12 points in 14 attempts from the free throw line.

The bruising he had taken finally evoked a rare display of temper by Lew, who committed two fouls in the late action while striking back at his tormentors.

It's probably a tribute to the Bruins that they were able to turn in a mediocre performance and still defeat a team that was having a good night and had won 21 consecutive games.

SPRING IS SPRUNG . . . EXCEPT WHITMER IS OUT

Cal State Long Beach's Ken Whitmer bounds toward first base in 10th inning but to no avail as Pepperdine first baseman Dave Bonham already has gloved ball. Bob Wuesthoff's 49ers went on to edge Peps, 2-1, in 12 innings Saturday.

TEXANS DRAW UCLA

Houston, NC, Dayton Advance

Combined News Services

Tall and talented Houston won the right to meet unbeaten UCLA in the NCAA semifinals at Louisville, Ky., next week by beating Southern Methodist, 83-75, in Saturday night's Midwest Regional final at Lawrence, Kan.

In the other bracket, North Carolina topped Boston College, 96-80, in the Eastern Regionals at College Park, Md., while Dayton took a 71-66 overtime decision from Virginia Tech in the Mideast at Evanston, Ill.

Houston lost a 14-point lead to an incredible Southern Methodist rally but all-America Elvin Hayes made the big points and rebounds in the stretch.

Little Denny Holman's ball-stealing, floor play and shooting ignited the amazing SMU rally which tied it twice at 71-all and 72-all after Houston seemed to have it wrapped up 68-56 with seven minutes left.

Houston's suffocating zone defense and tall, massive rebounding front line was the difference.

The 6-foot-8½ Hayes made the big goal, a jumper from the keyhole with 1:57 left for a 76-73 Houston lead. Hayes finished with 31 points and 11 rebounds as he hit 14 of 27 field shots.

Kansas rode Jo Jo White's 22-point scoring, ball-stealing and passing to a 70-68 victory over Louisville in the third-place game.

Bob Lewis and Larry Miller led a North Carolina bombardment over a tight Boston College zone defense.

Lewis scored 31 points with some deadly corner shooting and Miller netted 22 for the Tar Heels, champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Chris Thomvorde scored 22 points and a tight Tiger defense held Sonny Dove to 12 as Princeton defeated St. John's, 78-58, in a consolation game opener.

Dayton's tourney-seasoned Flyers pumped in seven points in overtime to grab their victory from unheralded Virginia Tech.

The Flyers were led by Don May's 28 points and needed a strong finish to tie it at 64-64 at the end of regulation time.

Regulation time ended in the 64-64 deadlock after Don May scored five free throws in a Dayton spurt which almost erased a 65-52 Tech lead. Then Glinder Torain tied it for Dayton on a free throw with 1:48 left.

The Gobblers made the mistake of trying to stall for a final shot and a jump ball was called because of failure to move the ball with 22 seconds left.

Dayton got the jump and called time with 17 seconds left, but Bob Hooper's side shot missed for the Flyers with six seconds left and the overtime resulted at 64-64.

In the overtime, the Ir-

49ers Win as Aztecs Come Up Point Shy

By JOHN DIXON

Cal State Long Beach, which hasn't lost a track meet this year, kept its record intact Saturday — barely.

Trailing San Diego State by some 10 points much of the time, the 49ers first went in front, 39-38, with a one-two finish in the ninth event.

They led 64-63 with two events remaining, and a sweep of the first, the triple jump, gave them a decisive 73-63 advantage. Final score favored Long Beach, 76-69.

The meet, conducted smartly in sunbathing weather on the 49er track, produced several significant achievements.

—The conquest of the nation's No. 1 college division team of 1966 gives Long Beach slight title favoritism in the CCAA dual meet race.

—Freshman Ed Ricke indicated potential rivalling almost anyone in America by winning the mile in 4:09.4 and half-mile in 1:53.5.

—San Diego star Don Shy, capable of scoring in half of the events, did not compete in one.

—George Frenn of the Pasadena Athletic Assn. hettered the world record in a special 56-pound weight throw.

Ricke, No. 2 half-miler in the Southland last year at Millikan High, where he peaked at 1:52.1, trailed by five yards after 440 yards Saturday, but he assumed the lead as he pleased and won going away.

His mile mark snipped 9.4 seconds from his career pinnacle, and even bettered his season's goal of 4:10. Ricke's next target is a 1:50 half-mile.

"I can't place a limit on this fellow," enthused coach Dick Reese. "The mile was his first serious

Illinois' Big Ten Ultimatum Up Tuesday - But Loophole Found

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Big Ten Saturday gave the University of Illinois until Tuesday to fire three coaches or be indefinitely suspended from the conference because of the school's $21,000 slush fund scandal.

But the faculty representatives who issued the order left a wide door open for Illinois to regain conference standing — conceivably with the three coaches still in their present jobs.

Illinois president David Dodds Henry said he would have no immediate comment on whether Illinois would follow orders and fire football coach Pete Elliott, basketball coach Harry Combes and assistant basketball coach Howie Braun.

Nevertheless Henry looked relieved after his months-long battle to save the coaches' jobs while at the same time accepting punishment for illegal handouts to its athletes.

Illinois' decision will come after Henry meets today with the board of directors of the Illinois Athletic Assn. and the Illinois Senate Committee on Athletics.

Elliott expressed disappointment Saturday night at the Big Ten's order to fire him.

"It certainly isn't the best news I've ever heard," he said. "I want to talk to the administration people. I don't think I should say anything until then."

Combes, also marked for dismissal as punishment for the coaches' knowledge of an illegal slush fund for athletes, said he "preferred not to comment on it now."

"I am qualified to teach other subjects if I must quit as an intercollegiate athletic coach," Combes said.

If Illinois does not fire the coaches by next Tuesday, the faculty representatives ruled, the university — a venerable member of the Big Ten and one rarely touched by scandal — will be indefinitely suspended.

But Mark Plant, secretary of the faculty representatives and new president of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn., left unanswered what would happen if Illinois kept its coaches, went on suspension, and then requested readmission to the Big Ten.

Dodgers Bop Birds

MIAMI, Fla. — The Dodgers scored six times in the fourth inning Saturday night and went on to defeat the Baltimore Orioles, 10-3, in a Grapefruit League World Series rematch.

The Dodgers jumped on Oriole pitcher Ed Barnowski, who was having control problems during the Dodgers' uprising.

Barnowski relieved starter Moe Drabowsky at the start of the inning and promptly gave up a single to leadoff batter Lou Jackson.

The Oriole righthander then walked five batters while getting only one man out on strikes. The walks forced in three runs, giving the Dodgers a 5-1 lead.

The Orioles then called in Dave Leonard to pitch, and Leonard immediately balked, forcing in another run.

Jim Lefevbre doubled to right field to drive in Ron Fairly and Ron Hunt before the Orioles could retire the side.

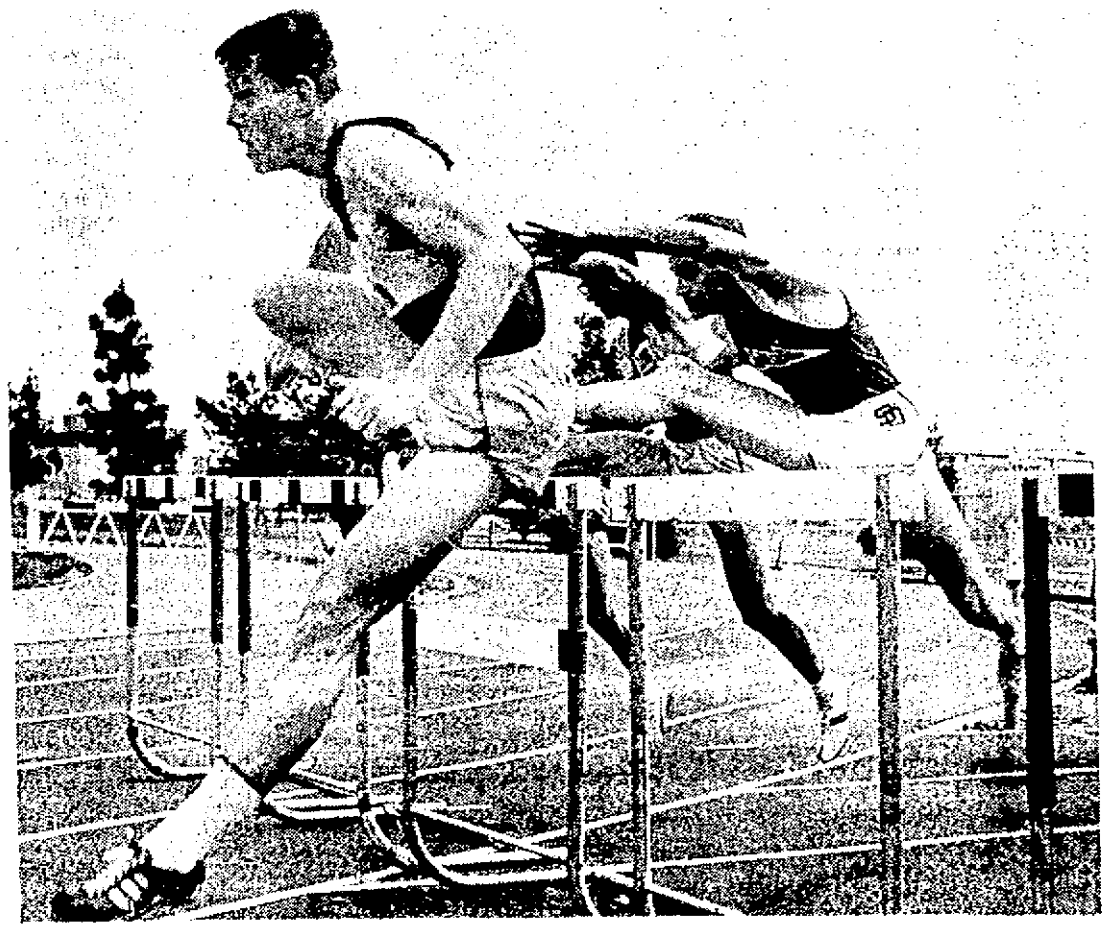

Don Sutton and rookies Larry Staah, Dick Calmus and Jim Roberts held the Orioles to seven hits.

Baltimore scored a run in the first inning against Sutton on a double by Paul Blair and a single by Brooks Robinson. Dave Johnson doubled home two runs in the eighth against Calmus.

The same clubs meet again this afternoon, also at Miami.

49ER ACE STEPS AHEAD OF THE PACK

Cal State Long Beach's Dave Kurrle skims over second flight of hurdles en route to easy victory over San Diego State rivals Saturday on 49er field. Kurrle was timed in 14.5. L.B. spikers edged Aztecs, 76-69, in CCAA dual meet.

Sunday Sermons: Equalizing Games

The Sunday sermons — this time from the readers — and how does this grab you for a starter?

"...with the stall being so popular in basketball today, why not equalize teams by putting weights on the better players as is done in horse racing? This would eliminate the much-maligned stall. The school and coaches also would be relieved. No longer would there be a premium on attracting good players to the school, as they would be the ones handicapped. No longer would coaches need to develop the team members through long hours of planning and hard work as improvement likewise could bring on additional handicaps." (signed) Gary Lynes, 3472 Montair Ave.

What would you put in Lew Alcindor's saddle, 1,000 pounds?)

"All baseball fans aren't crazy, as you seem to think. Couldn't you retire early on a medical and ask to be transferred to the woman's page? Last summer you griped about the length of the baseball season, then in the fall you griped over the length of football season, then again basketball. Have you ever tried applying for position of baseball commissioner? You are so damned smart you should be rich. Just leave baseball alone. P.S. Last summer I wrote you and signed my husband's name. He still is mad at me about it." (signed) Juanita (Mrs. James) M. Peck, 1925 Daisy Ave.

(I don't blame him. You really put the frosting on the cake, Juanita, when you adorned your envelope with all those Easter Seals and plastered my column head and picture in the middle. Have you seen a psychiatrist lately?)

"You being one California sportswriter that I consider unbiased, I never felt you picked a California team as the best, just through prejudice. I wonder if you agree with me when I say the addition of Hall and Mincher does not make the Angels a pennant contender. First because the team is top-heavy with lefthanded hitters and not one of them seems to be able to hit southpaw pitching. Since they do not have any right and power to alternate them, I can't see any better team than they had last year. Then in the pitching department there seems to be no improvement. I never saw a pennant contender that did not have at least two outstanding pitchers, or at least four better-than-average. What do you think?" (signed) Henry G. McDowell, 1055 E. Market St.

(Gene Autry, Bill Rigney, Bob Lemon and Ross Newhan will hate me, but I agree. In fact, in my early selections for The Sporting News, I tabbed the Angels for seventh place. Now I suppose they'll upset Juanita, who thinks the Angels are GREAT.)

A NEW TWIST (from B. J. Rawles, 400 E. Arbor St., who selected his alltime baseball team, then matched it with that of his grandson, Joe). B. J. wonders which team I'd prefer. Here's the pairings:

Grandpa: Pitchers—Pete Alexander, Walter Johnson, Dizzy Dean; Satchel Paige; infield—Bill Dickey, Lou Gehrig, Rogers Hornsby, Honus Wagner, Joe Dugan; outfield—Joe Jackson, Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth.

Grandson: Pitchers—Warren Spahn, Robin Roberts, Juan Marichal, Sandy Koufax; infield—Joe Torre, Willie McCovey, Bill Mazeroki, Ernie Banks, Brooks Robinson; outfield—Hank Aaron, Willie Mays, Roberto Clemente.

(Obviously you can see the age difference. From what I've read about the oldtimers, however, I'd have to take grandpa's team. But, grandpa, how'd you ever land Satchel Paige on that great team? And, grandson, where's Frank Robinson? Triple-crown winner Robinson certainly merits consideration over McCovey.)

"Your column rapping long baseball games upset me. The longer the game, the better for me. That way I can drink more beer and eat more hot dogs. And, please, don't knock the managers for taking so much time in changing pitchers. That's the best part of the whole game. That way I can go out and grab a beer without missing anything." (signed) Leo L. Garcia, Torrance.

(You learn something every day. I never realized the managers got a cut from the concessionnaires.)

"YOU KNOW the babble match between Cassius Clay and Wilt Chamberlain will never come off. You realize Wilt wouldn't have a chance. Do you think Willie Mays could beat Arnold Palmer at golf...or Palmer could hit a Sandy Koufax fastball...or Jerry West and Jimmy Brown could score a goal in hockey...you've been using a typewriter all your life, but do you feel you could win a typing contest with a group of female secretaries who make their living on L. C. Smith eight hours a day...can the editor of the Daily Trojan turn out a better column than you? Just have Wilt shadow box for three rounds. You would see that during the third round he'd have great trouble being able to hold his arms up to the level of his face. Those limbs Wilt lets dangle at his sides when he runs up-and-down the floor would become awfully heavy when held at shoulder height for nine minutes. Can you feature Wilt going 15 rounds against the fastest fighter in the game? (signed Bill Doherty, 4434 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

(I can't see Chamberlain going 15 rounds, but even though I'm in the minority, I think Wilt would crucify Clay if he cornered him early. Most people don't realize the tremendous strength of Chamberlain...and Clay hasn't really been ripped by any of his pigeons yet. I saw Clay—before he won the championship—in tons of trouble one night in the L.A. Sports Arena when an obscure Pier Six brawler, George Logan, smashed him all over the ring. The bout was stopped because Logan had eye cuts. The match never will come off, but if it did, I'd like to be around to watch.)

"Welcome back, Hank. While I have not always agreed with everything you have stated, still your writings have been a great stimulus to all. It would be a dull world indeed if we all agreed. I watched you once at Blair Field as you scathingly looked or tried to see the scoreboard. Your article on that did much good for all of us. Now we have one we can read. Surely did miss your great column and now, once again, my only dull day is Monday when you do have to have a day's rest." (signed) Gwen H., Long Beach.

Asked whether Illinois could regain Big Ten respectability with Elliott, Combes and Braun still on its athletic staff, Plant said:

"That is a question that will have to be reviewed whenever the petition comes up."

Illinois was not required to sever the three coaches from the school completely. They can stay as members of the faculty, so long as they have no connection with intercollegiate athletics.

UCLA BEATS PACIFIC, 80-64---

It's doubtful, however, that the erratic shooting and poor rebounding that marked their game Saturday night can be repeated at Louisville with the same outcome. UOP is a solid, aggressive basketball team, but probably not in the class of any of the three other finalists.

The Tigers did surprisingly well running against the Bruins, who were supposed to be invincible at that tempo. They were able to set up medium-range shots before Alcindor could get into defensive position near the basket.

Three UOP players assumed leadership roles at various stages of the game. Guard David Fox hit well from the outside in the first half, then forward Bob Krulish, held to one shot in the first half, began finding the range in the second half when UCLA went to a zone defense.

When UOP's 6-7 center, Keith Swagerty, went to the bench for a rest with fouls early in the second half, his substitute, Pat Foley, erupted for nine points in less than three minutes.

The Tigers had a wide edge in rebounds, 50-35, which may portend difficulty for UCLA when it encounters Houston and the Big E, Elvin Hayes, at Louisville.

If the Tigers had any hopes of stalling, they were shot out of this plan within four minutes as the Bruins bolted to an 8-1 lead.

The game appeared to be following a pattern familiar to Bruin followers. UOP, however, refused to cave in. The Tigers, down 15-7 midway in the first half, battled back to earn a 21-21 tie and blew a close-range shot that would have sent them in front.

Alcindor took charge at this juncture, scoring on a short jumper to ignite a Bruin blitz that yielded 10 consecutive points and a 35-23 lead. It was 37-27 at halftime.

Within 70 seconds of the second half, the Bruins shot to a 16-point only to find the Tigers rallying to come within nine points of them two minutes later.

UOP shaved UCLA's lead to seven points, 63-56, with 7:41 remaining on Foley's outburst of points. Baskets by Lynn Shackelford and Alcindor, however, pulled the Bruins away to a comfortable lead and they kept adding to it in the late action.

UCLA hit on 30 of 58 shots for a .517 percentage. The Tigers made 25 of 64, a .391 average.

So. Illinois Breezes to NIT Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Walt Frazier touched off a Southern Illinois point explosion midway in the second half and the streaking Salukis crushed Marquette, 71-56, Saturday for the National Invitation Tournament championship.

Bob Lloyd poured in 44 points, broke a tournament scoring record and led Rutgers to a 93-76 victory over Marshall in the game for third place.

Southern Illinois, the nation's No. 1 college-division team, overcame an 11-point halftime deficit and surged to its 19th straight victory in taking the NIT crown on its first trip to the 30-year-old post-season basketball classic.

Frazier, the Salukis' 6-foot-3 Little all-America, whose 21 points topped all scorers in the final game, hit a free throw and a jump shot with less than 13 minutes remaining and SIU, which had trailed 34-23 at the half, outscored the Warriors 24-4 in the next 6½ minutes.

Moments after the game, Frazier, a junior, was voted the most valuable player in the tournament by sportswriters covering the prestigious event.

Ralph Johnson, who scored all his seven points after halftime, and Roger Bechtold, one of the Salukis' smooth reserves, teamed with Frazier in an 14-2 binge that sent SIU ahead 49-44 with 6:50 remaining. It was the Salukis' first lead since the second minute of the game.

After Brian Brunkhorst drove for a Marquette basket, the Salukis reeled off 10 straight points for a 59-46 bulge and cooly riddled the Warriors' fullcourt press in the final minutes to complete their four-game tourney sweep and finish the season with a 24-2 record.

Rough Stuff 'Good Tuneup'—Wooden

CORVALLIS, Ore. — UCLA coach John Wooden looked upon UCLA's 80-64 victory over University of Pacific in the Far West Regional final Saturday night as a perfect tuneup for the Bruins' battle next Friday with Houston.

"I'd say Houston is a little muscular, too," said Wooden, referring to the physical test given the Bruins by UOP.

The UCLA coach obviously wasn't elated with the Bruins' performance, but said, "We didn't play poorly, although it was not one of our best games."

Wooden sympathized with his center, Lew Alcindor, who appeared to lose his temper a couple of times.

"I believe I'd get upset too if I were in his position," said Wooden. "He was shoved around pretty hard."

Tiger coach Dick Edwards said the Bruins "were too tall inside for us to handle."

"You have to have a man bigger than we have to defense Alcindor," he said. "But we played well on the boards against him." (Alcindor was held to 14 rebounds.)

Edwards said the Tigers didn't intend to stall, but hoped to gain quick possession of the ball after the opening tipoff and go ahead. Forward Bob Jones committed a foul two seconds after the game started.

St. Benedict's Wins NAIA Over Baptists

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Top-seeded St. Benedict's dumped defending champion Oklahoma Baptist, 71-65, Saturday night to win the 30th annual NAIA basketball tournament.

The Ravens from Atchison, Kan., won their second NAIA tournament in history despite OBU's amazing Al Tucker amassing 47 points.

Tucker, chosen the most valuable player in the tournament, set a career scoring record by compiling 471 points in his 15 tournament games, erasing the previous record of 451 set by Tennessee State's Dick Barnett in the mid-1950's in 18 games.

Central Washington, with three players hitting 20 points or more, bowled over Morris Harvey (W.Va.) 106-92 to win the consolation game.

St. Benedict's jumped into the lead to stay at 6:41, 60-58 after a see-saw battle through earlier play.

Angels Lose Again — 'Patience', Says Rigney

By ROSS NEWHAN
Staff Writer

PHOENIX—If patience is a virtue, then on Palm Sunday Bill Rigney is truly blessed.

"I learned about patience in 1941," said the Angels' manager Saturday. "I was with Oakland and my manager, Johnny Verges, kept me in every game although I hit only .208.

"Imagine, that was the age of the .300 hitter and here was a manager patient enough to put up with a guy barely hitting .200.

"Well, the next year he again played me every game and I hit .288. In 1943, the Giants brought me up."

It all came back to Rigney and his general manager, Fred Haney, as they watched the Angels suffer their fourth consecutive Cactus League defeat.

This time Marty Pattin and Felipe Leal were the rookie pitchers introduced to Willie Mays and associates. Mays doubled and tripled and Jesus Alou ripped four singles as the Gigantics won, 6-4.

Now the Angels have yielded 42 earned runs in eight games and the rafters ring with whispers that Haney will dip into the outfield surplus and trade for a starting pitcher.

"I'm not discouraged in the least," said Haney. "We left our big pitchers in Palm Springs so that we could take a good look at these kids.

"I'm not going to rush into a trade. In fact, I haven't had a serious discussion with any other club since we've been in spring training."

The question is, of course, how "big" are those pitchers the Angels left in Palm Springs? Remember, this team did not have one starting hurler with a winning record last year and the current roster of 24 pitchers assembled only 64 major league victories in 1966.

The first trim is slated Monday and the quest for a spring sensation has apparently failed.

"Actually," said Rigney, "of the kids (pitchers) we brought to Arizona, I didn't really expect any would make the club."

Thus, Rigney confides that he would like to carry 10 hurlers this season, and for the edification of I, P-T readers he presented this list of 12 finalists:

George Brunet, Lou Burdette, Pete Cimino, Rickey Clark, Bill Kelso, Marcelino Lopez, Jim McGlothlin, Fred Newman, Minnie Rojas, Jorge Rublo, Jack Sanford and Nick Willhite.

"It will be easier to tell what we've got after the squad is cut," said Rigney. "Neither Fred nor myself are ruling out the possibility of a trade."

Pitching, unfortunately, has clouded the fact that the Angels have collected 44 hits in four losing efforts. The catalysts have been (1) Jim Fregosi, (2) the center field antagonists Jay Johnstone and Jose Cardenal, and (3) Nathaniel Wycliffe Morton.

Bubba Morton, 34, prodded Seattle to the PCL pennant last season and as a righthanded hitter he could be the man to platoon with Jimmie Hall if such a policy is adopted.

He is currently waging a fight for major league survival by batting .545 with 6-for-11. Place Morton's name alongside those of Johnstone, Jackie Warner, Ed Kirkpatrick, Jimmy Piersall and Hector Lopez and it is obvious that the Angels are endowed with outfield resources from which to trade.

Johnstone's .571 average (8-for-14) has stimulated Cardenal to a mark of .400. Jose doubled and singled Saturday and is 6-for-15.

Fregosi, meanwhile, the would-be captain of the Angels, is sizzling. He stroked four singles Saturday, escalating his batting average to .370.

"I'm ready for the season to start," confided Fregosi, who has found his proper notch as the No. 2 hitter.

"It forces me to do the things which are best for me," said Fregosi. "Primarily, hit to the opposite field. I've never felt better at the plate than I do right now."

One of the reasons is that he isn't going to the "plate" as often. He's 20 pounds under what he weighed last year.

ANGLE ANGLES: One of the more interesting competitions this spring is for the job of utility infielder. The current contestants are Don Wallace and Aurelio Rodriguez. Both are at home anywhere except first base. Both played all Seattle last season—Wallace being drafted from the Yankees and Rodriguez being lured from the Mexican League. Rodriguez is currently hitting .333, a bulge of 169 points over his adversary.

Mays is enjoying an amazing spring with 12 hits in 23 at-bats. . . . Alou is 13-for-29. . . . Long Beach's Billy Brown rapped a 430-foot double and threw out Cardenal attempting to score from second on a single. . . . Angels face Cleveland at Tucson today and then return to Palm Springs for nine games, including a Tuesday date in Hollville against the Indians.

Western Union's Long Time 'Pearl'

"... I can watch a game and send at the same time —just glance at the words and look up and watch the game, like a piano player who gets the right keys all the time."—Julius Pearlstein, Western Union operator.

Ask any traveling sportswriter about Julius Pearlstein and you'll get a look as blank as an uninspired piece of copy paper.

But mention "Pearly" and they'll reply, "Sure, he's the guy who sends my stuff out of L.A. Best damn operator in the business."

Talk about sports experts. Any writer who's been in it for less than 25 years is a neophyte compared to this bright-eyed little man, who has shepherded the prose of sport's literary giants for more than half a century.

"Too many to mention," he says. "Ring Lardner, Damon Runyan, Grantland Rice, Lowell Thomas . . . of course, Lowell Thomas was news, not sports, but I worked with him. When he visited the city I used to go up to his room and copy it on Morse. All the adjectives he'd use!"

WHEN PEARLY can roll names like that off his memory, one feels like submitting his next page of copy with an apology. But Pearly insists that sportswriting is better than ever.

"No doubt about it. There's more reporters now than there ever were. One man can concentrate on one certain sport. In the old days a reporter used to cover golf, hockey, football, basketball and everything."

Pearly not only files copy for visiting writers but also for the locals when morning deadlines are pressing . . . George Lederer from Dodger Stadium, Al Larson and Dave Lewis from the Coliseum, Loel Schrader from Pauley Pavilion, Doug Ives and a certain hockey writer from the L.A. Sports Arena.

But that's the easy part of his job. His talents really come to the fore when called upon to do a play-by-play for an out-of-town paper or radio station.

"Just last month I did UCLA and Washington State from Pauley and USC and Washington State from the Sports Arena for a radio station in Pullman," he says. "They don't want to go to that big expense, leasing the wire and the engineers and all that, so I describe it blow-by-blow and they recreate it at the other end."

PEARLY WORKS from a keyboard these days, using modern Telex equipment that links him up directly with the receiver simply by dialing a number.

"I haven't handled a Morse key for about five years now," he says wistfully, "and I miss it. It's a more personal touch."

Surprisingly, Pearly says he can make better time by Morse Code than on a keyboard.

"I've gone as high as 125 words per minute by using what they call the Phillips Code, sort of a shorthand type of Morse where all the words are chopped up," he explains.

Pearly's 50-year career with Western Union started in Pittsburgh, Pa.

"January 3, 1917," he says. "I started as what they call a route aid. It was all Morse in those days. The Morse operator would hang it up on a hook and I'd skate on roller skates, grab 'em off and put 'em on a main conveyor and shoot 'em down to the center.

"After I was there about a month they sent me to school four hours a day. I learned Morse within about six months. I liked it right away."

IN RECENT YEARS Pearly has specialized in sports, and over his career probably has seen more games in most sports than any writer covering them.

"I like my work," he says simply. "I was a maintainer for two years and I couldn't take it . . . inside work, fixing printers. It was a promotion but I just didn't care for it; I'm not mechanically inclined, and I like sports too well.

"They finally quit trying to make me an inside supervisor. I turned it down several times. I could have been what they call a traffic manager, but I wanted sports."

In Pearly's early years with Western Union he tapped out Morse play-by-plays on boxing, baseball, hockey and other sports, later converting to a keyboard, so he knows how to report sports in his own right.

So contrary to belief, most writers don't mind when Pearly edits their copy as he goes.

"I don't think I've ever had any complaints, except once when two fellas had a different date and I changed the wrong one. Usually the reporters just hand me their copy and say, 'Okay, Pearly freshen this up. I haven't had a chance to read it over.'

"If they have the wrong score or something obvious I'll change it, and I sort of hesitate when I see something else that isn't right. Then after I send it I check and if it's wrong I'll send a correction, then tell the reporter the next day what I did. He'll say, 'thanks.' "

PEARLY, WHO will be 66 in April, faces compulsory retirement on April 29, 1969.

"I'll probably keep going to the games, anyway," he smiles, insisting that he never seriously considered becoming a writer, instead of the middle man, himself.

"I've had other opportunities," he says. "Like for instance when I was learning the telegraph. The boy I started with, he couldn't learn. I tell you he was as dumb as they make 'em.

"He finally dropped out and became a furrier's apprentice, eventually owned the place and became a millionaire. And I thought he was dumb."

Matson Sets Record in Discus With 200-Ft. Toss

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Big Randy Matson of Texas A&M cracked the NCAA discus record Saturday in a triangular meet with Rice and Louisiana State, tossing the platter 200 feet, 7¾ inches.

Matson's throw broke a record he established in 1965 during the 1965 Southwest Conference track and field meet—199-7½.

The king-sized A&M senior did not take part in his specialty—the shotput.

Lakers Test Playoff Set Bulls Today

Combined News Services

The Lakers moved into Chicago for their National Basketball Assn. game with the Bulls tonight (5, p.m. PST) without the services of all-pro guard Jerry West.

West sprained his ankle in the opening minutes of Friday's game with Baltimore and flew home to Los Angeles Saturday for an examination.

The Lakers, instead of returning to Southern California, will fly directly to San Francisco Monday to get ready for their playoff game Tuesday with the Warriors.

Tickets to home playoff games go on sale at the L.A. Sports Arena at 10 a.m. Monday. The Lakers play San Francisco Thursday at 8:30 and, should the best-of-five series go more than three games, the fourth game is scheduled Wednesday, March 29.

Chicago gained a playoff berth Saturday, via St. Louis' 102-99 victory over Detroit. The Hawks meet Chicago in Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis Tuesday.

Former New York Knick star and Hawk player- coach Richie Guerin was honored at halftime ceremonies on his career-ending regulation season game retirement. He announced he will coach from the bench after the playoffs.

Lou Hudson broke Bob Pettit's rookie scoring record with a 22-point effort, giving him 1,471 points in 80 games (an 18.4 average) to Pettit's 1,456 in 72 contests (20.3).

Hudson tallied five points in a 10-point flurry that broke a 51-51 halftime deadlock and the Hawks were never headed. The Hawks led by 15 during the third period but Piston Dave Bing pumped home 13 of his 17 markers in a fourth-period rally that once cut the Hawk edge to two points.

In Philadelphia, the 76ers ended their most successful campaign with a smashing 135-119 triumph over Baltimore before 10,326 fans. The Eastern Division champions built a 67-13 record for a .838 percentage — best in the NBA's 21-year history.

Wilt Chamberlain sparked Philly to its 28th home-court win against only two defeats with 26 points, 17 rebounds and 15 assists. Billy Cunningham followed with 23 and Luke Jackson, 22.

Bailey Howell and Sam Jones tossed in 34 and 32 points respectively as Boston rolled to its 18th consecutive victory over New York, 140-123.

Defense Spearheads 49er Grids

By JIM McCORMACK

"Well, we kept our record intact, we've never lost a spring game."

That, in a football helmet, is how the Cal State Long Beach coaching staff reviewed Saturday's spring game, won by the defense, 30-19.

The game climaxed 20 days of spring drills and was an intra-squad affair, the defense getting points for stopping drives, recovering fumbles and intercepting passes.

The offense, obviously, got points for scoring touchdowns.

"The defense always wins this type of game," head coach Don Reed said after the bash. "The defense has seen the offense for three weeks and it does make a difference."

Although the defense won the game, Reed and his backfield coach, Stu Farber, singled out fullback Craig Hastin, as the afternoon's outstanding performer.

Hastin handled the ball 17 times and finished with 91 yards rushing.

The offense had touchdown runs of one yard by Chuck Bishop and 15 yards by Charlie Dunn and a 17-yard scoring pass from Jerry Miller to Tom Sherlock. Doug Giphart kicked one conversion.

The defense received one point each time it forced the offense to punt, or held for downs and three points for pass interceptions.

The defense had three aerial thefts, by Morris Scoggins, Don Denton and Sal Bommarito. Scoggins ran his all the way for a TD, but still received only three points.

Miller had the afternoon's best passing stats, completing 16 of 26 for 174 yards. Junior college all-America Bill Parks was the top receiver with 10 catches for 120 yards.

Keeping with the spirit of Spring Sports Day, two athletes turned in double duty.

Curtis Rogers sailed 22-feet-3 to win the long jump in the track meet and then put on his football togs and gained 47 yards in seven carries.

Dennis Clayborn had a similar accomplishment, winning the Frosh shotput and then gaining 40 yards in nine packs as a fullback in the spring game.

NET POWER DISPLAYED

Long Beach's Fred Suessmann returns serve as 49ers won their own Spring Tennis Classic Saturday, defeating top-seeded Utah, 6-3, in finals. It marked first time CSLB had reached the title round.

effort this year.

"We're simply trying to give Ricke a solid base with volume work. He is very coachable. There's no question but what he will break four minutes in the mile at State."

Shy, a football halfback, No. 2 hurdler in the world and probably No. 1 in the decathlon if he would train for it, may have concluded his track career, although he's not aware of it.

His teammates were grumbling at losing a meet that they might have won had he participated.

His coach, Dick Wells, pointed out, "Shy is not fit to run. He is all tied up with professional football, hasn't practiced all week, may never run again for us."

Shy, a spectator at the competition, said, "I am in the process of negotiations now with the Pittsburgh Steelers. If they offer the right money I will sign immediately. Otherwise I will finish the track season."

Frenn bettered the world record in the weight throw of 45 feet, 7 inches, established by Bob Backus of the New York AC in 1965. Frenn whirled 45-10½, and had a measured four of 47-11. He made it an outstanding double with a hammer throw of 210-½.

49ers Edge Peps; Alum Game Turns Into Artistic Flop

By JIM McCORMACK

Cal State Long Beach's baseball team took care of the cultural part of Spring Sports Day Saturday by displaying a form of artistry that alternated between Leonard Bernstein and Spike Jones.

The 49ers snapped a two-game losing streak by nipping Pepperdine, 2-1, in the first game and their Alumni, 7-6, in the second game.

Paul deMetropolis, getting his first start, shackled Pepperdine's bats, allowing only five hits in 12 innings.

Errors more than base hits gave Long Beach its decision over a makeshift Alumni squad.

deMetropolis should have had a 1-0 shutout, but an error, infield single and a fielder's choice gave Pepperdine an unearned run in the ninth.

Long Beach won it in the 12th when John Weber opened with a single and reached second on the ensuing overthrow. Tony Guggiana bunted for a base hit, sending Weber to third and Jim Sanderson drove in the winning run.

Losing pitcher Dan Lewis, who also went all the way, was going to walk Sanderson intentionally, but got the ball too close to the plate and the 49er third baseman whacked the ball into center field for a single.

Long Beach managed only four hits off an assortment of Alumni pitchers but six errors by the grads gave the varsity the decision.

In fact, the Alumni, which often is rapped for its lack of support toward Cal State, committed three miscues in the eighth inning to give its alma mater the tying and winning runs.

The game, an artistic flop from the first ground ball to the last strikeout, lost all of its luster when alum Joe Reed, plying first base, sustained a possible broken ankle.

Reed, who is regarded as one of the Southland's finer umpires, singled in the third inning and then injured his ankle in a sliding play at second base.

Dokka Holds Desert Lead by 2 Strokes

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — Arne Dokka, 1965 national publix champ, maintained a two-stroke lead Saturday in the second round of the 54-hole Palm Springs amateur invitational golf tournament.

Dokka, a Los Angeles state grad, shot a second-round 68, two under par on the par 35-35—70 O'Donnell course.

Dokka had a first-round 65 and a 36-hole total of 133. He had a two-stroke lead at the end of the first round and also after the second round in this tournament which ends Sunday.

Two strokes back after 36 holes were Bob E. Smith, Sacramento, Calif., 67-68 — 135, and Frank Hixson, Pasadena, Calif., 68-67—135.

Ed Korylak, Los Angeles, came in at 136 with 67-69; and Charles Weil, Palm Springs, at 137 with 69-68.

'Homer' Sikes in Front by 3

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Dan Sikes, who plan to practice law here when his pro golf days are over, widened his lead to three strokes Saturday at the end of the third round of the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open golf tournament.

The 36-year-old Sikes, an accredited attorney who plays regularly on the course, shot a 2-under-par 70 Saturday to give him a 54-hole total of 10-under-par 206.

Only a double bogey when he went into the water kept Sikes from running away from the rest of the field. As it is, it would take some fancy playing today if anyone hopes to wrestle the $20,000 first-place money away from the hometown hero.

The biggest winning margin in eight previous tournaments this year was the five strokes by Jack Nicklaus in the Bing Crosby National and Arnold Palmer in the Los Angeles Open. All the rest were decided by a single stroke.

Gay Brewer, runnerup last year behind Doug Sanders, had a birdie on the final hole Saturday to take second place with a 71-209.

Playing conditions Saturday were about as bad as the golfers have played in this year. The wind gusted up to 24 mph and the temperature was down in the mid-50s—30 degrees lower than it was here at midweek.

Sikes, who has played the host Deerwood Course more than 100 times, had five birdies on the front nine to make the turn with a 5-under-par 31. At that point, he was 13 under par for 45 holes, six strokes ahead of his nearest opponent, and it appeared the 72-hole tournament may have ended 27 holes early.

But Sikes ran into trouble on the 10th hole when he pulled his shot a bit too much with the wind and landed in the lake. It took him a six to get down on this par-4 hole and it made a golf tournament out of it again.

"It was a stupid gamble," Sikes said of his shot into the lake. "I drove over the lake instead of playing safe because I though the wind might push me out of bounds. I have driven over that lake many times but this time it didn't make it."

When Japan's two professional baseball leagues open their season April 8, an interesting question on the minds of Japanese fans is who will be the best performer among the foreign players?

Four Americans stand a good chance of filling the bill—Daryl Spencer of the Hankyu Braves, Don Blasingame of the Nankai Hawks and Dave Roberts and Lou Jackson, both of the Sankei Atoms.

Only 15 foreign players will be in the two leagues this year. There seems to be a growing feeling among the club owners to gradually reduce the number of foreign players.

Baseball, Bullets in Venezuela

CARACAS (UPI) — The old ball game isn't the same in South America as it is back home.

But it isn't on the field that the touring Kansas City Athletics and Minnesota Twins notice the difference. It's primarily in their own dugouts.

"It makes you kind of jumpy to have these soldiers around in here — particularly when you don't speak their language," said the Twins' Harmon Killebrew.

Heavily armed soldiers in each of the dugouts are only one of the novelties of baseball, Venezuelan style, that the two American League clubs have encountered during their four-game exhibition series in the Venezuelan capital.

The guards were a necessary part of the series. The stadium is situated on the campus of Caracas' Central University, staging ground for Communist terrorist activity and a haven for other anti-government extremists.

The Twins and Athletics didn't know it at the time, but as they took the field for the opening game Thursday night police were battling a mob of rioting students outside the bleachers section of the stadium.

Several shots were fired—their sounds drowned out within the stadium by the music and cheering — and one policeman and two students were wounded.

"When we heard about that, the soldiers in the dugout didn't look so bad after all," said Athletics outfielder Joe Nossek.

He got a reassuring grin from teammate Roberto Rodriguez, who, like the Twins' Cesar Tovar, is a native of Caracas and plays winter ball here.

"This is baseball, Venezuelan style," said Rodriguez. "Enjoy it."

There was one man, however, who would not be reassured — Nestor Chylak, one of four American League umpires who accompanied the teams.

3 Hat Tricks Pace So. Cal Peewee Club

Three hat tricks led the Bay Harbor Red Wings to an 11-4 victory over Santa Rosa Saturday night in the California state Peewee hockey championship playoff before 300 fans at Harbor City.

The second and last game in the total-goals series will be played tonight at 7, also at the Olympic Ice Arena on Western Ave. Bay Harbor need only stay within six goals of the northern Californians to clinch the crown.

Claude Boileau, Mike Anderson and Jimmy Ray scored three goals each for the Red Wings. Other goals came from Bobby McKenzie and Rudy Krause.

Goalie John Ford made 21 saves to 30 for the opponents.

Pirates Shade Phils; Indians Trounce Cubs

Pittsburgh's Manny Jimenez sent the game into extra inning with a home run in the ninth and the Pittsburgh Pirates went on to beat Philadelphia 2-1 on Bob Oliver's run-scoring single in the 13th Saturday.

In another extra-inning game, Clete Boyer scored on a New York Mets' throwing error in the 10th, giving Atlanta a 4-3 victory.

Boston nipped Detroit 3-2, Cleveland trounced the Chicago Cubs 8-0, the Chicago White Sox topped Washington 6-0, St. Louis whipped Houston 6-2, Cincinnati got by the New York Yankees 4-1 and Kansas City boomed Minnesota 10-2.

Philadelphia took a 1-0 lead in the third at Fort Myers, Fla., when Grant Jackson, who pitched five hitless innings, scored on Dick Groat's single. Oliver drove in Pablo Cruz for Pirates' winning run.

At West Palm Beach, Fla., Boyer scored when the Mets' Tom Reynolds threw wildly trying to get Adrian Garrett, who was caught in a rundown between first and second. Larry Stahl's three-run homer for New York in the ninth sent the game into extra innings.

Dennis Bennett didn't allow a hit in the first five innings, all he pitched, in Boston victory over Detroit at Lakeland, Fla. Carl Yastrzemski homered for Boston in the first, and the Red Sox won it with a pair of runs in the eighth.

The Chicago Cubs saw their six-game winning streak snapped at the hands of Cleveland at Tuscon, Ariz. Duke Sims and Vernon Fuller each hit two-run homers for the Red Sox.

The Chicago White Sox unloaded seven extra base hits, including Al Eeis' home run and a double and triple by Wayne Causey, in beating Washington at Pompano Beach, Fla.

Chicago catcher Duane Josephson was injured when he was hit by a bat and Washington pitcher Casey Cox when he was hit on the head by a line drive. Neither was hospitalized.

Alex Johnson drove home two runs with a double and scored another in St. Louis' victory over Houston at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Cincinnati took advantage of four Yankee errors and five strong innings of pitching by Jim Maloney for its victory at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Maloney allowed just three hits, including Mickey Mantle's run-scoring double.

Ed Charles got Kansas City started against Minnesota at Caracas, Venezuela, with a three-run homer in the second inning. Charles also singled twice, and Jose Nossek and Ramon Webster each got three hits for the A's.

Trojans Run Away From Arizona Rivals

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — University of Southern California, figured by many to have the strongest dual meet track and field team in the nation, won 10 events in taking a triangular meet with Arizona and Arizona State here Saturday night.

The power Trojans amassed 102 points; Arizona had 41 and host ASU 38.

With world record holder Bobby Seagren heading a record-breaking parade with a 16-foot-6¾ performance in the pole vault, USC set meet standards in six events.

Seagren's world mark is 17-5½. His performance was overshadowed by Arizona high jumper Ed Caruthers, who went over the bar at 7-2¼. This leap by the 1964 U.S. Olympian was the best of the outdoor season in the nation so far.

Among other Trojans who set meet marks were Gary Carlson, discus (189-feet-2½); Dennis Carr, mile (4:02.5); Earl McCullouch, 120-yard high hurdles (13.8), and Geoff Vanderstock, intermediate hurdles (51.2).

Arizona took four first places while Arizona State won three.

BAD BREAK FOR BOSOX' CONIGLIARO

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP)— Boston Red Sox slugger Tony Conigliaro suffered a broken left shoulder blade Saturday when he was hit by a pitch during batting practice.

Johnny Wyatt, a hard-throwing relief pitcher, hit Conigliaro on the back of the left shoulder while the club was taking hitting practice prior to an exhibition game with the Detroit Tigers in nearby Lakeland.

Early indications were that the 1965 American League home run champion would be sidelined for two weeks. The injury was described as a hairline fracture by Red Sox trainer Buddy LeRoux.

Irish Almost Set New Draft Record

Notre Dame, which already has more players in pro football than any other school, had 10 men picked off its great 1966 squad in the first NFL-AFL common draft the past week.

Three others would have been drafted but for some late developments. That would have brought the total to a record 13.

Only one senior regular — John Horney — was passed up by the professionals. Scouts consider him a fine football player, but too small at 5-11, 205 pounds for a pro linebacker, and a little too slow to be switched to a defensive back.

The other three who would have been drafted were Kevin Hardy, 6-5, 274-pound defensive tackle; Dick Swatland, an outstanding 220-pound offensive guard, and Don Gmitter, 210-pound tight end.

Hardy, a "redshirt" who normally would have been eligible to be drafted, reportedly was thinking seriously of passing up his last year at Notre Dame and going right into pro ball.

However, he definitely will play for the Irish next season because of the recent compromise agreement by the owners on redshirts. It was ruled that a player with college eligibility remaining cannot be drafted.

SWATLAND HAS BEEN GRANTED another year of eligibility for having to sit out part of a year with an injury, while Gmitter informed scouts he was not interested in pro ball. A brilliant student, he is staying on at Notre Dame as an assistant coach while doing graduate work.

Two of the 10 Irish players were drafted as "redshirts" last year—Nick Eddy, who recently signed with the Detroit Lions, and Pete Duranko who has inked with Denver.

The others drafted included Tom Rhoades (Buffalo), Larry Conjar (Cleveland), George Goeddeke (Denver), Tom Regner (Houston), Jim Lynch (Kansas City), Tom Page (Minnesota), Paul Seiler (New York Jets) and Allen Sack (Rams).

Sack, a 6-3, 220-pound defensive end who has the frame to carry 240 or more, was a late development last season and played excellent ball the last part of the campaign.

WITH 10 MEN GOING into pro ball from the same team, Notre Dame fell one short of the record.

The University of San Francisco Dons, coached by Joe Kuharich, now head man of the Philadelphia Eagles, sent 11 men into professional football from its last team in the early 1950's.

The success of these men show what a truly great team USF fielded that year when it wound up being "unranked, unwanted and unsigned." Despite the Dons' great record, the various bowls snubbed them.

This was a death blow to the school's football program. A bowl bid would have saved the sport. As it was, football was discontinued the following season.

Among the USF players who went on to pro stardom were Ollie Matson, Gino Marchetti, Dick Stanfel, Bob St. Clair, Ed Brown, Burl Toler, Joe (Scooter) Scudero, Roy Barni, etc.

MEANWHILE, USC HAD NINE players picked, including three who were selected as "futures" last year. The number selected more or less confirms the opinion given us by a prominent scout at the Rose Bowl game that the Trojans had the third best talent he had seen at any major school the past season. Notre Dame and Michigan State were listed 1-2.

A total of seven players from Michigan State were chosen, but four of them were among the first eight to be drafted.

One of the most surprising developments was the selection of eight players from San Diego State's small-college champions. However, one scout indicated some have been over-rated and that they are "longshots" to make the grade.

THE RAMS MAY WELL have pulled off one of the neatest coups of the draft session with their last-minute trade with the Minnesota Vikings when they gave Marlin McKeever (expendable because of Bill Truax) and their first draft pick for the Vikings' Hal Bedsole and Tommy Mason plus Minnesota's second-round draft choice.

In Bedsole, the Rams obtained the outstanding receiver they needed so badly. Mason, of course, is a big gamble because of his knees. But he was one of the game's great running backs and if his knees hold up, he'll be a valuable addition to the club. In good health, these two players are "home run hitters" because they are scoring threats from any part of the field.

WHAT ABOUT THE RAMS' three rivals in the new Coastal Conference of the NF's Western Division?

Baltimore and San Francisco had excellent drafts, while Atlanta obtained three players from the 49ers in a trade for their first draft pick and they also have signed their prize "future" choice of last year, George Patton, Georgia line star.

Baltimore got big Bubba Smith from Michigan State to shore up the defensive line and as many as six others, including "futures," who may be able to win berths on the roster.

San Francisco's selection of Florida quarterback Steve Spourrier, Heisman Trophy winner, apparently will set up one of the winter's biggest trades involving either John Brodie or George Mira.

A testimonial dinner for Gene Patz of Banning High will be held Saturday night, May 20, at the Lafayette Hotel, a group of Pilot alumni announced.

Patz, former teacher and coach, is retiring at the end of the school term after 40 years at the Wilmington school, which he has served as registrar in recent years.

Several of his Bee football teams also won Marine League championships.

Avalon Blvd.; Harbor Hardware, 637 Wilmington Blvd.; Slamper's Liquors, 1014 Wilmington Blvd.; Joe's Liquors, 509 West Anaheim St.; Tijuana Restaurant, 1707 East Pacific Coast Highway; Smart and Final, 926 East Anaheim, and at 927 Avalon Blvd.

YESTERDAY'S HEROES

McLarnin Recalls His Worst Beating

Jimmy McLarnin fought 12 world champions during a 77-bout boxing career, yet his toughest fight was with a man who never held a title.

"The old Fargo Express, Billy Petrolle, hit me on the temple in the first round of our fight in 1930 and I don't remember a thing about the next nine rounds," says McLarnin. "He gave me my worst beating."

There were few other beatings for McLarnin, who lost only 11 bouts and fought for world titles five times.

After struggling to make weight and losing a lightweight title bout to Sammy Mandell in 1928, McLarnin stepped up to the welterweight division and won the championship with a first-round knockout of Young Corbett III on May 29, 1933. Jimmy then engaged in three classic title bouts with Barney Ross, winning the middle match.

Now 59, a trim 163 and a successful executive with a metal plating company in Paramount, McLarnin sees few fights, yet follows boxing closely. "I'd call Cassius Clay a great fighter," he says. "If that basketball player (Wilt Chamberlain) ever fights Clay, he'll find that conditioning for boxing is different than for basketball. I figure he'd run out of gas in a round and a half."

McLarnin and wife Lillian have four children—three daughters grown and living away from the family's Glendale home, and a son, James Jr., 13. "Jimmy Jr. is a good athlete but I would certainly not encourage him to be a boxer," says McLarnin. "That's a real hard road."

The former "Baby Face" of boxing reveals he tacked two years onto his age when he applied for a California license in 1924. "I had just turned 16 but told the authorities I was 18," he recalls. "I had to eat and boxing was the only way I knew how to make money."

McLarnin says he was fortunate to have Pop Foster as manager. "He was like a father to me and brought me along carefully," Jimmy says.

So close was the relationship between fighter and manager that Foster left his entire estate of $258,000 to McLarnin when he died.

They won't have to hold any benefits for Jimmy McLarnin.

Blades Lose at Victoria, 7-5

VICTORIA (CP) — The Victoria Maple Leafs improved their Western Hockey League playoff hopes considerably here Saturday night by defeating the Blades, 7-5, in a wide-open, hard-skating game.

The result moved the Maple Leafs into a fifth-place tie with the Blades, both clubs only two points behind the California Seals, with all three having eight games left to play.

Newcomer Garry Veneruzzo, brought up from Tulsa Oilers of the Central League a week ago, led the Leafs with two goals and an assist.

Other Victoria goals were scored by Milan Marcetta, Bob Barlow, Autcrickson, Steve Witiuk and Lou Jankowski who scored into an open net with just one second left to play.

Norm Johnson and Mel Pearson each scored twice for the Blades with Bill Orban getting the other goal.

The Leafs outplayed the Blades most of the way, although the Blades shot out to a 2-0 lead in the first few minutes.

The Blades, opening a five-game trip, play at Portland tonight.

JACK COOKE'S SECRET

Red Kelly Coach of Kings

By RICH ROBERTS

The Independent, Press-Telegram has learned exclusively and on high authority from a reliable source that Bud Wilkinson has NOT been offered the job of coaching Jack Kent Cooke's Los Angeles Kings.

He is about the only one who hasn't.

Several of hockey's bigger names have told Cooke, "Thanks—but no thanks," and it has been a painfully prolonged quest for the man who will guide the National Hockey League expansion club in Long Beach next fall.

However, the last one said "yes." He is signed and sealed but won't be formally delivered to the breathless public until after next month's Stanley Cup playoffs, in which he will be a participant.

All signs point to Leonard Patrick (Red) Kelly, who is in his 20th NHL season as center for the Toronto Maple Leafs. And if it isn't Kelly, it's teammate Allen Stanley, an NHL defenseman for 19 years.

Cooke hasn't announced an appointment as general manager, either, but it's the worst-kept secret in hockey that Larry Regan, also a former NHL player, will simply change titles from chief scout at the appropriate time.

Apparently Kelly, a former member of Parliament, who will be 40 in July, decided to retire after this season and accept Cooke's offer.

The alternative would be submission into the expansion draft in June, which would leave him to play out the twilight of his career in a less glamourous atmosphere . . .

Another expansion coaching job officially open is at Minneapolis-St. Paul, but Blade coach Ferny Flaman is close to agreement there.

Flaman, on a one-year contract with the Blades, whose future is completely in doubt (we'll get into that), has met several times with Wren Blair, top executive of the Minnesota North Stars.

The California Seals' coaching post was supposedly filled by Rudy Pilous, who doubles as general manager, but the Seals' owners are convinced that hockey players won't play hockey for Rudy.

Pilous won a Stanley Cup with the Chicago Black Hawks in 1961, but every time he leaves the Seals to go scouting and turns the club over to center Charlie Burns, they win.

When Rudy is home the Seals lose, and the pattern has become too regular to be considered a coincidence.

Flaman also was mentioned for that job but insisted—and we believe him — that he hasn't been approached in any way.

Bert Olmstead, the Vancouver coach who couldn't bargain with Cooke, is first in line at Oakland now . . .

Lynn Patrick, former Blade boss and now general manager of the new St. Louis Blues franchise, figures the NHL's draft plan for goaltenders isn't as good as it looks.

Under the plan, each present NHL club will protect one goalie, allow the next to be drafted, then protect a third.

But does that mean that expansion teams will get a crack at, say, either Glenn Hall or Dennis DeJordy of the Black Hawks?

"What's to keep them from trading one of them before the draft for a top skater?" Patrick suggests. "I'm sure that's what they'll do. We won't get a shot at too many of the good ones."

The Blades' future rests largely on the outcome of their litigation with Cooke, which should come to a head by the end of the month.

In the meantime, NHL president Clarence Campbell, voicing the impatience of the Board of Governors, has asked Cooke and Blade owners Dan Reeves and Jim Piggott to get together.

Possibilities? Several.

The interests could merge, with Cooke retaining control.

Cooke could produce a handsome settlement — which is unlikely, because he's had trouble financing his Forum in Inglewood without worrying about indemnities.

Or the Blades, failing in court, could sue the NHL on anti-trust grounds . . . i.e., for putting them out of business.

In that event, they might continue to operate next season in opposition to the Kings to demonstrate the injury to their operation.

TOROS OPENER SET SATURDAY IN L.B.

The Toros Soccer Club begins its final week of workouts Monday before its first game in history Saturday at 2 p.m. at Veterans Stadium against the Philadelphia Spartans.

The Southland's entry in the National Professional Soccer League should be at full strength for its debut. Coach Max Wozniak has been drilling 14 players daily, and all are rounding into excellent condition.

Cirilo Fernandez, who has been playing for Club Emelec in Ecuador, is expected to join the team in time for the game. In addtion, Toros general manager Dan Tana is negotiating to sign one more foreign star before the season begins.

Wozniak has not decided which 11 players will start Saturday. Right now he has forwards Manuel Abaunza, Davit Coskun, Eli Drrante, Mihalj Mesarus and Helmut Weiss; halfbacks Lucio Calonga, Ronald Crisp, Dragan Djukic, Ronald Mata and Novak Tomic; fullbacks Herbert Lenzinger and Miroslav Milovanovic; goalkeepers Bagoje Vidinic and Lothar Springer.

Despite the fact the Toros have been hand-picked from eight different countries, it appears that three Yugoslavians—Vidinic, Tomic and Milovanovic, will be assured of starting spots. All three are soccer super-stars.

Against Philadelphia, however, the Toros should run into stiff competition. The Spartans could become a title contender in the NPSL's Eastern Division. Coach John Szep has rounded up a squad dotted with players from England, Peru, Argentina, Canada and Holland.

After their Long Beach opener, the Toros will play all their home games in the Los Angeles Coliseum. They'll have Sunday afternoon games on April 2 against California and April 9 against Chicago before starting League competition on April 16.

Angel All-Stars Test Long Beach

The Angel All-Stars, which will perform this summer in the Stan Musial League, will invade Blair Field today for a 1:30 battle with the Long Beach Rockets.

The All-Stars are youngsters in whom the Angels are interested and Angel boss Bill Rigney and general manager Fred Haney plan to enter the team in as many exhibition games and leagues as possible for the upcoming campaign.

Don Rowe will be on the mound for the Rockets, which cease operations April 9 until next October.

Olympics Building Questioned

MEXICO CITY (AP) — How goes construction for the 1968 Olympic Games? The answer depends on who replies.

Optimists say 60 per cent of the Olympic facilities are under construction or finished.

Pessimists point out ground has not yet been broken for the Olympic Village, the Olympic swimming pool nor the Olympic velodrome. In fact, the only construction in progress is on the Sports Palace, the rowing canal and a fancy building to house the Olympic Organizing Committee.

It is all really a problem of semantics. Little has been finished since Mexico won the right to host the 19th Olympiad.

But the facilities exit now for track events, soccer, horsemanship and several indoor ports.

The idea of the Olympic Organizing Committee all along has been to build only those facilities it must, using existing facilities whenever possible.

Mexico wants to prove that a developing country can host the games. This is the first Olympiad for Latin America and really the first in what might be called a lower middle class economy.

So everything is being built with an eye to the future. The Olympic Village is to become a government housing project. All other new installations will be used for future sports events, such as the 1972 World Cup soccer tournament.

Total cost for the 1968 games probably will amount to $60 million, a fraction of what the games cost Tokyo.

Pedro Ramirez Vazquez, president of the Olympic Organizing Committee, has repeatedly said construction of new facilities is being delayed until the last possible moment so there won't be a lot of empty buildings standing around draining money for months.

Critics say this is being unrealistic because problems could delay construction and mean Mexico would not be ready by Oct. 12, 1968.

Some problems have already come up. They were serious enough to cause some changes in plans.

The original idea was to house all athletes, coaches, newsmen and some officials at the Olympic Village. The plans were for housing for about 10,000.

But the 98-acre Olympic Village tract is on a lava bed and this lava caused difficulties when engineers and construction men started thinking about sewage and underground utility lines.

So the size of the village probably will be reduced as much as possible, probably to space for about 8,000.

Ramirez Vazquez insists it will be located at the original site and the apartment-style housing will be large enough for all athletes, coaches and some newsmen. The large part of the visiting sports writers will be housed in a centrally-located hotel.

Construction started last November on the Sports Palace, site of basketball and perhaps other indoor events. The cycling velodrome across the street has not been started.

Dredges are widening and deepening the one long, straight canal at the Floating Gardens of Xochimilco for the canoeing and rowing events.

And the Olympic office building on the southern edge of the city is developing right on schedule.

University Stadium — the main stadium for the Olympics — is being enlarged somewhat and the turf and track replaced.

Aztec Stadium, with seats for 100,000, was finished last year and will be used for Olympic soccer. A roof is being built over part of it now.

Plans were ready for the Olympic swimming pool when a debate started over whether it should have a roof. The committee decided a roof was essential and the plans went back to the drawing board. Now there is only a sandy neighborhood soccer field there.

Committee officials say all the construction will be in progress by the end of April.

U.S. Skaters Stun Swedes, Face Russia

VIENNA (AP) — Marty Howe of Colorado Springs, Colo., slammed in a goal with 10 minutes left Saturday and brought the United States a 4-3 come-from-behind upset over Sweden in the first round of the World Hockey Tournament.

Defending champion Russia, Canada and Czechoslovakia — the three favorites — earlier had scored easy victories.

Howe, a 29-year-old former Denver University star, scored the tie-breaker for the U.S. at 9:22 of the final period — while the United States was a man short.

Sweden a solid favorite over the U.S. team, held 1-0 and 3-2 leads before the Americans staged comebacks behind the spectacular goal tending of Carl Wetzel of Detroit.

The Americans play the powerful Russians today in the round-robin tourney.

Wetzel, 27, finished with 36 saves, including at least two breakaways in the hectic middle period. Arne Palmquist and Nils Nilsson each skated in on Wetzel alone, but each time Wetzel turned them back.

Nilsson scored twice for the Swedes, opening the scoring in the first period and again early in the second.

Killy Leads France to Narrow Ski Victory

VAIL Colo. (UPI) — A flying French ski team led by Jean-Claude Killy wrapped up the team title of the world series of skiing in Vail Saturday, but their show was nearly stolen by the scrappy Austrians.

Killy, undisputed ruler of men's competition, won his seventh race in a row Saturday, his seventh downhill of the season and gave his team the championship by three narrow points. Killy's winning time was 128.58 seconds.

The French finished the last team race of the year with 231 points. The Austrians were second with 228. The Americans, far out of the running in the downhill, were third with 148, the Swiss were fourth with 123 and the Canadians, most of their points coming from Nancy Greene, were last with 80.

Killy now has swept all international races held this year in America.

Today Killy will go after a maximum total of 225 World Cup points in a special giant slalom. Killy has won the men's cup but a three-way battle for the women's world championship still is underway, with Marielle Goitschel and Annie Famose of France and Miss Greene leading the pack.

SMITH OKAY, BUT . .

Rams Need Man for Last 10 Yds.

By AL LARSON

Now that the Rams have drafted one of the world's fastest runners, Tommie Smith, shouldn't they pluck pole vaulter Bob Seagren next year?

Everyone knows the problems the Rams have experienced trying to score from inside the 10-yard line, and Seagren could merely vault into the end zone.

Or, there's always Ralph Boston, who has long jumped almost 30 feet.

WAS TOMMIE Smith surprised when he was selected by the Rams? Can birds fly?

"Was I?" he exclaimed.

Oilers Cut Blanda, Four Other Vets

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers of the American Football League said Saturday that five veterans, including quarterback George Blanda, have been given their outright releases.

The others are guard-center John Frongillo, flanker Charley Henningan, tackle Rich Michael and fullback John Henry Johnson.

A sixth player, cornerback Bernie Parris, said he is retiring from professional football.

Blanda, 39, Michael and Hennigan were on the original Oiler squad in 1960 when the AFL began play.

Blanda led Houston to two league championships and three division titles and was the AFL's Player of the Year in 1961. The former Kentucky star holds virtually every passing record in the AFL.

Blanda spent 10 years with the Chicago Bears of the NFL before becoming an Oiler, completed his 17th year in pro football last year.

"I couldn't believe it. I hadn't received any kind of questionnaire from them or anything. Four or five other clubs, including the Raiders, had sent me questionnaires, but I didn't know the Rams ever knew I existed.

"A friend called me and said the Rams wanted to talk to me me. That's how I heard the news. I listened patiently to them, but I didn't know what to say, I was so surprised," the San Jose State sprint star noted.

"I want to play pro football. I wanted to come to college to play football originally, but my track career has been more rewarding.

"I probably won't play until after the Olympics, but there's a small possibility I might play before then. It would depend on the money. That's what pro football is all about, anyway, the money."

Tommie played halfback and flanker in high school, but he said the Rams hadn't indicated which he would play, although flanker would be the most likely spot.

As Tommie's brother, Ernie, a halfback at Oregon State, said recently:

"They feel, and rightly so, I think, that he would give himself and the school more prestige if he goes on to the Olympics. Then he could negotiate a real good pro football contract, regardless of whether he plays college ball or not."

Many sprinters, including former San Jose State great Ray Norton, have failed to make it as pro football players, usually because of an inability to run in anything but a straight line. But the Rams are obviously hoping Smith will emulate Bob Hayes, once the world's fastest human and now a star flanker for the Dallas Cowboys.

TITLE MAY GO IN DEEP FREEZE

Draft Closing in as Clay Prepares for 7th Defense

NEW YORK (AP) — In his usual atmosphere of personal crisis, heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay makes his seventh title defense within a year and his ninth in all Wednesday night when he takes on 34-year-old Zora Folley at Madison Square Garden.

The Army draft again seems to be closing in on the all-conquering 25-year-old champion. ut that's the way it was about a year ago and he's had six lucrative title defenses since.

Clay, who now bills himself from Houston, Tex., is a 5-1 favorite, with little betting reported, over the No. 1 contender, a scientific and cautious boxer, from Chandler, Ariz.

The 15-rounder will be telecast nationally starting at 7:30 p.m. PST.

"I'm grateful to the champion for giving me the chance," said Folley, a father of eight who is getting his first crack at the title. "I was No. 1 for years and never came close to getting a shot.

"I think I have a real good chance to win by either a knockout or a decision. I've got experience and he makes mistakes. I plan to take advantage of them."

"Zora is the best boxer among the contenders and deserves his chance" said Clay. "But I am the greatest and he'll go when I'm ready."

"Somewhere between the seventh and 11th round," predicted Angelo Dundee, Clay's trainer. Dundee usually has been close to the target.

Folley, a pro 13½ years, has compiled an impressive 74-7-5 won-lost-draw record, including 40 knockouts. But he has been stopped five times. Clay's record is 28-0, including 22 knockouts, in 6½ years.

The champion will have decided advantages in age, height, weight, reach and speed.

Clay stands 6-foot-3, weighs about 210, and has an 80-inch reach. Folley's measurements are 6-0½, 200 and 77.

Nevertheless, Clay's box office appeal is such that the promoting Madison Square Garden expects a crowd of upwards of 16,000 in the 18,000-seat arena and a gross gate of between $300,000 and $400,000 at prices from $8 to $50. The Garden gate record is $239,959.

It will be the first heavy weight title fight in the Garden in 16 years. The last one was on Jan 12, 1951 when Ezzard Charles retained his crown by knocking out Lee Oma in the 10th round.

In addition to the national television in color, the bout will be telecast live in Canada, Mexico, Japan, and in various European countries including Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Ireland, Italy, Yugoslavia, Finland and France.

Clay will earn about $300,000 on his 50 per cent of the Garden receipts and a $150,000 guarantee from the ancillaries — television, radio, movies, etc.

Folley will collect about $70,000 — bettering his personal high of $40,000 — on a 15 per cent of the gate and $25,000 from the ancillaries.

Clay, or Muhammad Ali as he prefers, has been the busiest heavyweight king since Joe Louis in the late thirties and early forties.

Ski Conditions Holding Up

By DON DONNELLY

As the ski season passes the halfway mark we are blessed with better snow conditions than could be expected.

In our local mountains we should expect spring snow with occasional rocks — if not all rocks — but thanks to the recent storm activity we have excellent packed powder throughout the San Gabriel and San Bernardino Mountains.

The Utah Colorado and Lake Tahoe resorts all have lots of snow pack while Mammoth Mt. has enough snow to last well into July

. Realizing the impact of skiers on the economy, many Long Beach businesses are catering increasingly to skier interests . . . with impressive results.

Area ski shops are featuring mid-season sales currently, preparing for next season's stock .

The Barbary Coast, a pub in the Naples area, started its own ski club last season which now is so active it has its own lodge at Mammonth.

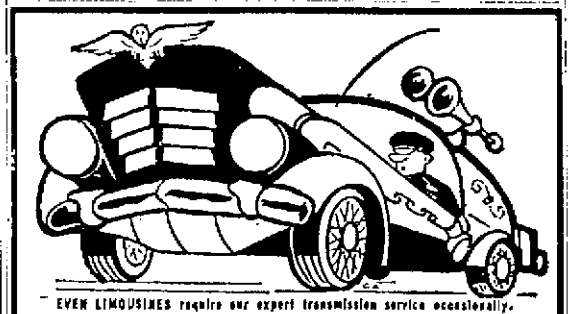

Remember the old Belmont Bowl on Ocean Blvd. in the Shore? Now it is Big John's Pizza Parlor and Billiards.

Starting this week, manager Curt Ward is featuring ski movies in color on Tuesdays at 8 and 10 p.m. and they have opened their doors to ski club meeting.

Skiing is fast becoming the largest participation sport in Southern California with new skier and ski clubs springing up, continually.

And as new areas develop and skiing costs level off, who knows . . . you might wind up on a pair of slats yourself!

True Sportsman Heads State DFG

The best news for California sportsmen came late in the week when Gov. Ronald Reagan announced the reappointment of Walter T. Shannon as director of the Department of Fish and Game. Almost to a man, the fishermen, hunters, campers and others had been campaigning for the appointment of Shannon, a man most respected in the outdoor field.

Shannon, like all others at the capitol, had received his 60-day notice when Reagan took office, and it had been rumored that he would be replaced, but sportsmen's groups throughout the state signed petitions, wrote letters and made telephone calls to Sacramento. The actions paid off.

WALTER T. SHANNON

Shannon, strictly a career man in the DFG, took over the directorship Jan. 6, 1960, being appointed by Pat Brown, governor at that time. The appointment was recommended by William Warne, a power in the Brown machine, but everybody knew that it was not a political move.

Shannon has been with the DFG for 39 years, excluding the period that he served as lieutenant commander in the U.S. Navy in World War II.

* * * *

SHANNON CAME UP through the ranks in the DFG and held practically every job that the department offered. He was born in Redlands and started his career in Southern California. He became deputy director of the DFG in 1952.

Shannon has had so many honorary appointments in fishery groups that it would take columns to enumerate them. It can be said, however, that he is highly respected throughout the world as a fish and game expert.

He lives in Sacramento with his wife, Ollie, and a son, Bill, now 20. The Shannons also have a daughter, now married.

The California Wildlife Federation, representing most of the outdoor clubs in the state, had a big part in the campaign to keep Shannon in the DFG directorship. The CWF pointed out that the California Wildlife Plan, a booklet published by the DFG, was largely the work of Shannon and one of the most comprehensive surveys in the nation.

When Shannon reported to the Fish and Game Commission at the end of 1966, he said that the state now had 1,838,412 licensed fishermen, 699,270 hunters and that the department had planted 63,192,719 fish in lakes and streams of California. That planting program represented a record for the nation.

INSPECTION OF PRIVATE BOATS that will be used on Crowley Lake this year will begin April 15 at Cabrillo Beach, San Pedro, Venice Beach Lifeguard Headquarters and Hansen Lake, Pacoima, or, if you prefer, at Crowley Lake on Saturday, April 22.

The inspection-launching fee is $7.50 for the season and a boat must be pronounced "seaworthy" before it can be placed on Crowley, a body of water that can be as dangerous as the San Pedro Channel.

The DFG has planted 429,718 subcatchable rainbow trout in Crowley. The fish, when planted late last summer, averaged 10 to the pound, but with the rapid growth of fish life in Crowley, each fish should weigh about a pound or more when the season opens April 29.

Lake Wohlford, in San Diego County, opened Friday and Jed Welsh and J. E. (Mac) McClintock sampled it with good results on trout and bass. The new manager at Wohlford, Frank Parks, announced that 4,500 pounds of trout had been planted prior to the opening day.

Wohlford's level is higher than it has been for years and the lake should have a great season. More trout plants are planned. The Lake Wohlford store has been remodeled, says Jed, with a bar overlooking the lake. J. C. Sims, formerly a restaurant operator in Oceanside, is the manager of the bar-restaurant at Wohlford.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — I can only say a big thank-you to the friends and readers who sent cards when it was announced last week that I was ill. There were cards from persons I never knew, but I loved every one of them. I won't attempt to list the senders.

The Long Beach Yacht Club Anglers had their annual trophy dinner and the women, God bless them, almost carried away all honors. The men, too, had a share in the silverware that was handed out, but a boy, John White Jr., 7, with a 17-pound yellowtail, was the star of the show.

Much credit has to be given to Charles Cox and his wife, Myrtle, for the part they played in the presentation dinner. Charles, who had open-heart surgery in 1966, carried on as chairman of the Anglers from his hospital bed. Even on the presentation night, he was still confined to his bed, but Myrtle took over and helped with the presentations.

There were more boating accidents in California in 1966, but fewer deaths. Lachlan M. Richards, state director of Harbors and Watercraft, reported that 103 persons died in boating accidents, six fewer than in 1965. However, boating accidents in California in 1966 totaled 582, as compared to 444 in 1965.

Arctic Blades Pair Cut Mean Figures

Arctic Blades Figure Skating Club's most famous members, Jo Jo Starbuck and Ken Shelley were in Tulsa this weekend, performing at the Tulsa Skating Club's annual ice show.

A week ago the U.S. National Junior Pairs champions passed their USFSA Gold Test in pair skating at their home rink, Iceland, in Paramount.

Sophomores at Downey High, Jo Jo and Ken have been skating together for seven years and compete in solo divisions of figure skating as well as in pairs.

In the 1967 sub-sectional and sectional competitions, they received a unanimous first place from all five judges in each event. They repeated at January's U.S. Nationals in Omaha.

Recently they were honored by their home club by being named "Skaters of the Year" and having their names inscribed on the Dean McMinn Perpetual Trophy, joining a number of Olympic and World champions.

Expert Sees Shortage of Gas Products

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (UPI) — Processors of natural gas liquids have been told their products have become so popular they soon may be in short supply.

Consumer demand for such products as propane, ethane, bulane and natural gasoline is expected to increase at a greater annual rate than that of natural gas, the raw material from which the products are extracted.

John F. O'Leary, deputy assistant interior secretary for mineral resources, sounded the warning in a speech before the Natural Gas Processors Association.

PRODUCTION of natural gas liquids averaged only 307,000 barrels a day in 1945 but jumped to 771,000 a day in 1955 and to more than 1,200,000 barrels a day in 1966.

O'Leary said rural areas, industrial plants and petrochemical firms are seeking even larger supplies of the by-products of natural gas. He said the processors face a long-term job of fitting their booming demand requirement to rigid, unresponsive gas flow circumstances.

A recent bureau of mines study indicates natural gas will continue to claim 20 or 30 per cent of the total energy market through 1980 but with its production growth rate increasing on the average at little better than 3 per cent a year compared with 4 per cent a year between 1960 and 1965 and 8 per cent annually between 1945 ad 1969.

O'LEARY said demand for propane and ethane now is increasing abut 7½ per cent a year and for butane about 4½ per cent.

He told the processors geology also may have conspired with economics to compound their problems.

"The most abundant sources of gas discovered over the past several years — in south Texas and west Texas — are leaner than those you have been relying on," he said. "This may be further compounded if minimum caloric standards are set for pipeline gas quality."

Lean gas is dry and has smaller quantities of liquids that can be extracted.

THE FEDERAL Power Commission is striving to establish quality standards for pipeline gas. O'Leary soon is to become chief of the FPC's Bureau of Natural Gas.

O'Leary said that despite the slower annual growth rate, natural gas production is expected to climb from 16.4 trillion cubic feet to 24.8 trillion by 1980.

"This, in very rough terms, is the size of the gas stream it appears you will have available to you over the next 14 years. But its content may not yield an equivalent increase in extractable liquids," he told the processors.

O'Leary indicated foreign production some day may hold at least part of the answer to future natural gas liquids supply problems.

"There are tremendous resources of natural gas in the Middle East and Africa which have been only slightly developed," he said. "Imports of liquified petroleum gas and liquefied natural gas may be expected to provide a future assurance of adequate supplies if necessary."

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Industrial Aveerage Up to Highest Peak of '67

By JAMES T. McCAUSLAND

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock traders strung together two impressive advances and pushed the Dow Jones industrial average to its highest peak this year in response to an unusually heavy flow of optimistic business news.

Quick progress of the bill to restore the seven per cent investment tax credit and further signs of a thawing in the money market on both sides of the Atlantic were chief incentives for market strength.

The House Ways and Means Committee went one up on President Johnson's request for reinstatement of the tax credit by making the tax incentives for certain business retroactive to the October suspension. Investors apparently felt passage of the bill would rejuvenate some of the laggard industries such as steels and motors and the result was a strong surge in the long ignored blue chips.

The Bank of England's move cutting its key interest rate — the bank rate — from 6½ to 6 per cent provided hopes of similar easing moves here.

THE DOW JONES industrial average soared 21.27 to 869.88, decisively penetrating on heavy volume the 860 level which many chart watchers said was an area of major resistance to any market decline.

The technicians, those who plot the market's course by concentrating on its intrinsic mechanisms and not outside influences, mark certain levels of the Dow Jones average as resistance areas for an advance or support levels during a decline. The 860 area, since it was a stubborn support during the market's decline last year was considered a major resistance area. This penetration of this was considered very bullish.

As usual the list virtually ignored any disappointing business news. Many observers believe the current lag in the economy, to a great extent, has been discounted during the 1966 bear market.

A FAIRLY steep drop in industrial production, the continued slump in auto sales and a decline in housing starts were among the unfavorable items.

Investors preferred to lend an ear to Federal Reserve Chairman William McChesney Martin, who said although the economy presently is sagging, it is not a recession. The Fed boss also said the buildup in inventories was the biggest hindrance to the growth of the economy and saw hope of an economic upswing in the months ahead.

Underlining his statement, the Commerce Department reported the pace of the buildup in business inventories had slowed in February.

Trading slowed from the previous week's record breaking 56,701,825-share pace but totalled a hefty 53,223,148 shares, well above the 36,108,990 shares changing hands in the same week a year ago.

* * * *

DESPITE THE optimism, the advance still was highly selective. Many of the glamor stocks which had been receiving much attention during the "lean" weeks ran into profit taking.

Much of the Dow's strength stemmed from individual performances of the blue chips used in computing the average. The broader based Standard & Poor's 500 stock index gained 1.36 to 90.25.

Of the 1,597 issues to cross the tape this week, which was the broadest market in history, 819 advanced, 624 declined and 154 remained unchanged while a total of 153 issues climbed to new 1966-67 highs and only five tumbled to new lows.

Schenley Industries was most actively traded. After reaching a high during the week of 63 and after dropping as low as 50, it ended at 58½, off ⅛ on a turnover of 1,201,300 shares.

Activity in the issue hinged on merger plans between P. Lorillard and Schenley. On Tuesday, Schenley plummeted 11⅞ on a rumor that negotiations had fallen through. It recovered almost all of the loss the following day after an announcement that the two companies had agreed to terms for consolidation. Lorillard gained 3⅜.

* * * *

THE LOW-PRICED Atlas Corp. was in second place, tacking on ⅛ to 4 on sales of 748,500 shares. It received attention on news it would sell a million pounds of uranium to General Electric.

Chrysler rounded out the top three, picking up 3¾ to 42¼ on 712,800 shares. Aside from general buying of auto shares, Chrysler also benefitted from a seven-per cent rise in new car sales for the first third of March.

General Motors starred for the auto group, however, gaining 4¼ in fairly active trading. Conversely, GM had the largest sales decline because of wildcat strikes. Ford was up 1¾ and American Motors held steady.

STEELS WERE another laggard group which had a good runup. Republic, Armco, Jones & Laughlin and Carpenter Steel each rose more than 2 points. U.S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Lukens shared in the upswing.

Chemicals also seemed to be on the comeback trail. Dow Chemical moved 4⅛ higher. DuPont, which was one of last year's steepest losers, added 3¼ and Union Carbide picked up 3½. Eastman Kodak bucked the trend, giving up a fraction.

Metals were another good performing group. Anaconda lead the section, picking up more than 3. Alcoa, Kaiser, Kennecott and American Metal Climax also gained.

* * * *

A NUMBER of freewheeling electronics met support, including IBM up 10, National Cash Register up 6½ and Collins Radio up 4¼. Fairchild Camera, which declared a 50-per cent stock dividend, rose 5⅝ but most of the gain was chalked up before the actual announcement.

Motorola, Scientific Data Systems and Sperry Rand were losers along with Polaroid, off 10⅝ and Itek Corp., off 4.

Airlines were in demand with a few exceptions. American Airlines rose 3¾ in response to a proposed two-for-one stock split and dividend hike. Northwest, KLM, United, Delta and Braniff were strong. Eastern ran counter, losing 4.

* * * *

DOUGLAS surrendered 3 in the mixed aircrafts. It reported a net loss of $13.9 million for the first fiscal quarter compared with a profit of $4.1 in the same quarter last year. Its proposed merger partner, McDonnell, fell 2⅜. United and Boeing gained.

Wilson & Co. soared 14⅛ on news that Ling-Temco was seeking to purchase the remainder of its common stock. Ling already owns around 53 per cent of the Chicago meat-packing firm. Ling declined 1⅞.

Link-Belt moved 8¾ higher in response to merger talks with FMC Corp, which picked up 1¼. S. D. Warren was up 6½ on news of a merger with Scott Paper, which climbed 3¼. Leesona gained 5½ in apparent response to favorable comments in the company's annual report.

Urges More Money for Colleges

NEW YORK (UPI) — The president of the Ford Foundation said Saturday higher education must have greater financial support in order to free college presidents and other officials for academic leadership.

In his first report as foundation president, McGeorge Bundy said "innovation and reform" are likely to take second place among educators if they are "preoccupied with paying their bills."

"The (college) president . . should be an educational leader, first of all—and such leadership requires high intellectual command of the old and new issues of academic life," Bundy said.

* * * *

"MEN WITH SUCH a command are rare. Today we are in danger of creating a situation in which the best of them will reject the hard life of high-energy salesmanship which a college presidency bids fair to become."

LACLEDE TOWN, NEAR ST. LOUIS

Integrated, Model City a Success

By RUTH FEURSTEIN

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Jerome Berger is a former disc jockey who has brewed his own melting pot.

Berger, 40 manages Laclede Town, an integrated community of 1,000 within St. Louis purposely designed "for people who want the chance to relate to others who aren't exactly like themselves."

"We've got a cheerful anarchy here," Berger says. "It's a place where those who feel alienated can find a place and really be comfortable. It's a place where those interested in other human beings can find real opportunity to communicate.

"When we first thought about building Laclede Town back in 1962, there was never any doubt that this development would be a place for people of all races and nationalities.

"WE SURE DIDN'T meet with much enthusiasm at first. Most people just looked skeptical when they heard the idea and said it wouldn't work."

Now, four years later, Laclede Town is filled to capacity. About 30 per cent of its occupants are Negro, about 10 per cent come from other countries, and the remaining 60 per cent are native born whites.

Berger manages Laclede Town for the Millstone Construction Co., of St. Louis and James H. Scheurer of New York. The development is part of an urban renewal program.

He has never advertised to attract tenants.

"WHAT WE DID was to go out and recruit a core community that would attract others to come and live here," Berger said. "We looked for the boldest, most adventuresome and imaginative people we could find.

"After a while, it was contagious. More and more people wanted to come here and live.

"We continually make an effort to attract diversified people. We'll break our backs to get a talented musician, artist or anyone who will contribute something."

In addition to two and three-story row houses, Laclede Town provides pubs, block parties, several stores and clubs for the tenants. There is a fully-integrated elementary school and the Berea Presbyterian Church.

Because the federal housing administration supplied low-rate financing for Laclede Town, only families with moderate incomes may rent apartments there. But other than the income requirement, the community is "as diversified as you could want," Berger said.

MOST OF THE tenants are under 40 and about half have some post high school education. "The climate of curiosity inspires a lot of people to return to school," Berger said.

A 32-year-old graduate student from Taiwan said he had heard a lot about racial problems in the United States.

"I was really surprised to see a community of so many different types of people living peacefully," Paul Ta-Chun Peng said. "Before I moved to Laclede Town, Americans seemed so rushed, as though they didn't have the time to get to know others. Here, people take the time."

"It's not as though people go out of their way because you're different from them," Mrs. Jean Lightbourn, a 29-year-old Negro mother of three children said.

P&G Modernization Work in L.B. Never Ceases

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS
LONG BEACH, CALIF., SUNDAY, MARCH 19, 1967

By JACK O. BALDWIN

When William Procter, an English candlemaker, and James Gamble, an Irish soapmaker, formed a partnership in 1837 they had two valuable assets: a wheelbarrow and the will to push it.

The enterprising salesmen used the vehicle to peddle their wares door-to-door.

They kept pushing to create an industrial giant whose name today is recognized around the world: Procter & Gamble.

P&G PRODUCTS are found in the kitchen sink, around the stove and floating in the bath tub of nearly every home in America.

From a one-story plant and store in Cincinnati with one helper, the firm has maintained a steady growth in a fiercely competitive busines.. This year — 130 years later — the company still is expanding its manufacturing plants.

THE SPRAWLING PLANT in Long Beach Harbor is one.

"We have been engaged in a constant expansion and modernization program since the Long Beach plant went on-stream in November of 1931," notes Paul Staley, plant manager.

(Three huge stainless steel tanks recently were lifted to the top of the seven-story P&G plant as the modernization program continues unabated. Each tank will hold 60,000 pounds of soap mixture.)

Today, the many manufacturing plants' offices, and warehouses blanket both sides of the Seventh Street peninsula in the Port of Long Beach. It is the harbor's largest manufacturing complex.

"AT THE PRESENT TIME we are engaged in a three-year modernization program costing more than a million dollars," Staley commented.

Ken Austin, community relations representative, said automated equipment and improved manufacturing techniques have enabled the company to hold the price line.

One phase of the hold-the-cost program will be to improve even further the methods for making the company's most popular product -- one that was discovered by accident 89 years ago.

The product, 99 and 44/100 pter cent pure, is Ivory bar soap.

IN 1831 IT REQUIRED eight days to make a bar of Ivory. The mushy mix was poured into large vats and allowed to cool. Out came a 1,000-pound bar of Ivory, four and a half feet tall, four feet wide and one and a half feet thick. It was then sliced into slabs like a large white layer cake.

The slabs were cut into four foot ribbons and finally chopped into bar size.

Now the famous nonsinkable soap is pumped out of a modern machine in a never-ending ribbon, like tooth paste.

IT IS CUT TO BAR LENGTH, stamped with the famous Ivory emblem and wrapped by automated equipment.

What once required eight days now is done in four hours.

Originally the Long Beach plant employed 150 people, working in 22 separate buildings on a 15-acre site.

LAST WEEK, EMPLOYMENT was up to 600. Now there are 43 buildings, a softball field and a golf practice putting green that hits its peak of popularity during lunch breaks.

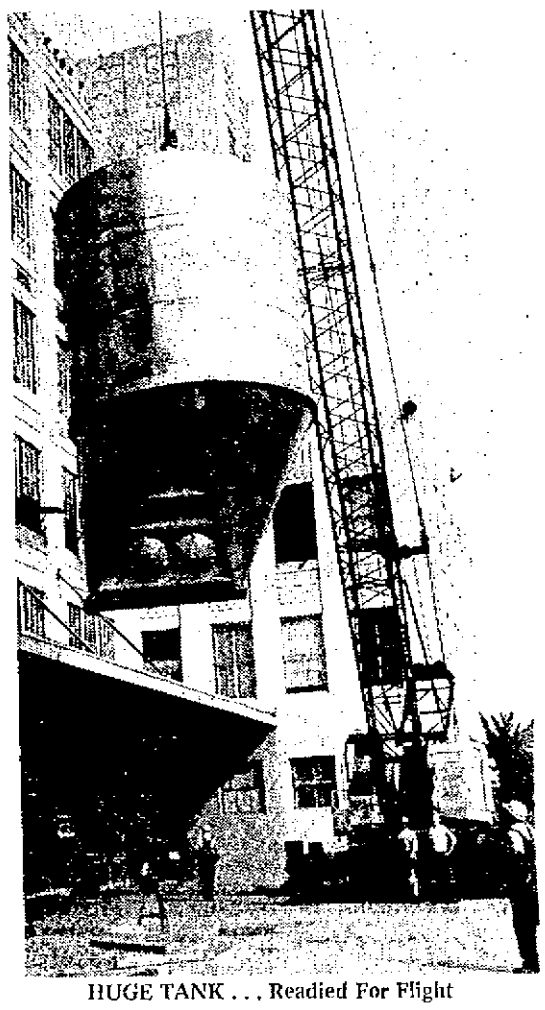

It was in 1878 during a lunch break that Ivory soap was created by accident as a soapmaker left his mixing machine to cat.

When the batch was made into bars—it was found to be so light that a chip tossed into water floated.

ALTHOUGH THE LONG BEACH PLANT currently makes 21 widely advertised products, Ivory is the only product that has been made at the plant since it opened.

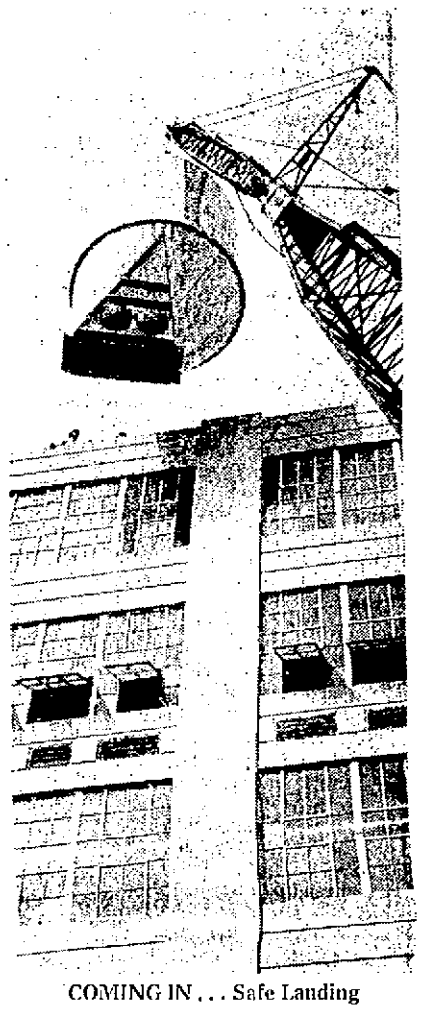

(How many of these locally-made product names do you recognize: Camay, Zest, Lava, Safeguard, Ivory Snow, Duz, Tide, Cheer, Dreft, Oxydol, Dash, Bonus, Bold, Mr. Clean, Top Job, Spick & Span, Cascade, Crisco, Crisco Oil and Fluffo?)

Newest Problem on Communist Collective Farm: Prosperity

New York Times Service

MOSCOW — A new problem is arising on the Soviet Union's collective farms—the blight of prosperity.

According to a study published last week, the rapidly improving wellbeing of farmers is being accompanied by a deterioration of moral integrity and work discipline and an undermining of the development of a "communist psychology."

The study concentrated on the huge Kazminsky Collective Farm in the fertile Stavropol region north of the Caucasus.

THE AUTHORS of the study noted that earnings on the farm had more than doubled in the last six years.

At the same time, the sale of vodka in the village stores has doubled. This was eloquently evident, they said, from the number of drunks stumbling along the village streets in broad daylight.

The report was printed in Komsomolskaya Pravda, newspaper of the Young Communist League.

The writers, Vladimir Logvinov and Aleskandr Yanov, said that instead of organizing discussions of local social problems, the farm officials dreamed up lectures on subjects such as "Space and International Relations" and "The World of the Future in Science Fiction."

FARM FAMILY earnings have risen sharply in the last few yerars as a result of reforms that allow the cultivation of larger personal plots and permit higher produce prices.

Guaranteed wages and pension system also have been introduced in the countryside.

The article laid a large share of responsibility for an erosion of rectitude on the Kazminsky Farm to the arbitrary, one-man rule of the director.

The farm members have lost interest in the collective fields and barns because their views and proposals for improvements are overridden or ignored, the writers said.

AS A RESULT, they added, the farm families have concentrated more and more on private plots and animals and have become increasingly involved in shady manipulations to increase their wealth at the expense of the collective farm.

An indifference to theft on the farm was assailed by Logvinov and Yanov, who described the following scene:

"On the farm sector operated by the Fourth Brigade, women were stuffing bags full of cornstalks before our eyes and those of the director, A. I. Rudenko. They were dragging the bags home and returning for more.

"'YOU DON'T really think that is stealing, do you?" Rudenko said, shrugging his shoulders. 'After all, a team driver will load up a whole wagon and dump it in his yard. And you should see what the tractor drivers take!'"

The collective farm is rich, the director told the writers, so why should anyone worry about theft.

Tolerance of stealing is so great on the farm, the article continued, that when the chief livestock expert was apprehended with 300 stolen chicken the director merely made a bookkeeping transaction and awarded the chickens to the thief as a "bonus."

LOGVINOV and Yanov said that a penurious attitude persisted among many of the farm's 3,000 families, although many of them had hidden away the thousands of rubles needed to buy Moskvich cars—when they are available.

Some of the families have two kitchens, the writers said, but continue to prepare food and eat in a dark corner elsewhere in the house to avoid soiling the showplace kitchens.

Likewise, families were said to force their children to sleep in one bed to save soap on washing the sheets.

Logvinov and Yanov deplored an indifference on the farm to eduction.

"Why should I bother to study?" one youngster asked. "My father only finished the second grade but he lives better than our teachers. He even has a motorcycle and a television set!"

Headrest Manufacturer Welcomes Safety Laws

By SHERM WILLIAMS

The real fight over what money can be made —or lost — as a result of the new Federal Safety Standards for automobiles is on.

Overlooked in the controversy over car safety are members of the Automotive Accessories Manufacturers of America who recently staged an exposition of products with which the hard-bitten manufacturers in a highly competitive business vie for national market.

Typical of those descending on New York was Earl H. Belk, president of Kustom Fit Manufacturing Co. of Long Beach, one of a multitude of West Coast accessory plants.

BELK'S FIRM MAKES A WIDE-RANGING list of products including bucket seats, molded carpets, convertible tops and his big hope for this year, a newly designed headrest.

Belk, though, may not be typical in his views of the accessory business.

Belk's hope is that the new federal standards will impose stricter rules on the construction of headrests. His new design contains several features which he believes provide significant breakthroughs in safety.

"Up until this year," Belk explains, "headrests have been essentially a comfort item with the added aura of safety because they could help prevent whiplash.

"They gave a feeling of elegance and safety.

"THE SAD TRUTH, THOUGH, you might have been doing him a great disservice. Inside that glob of foam rubber could be supporting rod that could be lethal. If it was too wide, it could block the driver's vision to the rear and to the side. If it was too narrow, it could, instead of supporting a head, cause it to twist around sharply, snapping a neck.

"Besides that," Belk said, "the hardware that held the headrest to the back of the front seat could be dangerous for passengers in the rear seat."

Belk thinks his new headrest has solved those problems. Its interior contains a metal core that will collapse under a given amount of pressure. A crash pad extends down from its rear to protect rear seat passengers.

Belk's new headrest was on display in New York, of course, but along with it was another headrest invention which Belk doesn't claim, but which he said caused his firm to snap into action.

"A H. W. Safford of New York City was too impatient to wait for the invention of the automobile," Belk said. "He filed for a patent on Dec. 28, 1869 for an "Improved Head-Rest for Car-Seats.

"NOT ONLY THAT, BUT HIS DESIGN for the mechanics of the head rest was a dickens of a lot better than some of those on the market today."

Belk called in a cabinet maker and had Safford's invention reproduced. Then, he said, "we sat and stared at it in dumb amazement until the message soaked in.

"Put a dollop or two of foam rubber on it, gussy up its design and cover it with modern materials and Safford's headrest would do anything any headrest on the market today would do—give or take a splinter or two." (Safford liked wood.)

"That," Belk said, "is when we decided we would have to do much better."

Revival of Electric Cars Causes New Tax Worry

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

Electric autos to replace combustion engines as a means of curbing smog in California is a dream of planners, some of whom predict legislation within a few years will force the change.

Such a move sounds good in a lot of ways and eventually it might come. But don't rush out and sell your oil stocks or try to peddle a car before it loses full value!

What will replace the gasoline tax if such a day comes? That is the question seemingly overlooked in this dream.

Car owners today pay an average of $1 out of every $3 they spend on gasoline, in taxes of varied forms. Those taxes have built the highways across the nation, most of the secondary roads and have gone far in freeway construction.

PLANS ARE FOR INCREASING the tax on gasoline again this year.

What will be done to replace those taxes if electric cars take over? If heavy taxes will be placed on kilowatt hours used to recharge the car batteries, how can there be a breakdown between battery charging and other home uses of electricity? Or will it be a general tax hike on all electricity used so that non-car owners must help pay, too?

It has been so easy to tax gasoline that our lawmakers will think hard before they kill the goose that lays the golden eggs for city, state, county and national exchequers.

SPEAKING OF GASOLINE, most motorists continually gripe at the high price they must pay for car fuel. They recall the price they paid 25 to 40 years ago compared with today's.

They not only forget the taxes included in the price, they also fail to realize they are getting at least 40 per cent more mileage out of today's product than in the olden days.

Forty years ago, gasoline was merely a derivative of crude petroleum, a distillation of the most solatile substances of the black fluid pumped from depths of the earth.

But there's been a big change. Today's sleek cars wouldn't run well -- if you could get them started — on the fuel of yesteryear.

We can't call today's gasoline a natural product, but a processed material. Science has learned how to take apart the molecules that make up the product called gasoline, to rearrange them and put them together again. Other materials are added that control burning characteristics, prevent corrosion and keep it from vaporizing too quickly.

IT IS TRUE that while science has performed these wonders the price of gasoline has gone up and up. But because of taxes. If you omit the taxes you will find the price of gasoline has gone down.

With all of its scientific treatment, a gallon of gas costs one third of the cost of a gallon of distilled water — without the tax.

Today's regular gasoline has a higher octane rating than World War II aviation gas.

An industry that has utilized scientific know how to produce such a finished product without raising prices certainly can come up with a smog repellant that will clean up the air — if the motor cars are the real cause of air pollution.

HERE AND THERE — Permanent guests at the New Breakers Hotel in Long Beach are covered by medical insurance, G. A. Vigliotti, general manager, announced. Recently remodeled, renovated and reopened, the Breakers is a residential establishment offering carefree living on both the American and European plans. Transient accommodations also are availab.e

The Breakers signed an agreement with the Family Health Program of Southern California, a private insurance carrier, to provide the medical protection, said Vigliotti. "We have the only hotel in the country paying for such a medical plan," he added.

E. F. MacDonald Co., Dayton, Ohio based International sales incentive firm and Von's Grocery Co., have reached agreement in principle for MacDonald to purchase 40 of the 106 Von's supermarkets in the greater Los Angeles area. MacDonald said a detailed pruchase agreement is being drafted for final approval. It will be an all-cash sale. . . . Boradway-Hale Stores Inc., opened its first new store of 1967 in Bakersfield. The three-floor, 150,000-square-foot store is an anchor retail outlet in the Valley Shopping Center, an enclosed mall complex on 60 acres off U.S. Highway 99 in the southwest section of Bakersfield. Other stores to be opened this year will be in Reno in July, Newport Beach in September and Sacramento in October.

IF IT SHOULD BE A BIT consoling to you, at least 32 other of the 47 state legislatures meeting in 1967 will be faced with proposals for new or increased taxes, just like California. If all measures now proposed were approved, state taxes would rise almost $3 billion annually, says the Tax Foundation. So California isn't the only state with a money problem.

Last year when less than half the states had legislative sessions, about $500 million in tax increases were approved, one-third of the amounts initially suggested. Partly offsetting the big increases sought this year are proposals to repeal or reduce some existing taxes in at least 14 states.

These possible reductions, totalling $600 million, are part of package deals involving a shift in emphasis among alternative revenue sources. For example, Michigan would repeal the Business Activities Tax and Washington where the Business and Occupation Tax would be removed.

In at least 10 states, new or increased taxes are advocated to reduce the burden of local property taxes.

So it is bound to be a taxing year all over the nation.

WHILE THE NUMBER OF BABIES has been on a continual decline from its post-war level, new record highs in a population boom are seen for the future, say statisticians for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

Since the all-time high of 4,334,000 in 1957, the chart of annual births has been on a downhill trend. In 1964, 4,027,490 babies were born. In 1965 about 3,759,000 and last year the figure was near 3,600,000. As large contingents of post-war children become of age within a few years, the statisticians say there will be a decided upswing in births.

ARE WE SOON TO BECOME a cashless society in the United States? With the continued growth of credit card business it soon may be possible to go from cradle to grave and never need cash.

Today you send flowers, rent a tux, pick up a car, dine out, get your picture taken, fly, go fishing and many other things on credit cards.

American Express now has a Be My Guest credit card deal that allows you to throw a party at home or away, almost any place in the world. More than 1300 hospitals now recognize Carte Blanche cards for patient care. And most oil companies now have "souped up" credit cards that permit you to buy such things as cooking utensils, silverware, shop tools, record albums and fishing rods. You can use them in leading hotels or motels and charge not only the lodging and meals but items from the gift shop as well.

HERE AND THERE — Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, Japan, recently delivered a huge tanker, the "Jasankoa" to A/S Kosmos Steamship Co. It is the largest among Norwegian flag vessels and the largest export ship ever built in Japan.

Placed in service between the Persian Gulf and Negishi, Yokohama, to carry crude oil, the tanker is 935 feet long, 158 feet two inches in breadth and is 77 feet one inch in depth. It has a draft of 53 feet six inches with gross tonnage of 91,944.29 tons and 157,448 tons deadweight. The main engine, a Mitsubishi marine steam turbine, carried the ship to 17.59 knots on speed trials. It has a cargo oil tank capacity of 197,918 cubic meters.

THE TRADE NAME INDIAN HEAD long has been associated with textiles, especially bed sheets. For several years the company has been diversifying and its latest acquisition is MGM Brakes Inc., and its affiliate, Clover Casting Co., both of Cloverdale, Calif.

MGM Brakes manufactures spring-powered brake actuators for combination emergency and parking brake systems for heavy-duty trucks, trailers and similar vehicles. Indian Head has used "Spring Made" as its advertising theme on sheets. Maybe that's why the spring-actuated brakes appealed.

BUSINESS WEEK index

Steel, Auto Production Dipping

U.S. passenger car production this week is falling to the lowest level since the '67 model changeover shutdowns last August, and is pulling the Index down also.

General Motors' inability to recover quickly from the effects of the recent wildcat strike at one of its key body parts plants was blamed chiefly for the big cut in auto output. Production was 22.5 per cent below a week ago and 51 per cent below the peak production a year ago at this time.

Steel, affected by cutbacks in Detroit, and a general softening in demand for consumer durables, slipped 2 per cent below a week ago and nearly 5 per cent below year-ago levels.

Also on the downside, paperboard production slid 1 per cent below last week's level. Surface transportation showed slippage due to the Washington's Birthday holiday. After seasonal adjustment, intercity truck tonnage was down 3.5 per cent below a week ago, and 4 per cent below a year ago.

Crude oil refinery runs and electric power output both approached their high points for the year. Crude oil runs were up 1 per cent from the week ago level and electric power output bounced back to 2 per cent above last week.

'Big White Steamer' Plans Senior Parties

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

Lachlan M. Richards, director of California's Department of Harbors and Watercraft, has been elected to the board of directors of the California Marine Parks and Harbors Association.

The statewide association was formed in 1945 to stimulate the development of coastal and inland harbors and other facilities for both pleasure and commercial craft.

The association is composed of boat owners, harbor districts, counties, cities, and representatives of the boating industry.

OPERATORS OF THE CRUISE SHIP Princess Patricia making fortnightly runs to Mexico have announced they will add a new luxury ship to the schedule to operate during the winter-spring 1967-68 season.

Max J. Linder, vice president of Princess Cruises, said the new 350-foot, air-conditioned vessel will sail from the Port of Los Angeles to La Paz, Puerto Vallarta, Acapulco, and Mazatlan.

She will sail on alternate weekends with the Princess Pat beginning in December. The 23-knot motor vessel will carry 250 passengers in "luxurious accommodations, facilities, appointments and comfort" claims Linder.

The new ship, as yet unnamed, will be in the Princess class, according to Linder.

FOUR FLOATING ALL-NIGHT parties exclusively for senior high school graduates will be held in mid-June aboard the "Big White Steamer," the SS Catalina, sailing out of the new Catalina Terminal in the Port of Los Angeles.

Charlie Stillwell, commodore of the famous cruise ship, says the ship will leave the terminal at 10 p.m. on June 15, 16, 22 and 23.

"We'll have two dance bands on board the ship and two at the Casino Ballroom on the island," says Stillwell.

The ship is to return to the mainland in the predawn hours after the grads enjoy a theatre and dance party and a hearty breakfast.

WESTEC Speaker Hits at Expediency

Special to the Progress Section

"There is a tendency today to forsake long-range research and planning in favor of short range expediency," Dr. George A. Roberts, president, Teledyne, Inc., Hawthorne, told the WESTEC keynote luncheon in the Century Plaza Hotel.

The talk opened the week-long Western Metal and Tool Exposition and Conference at the Great Western Exhibit Center and Century Plaza Hotel.

WESTEC is co-sponsored by American Society for Metals and American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers.

Speaking before an audience of 350 engineers and scientists, Dr. Roberts noted that "never before has the management of American industry contained as many capable and technologically oriented people.

* * * *

"THE POTENTIAL of this management to prepare for the future is frequently diverted from full attention to long-range planning to meet the urgencies of today.

"If technological long-range research and planning had not been pursued over the past two decades," Dr. Roberts said, "we would not have the advanced products and services we use and enjoy today. The advantages we now have, militarily and industrially, are the results of yesterday's foresight and unless we continue our long-range efforts, tomorrow will hold few new advantages."

* * * *

DR. ROBERTS predicted a shift to long-range programs in physical sciences when world antagonisms lessen, but said that our long-range planning should not be contingent on the lessening of antagonisms.

"It could be that even if international tensions continue the fruits of long-range planning in physical sciences would some day contribute to the reduction of these strains."

The week-long WESTEC highlighted $8 million in metals, machine tools and accessories, materials, testing equipment and manufacturing processes at the Exhibit Center.

Both the technical sessions of the conference and an exhibit of scientific precision instruments were held in the Century Plaza Hotel.

Greenbrook Homes on Pool-Size Lots

One of the most important factors in the success of Greenbrook, Larwin Co.'s new community in Cypress, is that all of the homes are on pool-size lots, reports Michael L. Tenzer, vice president and director of marketing for Larwin.

"There's not a lot at Greenbrook that is under 6,000 square feet, and some of the backyards are 40 feet deep or more, allowing ample space for a full size swimming pool," said Tenzer.

Greenbrook homes feature extra-large family rooms adjoining completely built-in kitchens. The family rooms overlook the backyards through walls of glass.

* * * *

IN THE LIVING ROOMS there are large, decorator fireplaces, cathedral ceilings, and adjoining the living rooms are formal entryways and formal dining rooms.

The spacious master bedroom suites include walk-in closets, dressing rooms and full-size baths. One model offers a private patio adjoining the bathroom.

Other distinctive design features include a balcony overlooking the living room in one model, a gallery stairwell in another model. Most of the family rooms are equipped with wet bars, and lavish use is made of wood paneling.

* * * *

THE HOMES ARE PRICED from $26,750 to $32,950 with FHA, VA no-down-payment, Cold War Veteran, Cal Vet and conventional financing plans available. Larwin Co. will guarantee an on-the-spot trade-in for the buyer's present home.

Greenbrook is 25 minutes from downtown Los Angeles via the Santa Ana Freeway to the Valley View exit, then by proceeding south to 9552 Valley View, one half block south of Orange. Model homes and sales offices are open daily.

Auctioneer to Talk to District Realtors

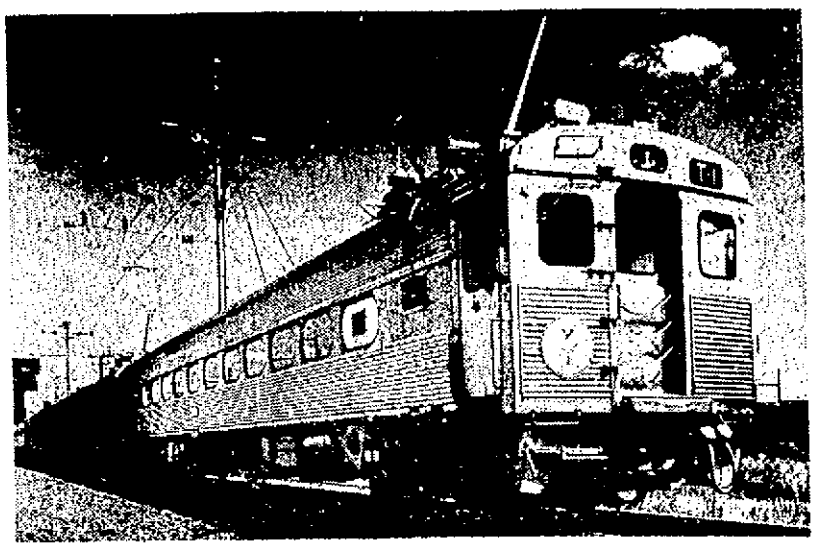

Twenty-second District Commercial-Industrial Division members of the California Real Estate Association will meet Tuesday noon at the Sierra Restaurant, Bellflower, for their monthly session.

Speaker will be Fred Irani, head of Prince Auctioneers, Inc., explaining the modus operandi of real estate auctions. Later, Ron Meehan will join him for a panel discussion on the topic.

Monday's Speaker

The Young Home Builders Council, educational arm of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties, announces another educational program for 6 p.m. Monday at the Rodger Young Auditorium, Los Angeles.

Speaker will be Dr. Gunther Klaus of the Institute for Advanced Planning, Los Angeles. His topic: "Looking at Ourselves as Managers."

ROLLING LABORATORIES
These four test cars, owned by U.S. Department of Commerce, currently are in service as rolling laboratories between Trenton and New Brunswick, N.J., as part of research program to evaluate high speed rail service. Test cars are forerunners of 160-mile-an-hour passenger units scheduled to enter service in 1967 between Washington and New York. "Northeast Corridor" project is jointly sponsored by Department of Commerce and Pennsylvania Railroad.

Firm's Name Can Be Misleading These Days

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not so many years ago a company could select a descriptive name for itself with the feeling there would never be any need to change it.

So much progress and expansion has taken place since the end of World War II that this rule of thumb in selecting a name no longer applies.

And old-line firms which have branched out or diversified their operations find their company names, while meaningful, may no longer be truly description.

* * * *

MOSLER Safe Co. can be cited as a good example. Gustav Mosler established the company in 1848 with the sole purpose of manufacturing safes. Some of the safes sold by Mosler in the early years of his proprietorship are still operable.

Almost 120 years after its founding, Mosler Safe Co. has diversified to such an extent that its name no longer is descriptive.

"Only 49 per cent of our output involves security products, which includes safes and vaults and alarm systems," John Mosler, president of the company, said in an interview. "But we don't want to change our name because it is so well-known.

* * * *

"OFFICE systems and equipment account for 25 per cent of our production. Checks and bank stationery make up another 16 per cent. And 10 per cent of our business is in service and miscellaneous."

Mosler said the company realized $62 million in sales in 1966 and earned profits of $4.3 million.

The company's newest venture is the Mosler Selectriever, an information retrieval system which is engineered to give random access to any one of 200,000 unit documents.

* * * *

"SELECTRIEVER can select the card you want in less than 10 seconds," Mosler said.

Introducing Meadowbrook: It's a lot more than just a bunch of houses.

When you buy a house in most communities, you get a house. And that's about all.

But at Meadowbrook we give you a lot more.

We give you a whole new way of living.

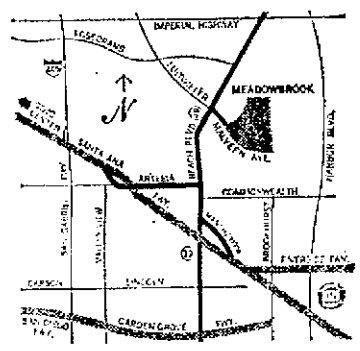

At Meadowbrook, there are three recreation centers (including the Meadowbrook Club). Eleven neighborhood parks. Swimming pools. Game courts. Barbecue areas. And so many community activities you'll never find time to be bored.

If all this sounds like a Country Club, it's no accident. We planned it that way. (Which is why we call Meadowbrook a Country Club Village.)

Meadowbrook even looks like a Country Club. Everywhere you look there are green lawns and parks. All utilities are underground. And there are no thru streets. (We built the whole community around looping Cul-de-Sacs, which have beautiful recreation areas in the middle.)

We located Meadowbrook close to five different freeways, and we built some of the finest houses you could find anywhere. Every home has General Electric refrigerated air conditioning. Indoor-outdoor "pass-through" kitchen windows. Custom designed lighting fixtures (it took us several weeks just to choose the lighting fixtures).

All in all, we have some great houses at Meadowbrook. And there's lots more here than just the houses.

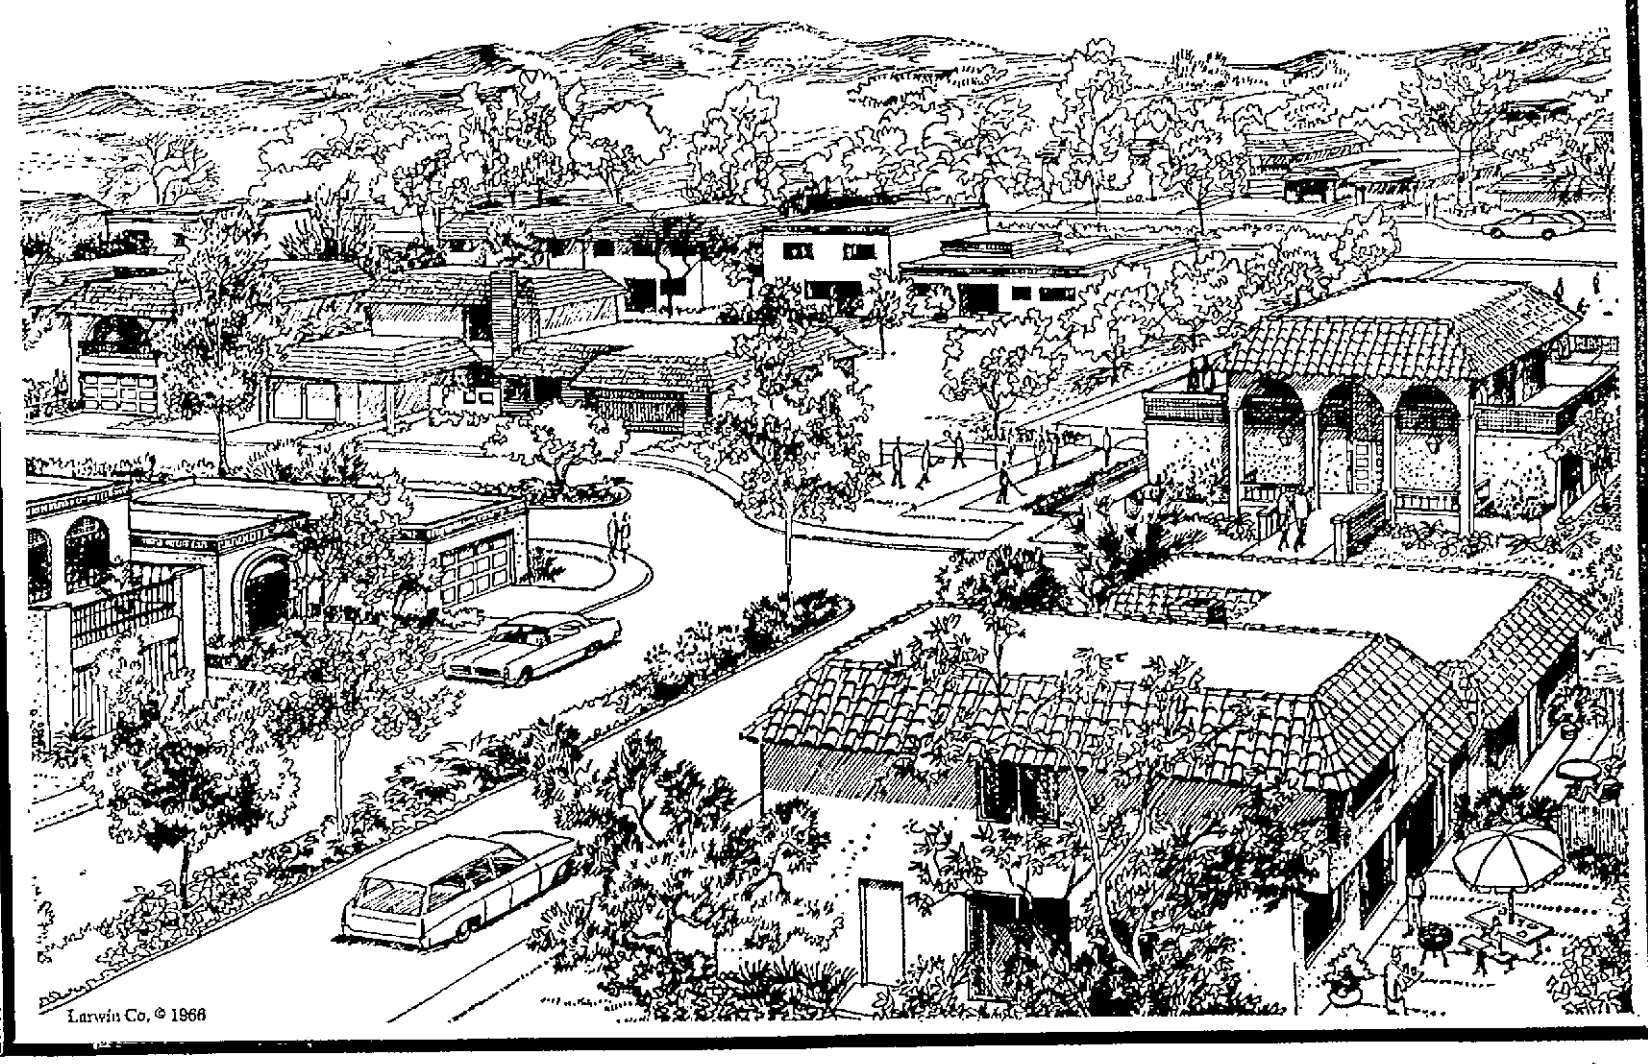

DIRECTIONS: Take the Santa Ana Fwy. to Artesia Blvd. off ramp. Go east on Artesia to Beach Blvd. Turn left on Beach to Malvern. Right on Malvern to model site in Buena Park.

HEADED FOR DETROIT IN APRIL

Mobil Economy Run Once Interrupted for 'Sweet Corn'

The Mobile Economy Run, which charts a Los Angeles-Detroit course this April 4-9, was devised to test the gasoline mileage potential of America's annual crop of new passenger cars.

But, in its 31-year history, it has become an enigmatic test of human resilience — both for participants and the persons whose lives it unexpectedly touches.

While everything humanly possible is done to conduct the event without a hitch, there are those who suspect that nature and the fates are working just as hard to put a hex on it.

The Run's regular caravan of 400-plus drivers, officials, reporters and auto industry representatives has visited 29 states so far.

Inevitably, they are welcomed by mayors with gold keys and governors with red carpets.

* * * *

JUST AS inevitably, they are greeted by floods, power failures, tornadoes and fires.

Typical if the moment in 1962 when drivers and officials arrived in Tucumcari, N.M., after an exhausting 540-mile travel day.

All turned on their motel room lights, television sets, electric shavers, calculators and adding machines at the same time, and blooey went the town's main fuse.

When order was restored, all marched on the same restaurant, ordered steaks, set off a roaring grease fire, and scrambled out again.

A few years later, the townspeople in another Western community prepared a surprise welcome, unaware that all stops are carefully scheduled in advance.

* * * *

CAR AFTER car zipped past their laden picnic tables.

Finally, in total frustration, the local sheriff mounted his trusty high-horsepower automobile and, siren screaming, corralled several drivers, demanding that each "eat up an ear of hot buttered sweet corn and be friendly a bit" before proceeding.

Other unscheduled receptions have included a tornado in Kansas which blew a pair of competing cars off the highway, and a Des Moines, Iowa, flood which put the whole course under water.

Another time, New Mexican Indian tribesmen gyrated through an eleborate welcome dance. A torrential downpour followed.

"Wrong octave," one drenched driver ventured.

* * * *

LAST YEAR, the city of Boston was prepared to greet Run participants with dignified civic ceremonies, only to find its officials and marching bands upstaged by a team of wiggling, chilly go-go girls, the surprise "contribution" of a local radio station.

The Run's elaborate receptions and deluxe accommodations in recent years have lured movie starlets, world speed holders and syndicated news columnists to try their luck in the competition.

Planning and scouting potential Economy Run routes now begins months in advance.

* * * *

BUT EARLY in Run history, some casual planning created a mild financial windfall for one Midwestern motel owner.

Contacted by mail, the gentleman assured Run planners that he could easily bed down the caravan at modest rates.

He was a man of his word. In fact, to accommodate the entire crew, he even went to the trouble of remodeling his chicken coop out back, and lining it with surplus Army cots.

Life Insurance Payments in State Rose Last Year

California beneficiaries of life insurance policyholders received $444,700,000 in death payments in 1966, according to the Institute of Life Insurance. This was an increase of 9.2 per cent over the previous year.

Payments were made on 157,000 policies in California, compared to 147,100 policies in 1965.

The largest amonut, $239,800,000 was paid on individual life insurance under ordinary policies. The rest included $189,300,000 from group life insurance and $15,600,000 from small industrial policies.

Throughout the nation death payments were $5,218,200,000. New York had the heaviest payments of $651,900,000.

SOUTHLAND HOME BUILDERS SPEAK

Success Keys: Value, Design, Improvements

(NOTE: This is the fifth in a series of articles by home builders in the Long Beach-Orange County area which discuss the building outlook in 1967. They are members of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties.

By ELI BROAD

At a time when the housing industry is decrying the problems brought on by tight money and with housing starts less than 60 per cent of the same produced last year, some builders are increasing their sales.

Generally speaking, these are firms that through foresight or chance began to diversify prior to the present slump. There is evidence, however, that other factors can influence a builder's success.

Currently, our California division has six active developments. Five are single family projects and one is a townhouse condominium.

Weekly sales have been very good. Such sales would not be startling in an active market, but at a time with many builders at a standstill, I am frequently asked the secret of our success.

* * * *

FIRST, THERE is no secret. No new sales devices. No magic formula. Today there are thousands of prospective buyers in the market place eager to find the home of their dreams and prepared to sign a purchase contract if they can be convinced that they are still receiving a good value and if they see the new, fresh design that should be evident in any new home.

We concentrate heavily on design, constantly striving to improve not only on our competition but to better our own past efforts.

The value we offer is more difficult to control in these days of rising costs but so far we have been successful in avoiding significant price increases.

* * * *

IT SEEMS evident that the reduced housing starts during the past six (6) months will create a housing shortage in 1967 with a sharp upturn in industry sales during the year despite the fact that the price of new homes is certain to increase substantially due to increased costs of money, land, materials and labor.

The homebuyer of today who often makes his purchase fearing that he has chosen the wrong time to buy will, in a few short months, most certainly discover that his timing was most accurate.

(Note: Eli Broad is president of Kaufman and Broad Building Co. and a director of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties.)

WORLD OF WINGS

Fran Bera 'Asked' to Pick Successor

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

This one is too good to keep.

It seems that Judy Wagner, Palos Verdes Estates's annually a close finisher in the Powder Puff Derby, wrote to the Piper factory expressing interest in a Piper aircraft, plus technical aid that would "enable me to win the derby."

The factory, naturally, bucked the letter down to the Piper dealer in Judy's territory — which turned it over to the one best qualified to provide the technical assistance, Piper saleswoman Fran Bera, who's won the derby six or seven times and heads every girl's list of rivals to beat.

"Sure, I'm going to tell her how to beat me," Fran purred, tapping the letter on her desk, "of course, I am."

Like maybe flying the course with gear down and full flaps?

* * * *

CESSNA MANUFACTURED A RECORD 8,148 aircraft during th 1966 calendar year, largest output in the firm's 39-year history.

Particularly, a fantastic growth was noted in 150 and 172 models, which accounted for 4,892 units for a gain of 1,705 or 53 per cent over 1965.

The company must be praised for its far-sighted, intelligent approach to increasing the nation's awareness to the fact that the air age is upon us.

Cessna's three educational programs, tailored for elementary, high school and junior college levels, are well designed and extremely appealing to educators, despite their understandable emphasis on general aviation and underplaying of the roles of commercial and military flying.

Cessna, alone among the big three, has put its time and money where its mouth is and has entered aggressively into a broad program aimed at benefiting themselves by selling the industry as a whole.

Despite our knocks at Cessna in the past, we admire them for it.

Two Year's Taxes Are Paid on Homes

Close-out of unit No. 1 houses at Thunderbird Homes in Dana Point is announced by builders-partners George R. Meeker and Willard A. Bochte.

"It's a 'Buyers Bonanza' without a price increase but with the most advantageous terms ever offered to buyers," according to Bob Allen, sales director.

Only a few homes are left in the first unit of the $50-million community and sales are on a "first come, first served" basis.

Thunderbird offers two years of paid taxes to buyers at this time. Also offered are no impounds costs, no closing costs or balloon payments.

* * * *

"THERE ARE no hidden costs," Allen said.

Down payments for the three or four bedroom homes are from $1175 to $1525. Prices begin at $23,500 and 6 per cent interest is available.

Features included in purchase price are all-electric kitchens, carpeting, decorator fixtures and wallpaper, ceramic tile in kitchens and baths.

Model homes are open daily at the tract which is accessible via the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway to Capistrano Beach turnoff in Dana Point at Pacific Coast Highway, then on to Del Obispo Road and directional signs to Thunderbird.

Los Angeles Home Show Set for July

Invitations have gone out to selected builders in the Southland for the presentation of model homes at the 1967 Los Angeles Home Show, scheduled July 13-23 at the Pan-Pacific Auditorium and now in its 22nd year.

According to Carl F. Kraatz, executive vice president of the show, exhibit space for these model dwellings is furnished free and will be located on the Pan-Pacific grounds, immediately south of the main building.

Construction of the homes can start as early as April 17, according to Kraatz.

* * * *

THE MODEL homes are annually viewed by upwards of 200,000 prospective buyers and are widely and intensively publicized throughout the Southern California area.

Two or three builders are selected each year by the Executive Board of the Home Show. Only outstanding examples of new home construction and design are chosen, and the builders are awarded gold trophies and special citations.

* * * *

A LIST of past model home exhibitors reads like a "Who's Who" of the home construction industry, and includes such names as Ray Watt, Steinkamp, Boyar-Kessler, Julian Weinstock, Butler-Harbour, Jerry Snyder, Galaxy Homes, Aldon Homes, Cliff May, Goodwin-Reed, Hugh Temple, Dan Felger, E. Calvin Clark and many others.

Selections of the board are not limited to those builders receiving invitations and Kraatz stated that those interested in participation should contact him at Los Angeles Home Show headquarters, 6399 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles.

Introducing a new unit at Greenbrook. It's for people who don't have a fortune, but need a lot of extra room.

When we built the homes at Greenbrook, we thought we'd be big about it.

These homes are big outside. Big inside. And even the yards are big.

The ceilings in our living rooms run all the way to the roof-lines. When you look up, you look up and up and up. The effect is pretty spectacular.

Not one of the homes at Greenbrook has less than three bedrooms. Some of them even have six. And they're all big bedrooms at that.

When it came to details, we didn't skimp (we were big about that, too). We used lots of natural rough-sawn wood and Adobles brick, and as a result these homes look a lot more expensive than they really are.

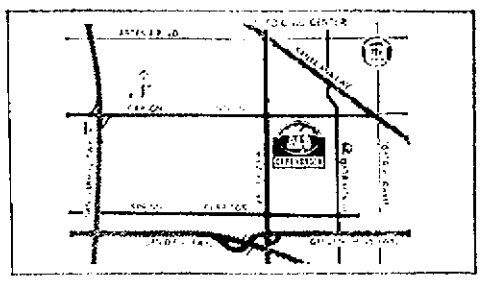

You'll have to look a long time before you find yards as big as ours. Some of our back yards are 30 feet deep, and more. You can put in a full-size swimming pool. Or just turn your kids out to romp.

We'd like for you to come and see these fine homes at Greenbrook.

When you do, you'll find that everything is big.

Except the price tag.

And that's unbelievably small.

DIRECTIONS: Greenbrook is in Cypress. Take San Diego Fwy. or Garden Grove Fwy. to Valley View. Go north to models.
From Long Beach, take Carson (Lincoln) to Valley View. Go right to models.
From Santa Ana Fwy. take Valley View south to models.

Sharpen Up Home for Good Sale

Kitchen—your wife may have "made do" with an out-dated kitchen, but homebuyers want a modern kitchen with the latest conveniences. If it isn't feasible to buy new appliances, or install new cabinets and additional countertop space, at least give the cupboards a new coat of paint and attach some attractive new hardware.

Bathroom—don't expect to make a quick sale on a house with only one bathroom. Today, homebuyers demand at least one-and-a-half, preferably two. You may be able to install a powder room off the kitchen or under the stairs.

Closets—another asset homebuyers look for is lots of storage space.

Interior Decorating Talks at Macco Leadership Homes

A series of discussions on interior decorating is being sponsored this month by Macco Realty Co., Robert H. Richards, the firm's director of marketing and sales, announced. The events—featuring two experts in the field—are for the Hospitality Houses at four Macco Leadership Home developments.

Interior design consultant, Pat Wright and interior decorator, Virginia Woodbridge discuss the personalized approach to interior decorating. "Emphasis is on the creative ways in which homeowners may truly individualize the interior of their homes," explained Shirley Collins, home economist for Macco.

COLOR TALK . . . Given By Pat Wright

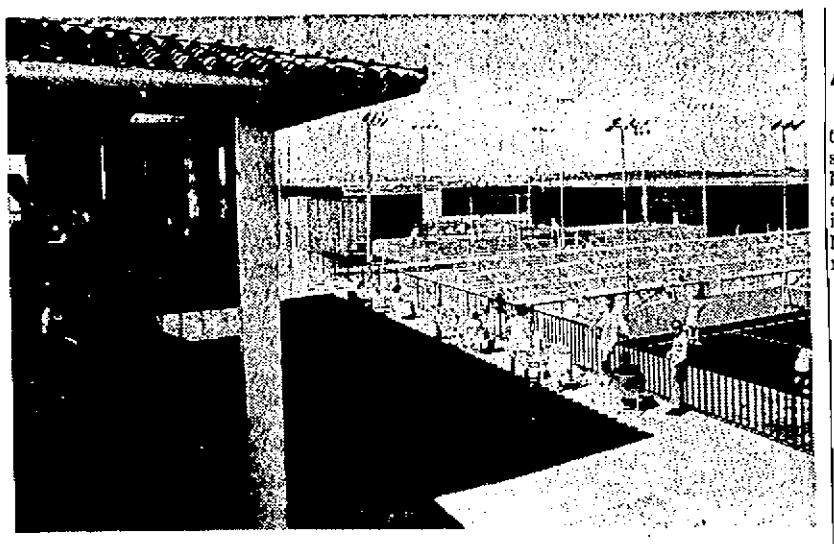

Mrs. Wright, who currently teaches Interior Design at Cal State, Los Angeles, has recently completed two educational films on the subject. She is a member of the National Society of Interior Designers an American Women in Architecture.

Her next program is scheduled March 29 at the Glenbrook Hospitality House, Imperial Highway and Associated Road, Macco's new development in Brea.

Mrs. Woodbridge, a home furnishings instructor at U.C.L.A., is a member of the National Society of Interior Designers, the National Home Fashions League and an associate of A.I.D.

She appeared March 16 at the Del Amo Hospitality House, in the Los Angeles Harbor area; and on March 22 will hold a program at the Porter Ridge Hospitality House, 12251 Derwent Place in The Porter Ranch, Northridge.

According to Mrs. Collins, all presentations are free of charge and held from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Refreshments are served and a door prize awarded.

Final Newport Beach Bluff Homes Going on Sale Today

One of the most popular new developments in the area, the Bluffs in Newport Beach, will offer its final homes for sale this week-end with furnished models also available, developers George M. Holstein and Sons reports.

The final group offers a limited number of sea-view locations, several pool side sites, and a selection of two, three, and four-bedroom, one and two-story homes. Prices start at $25,800 and go to $34,500 at the choice location above Upper Newport Bay.

The community was recently featured in the cover story of House and Home magazine and has been lauded for planning and beauty by city planners and designers since its inception two years ago.

The homes are located along a 14-acre private park and are within walking distance to schools, churches and the new Newport Beach Tennis Club.

Closed-in Porches Open New Vistas

If your house is feeling the pinch of tight living space, widen your horizons by bringing the outdoors indoors. An enclosed porch will not only extend your living area, it will let you enjoy the outdoors all year 'round.

If you already have an open porch, the job will be simplified; wall, windows, screens, heat and insulation will be your main concerns. But even building a porch from scratch is not a major undertaking.

HERE ARE some considerations to keep in mind:

LOCATION — If you have a choice, don't build the porch on the west, because the afternoon sun can make it uncomfortably warm. A southern or southwestern exposure is considered best.

FLOOR — No basement is required — just a slab floor of poured concrete with a sufficient footing to meet local codes. If part of the porch will be below grade, lay masonry blocks to bring the walls above grade. One of your last jobs will be to tile over the concrete floor with asphalt or vinyl asbestos. Rubber tile can be used over concrete if the floor is above grade.

ROOF—To avoid that added-on look, be sure the roof matches the architectural style of the house This may mean repeating the main gable or using a shed-type or flat roof.

INSULATION — Insulating batts in the roof and walls will make the home more comfortable winter and summer. Use full-thick batts in the roof, the main source of heat loss.

ELECTRICAL — Wiring for electrical outlets and lighting must be completed before the finish walls go up. While you're at it, provide exterior lighting and an outside outlet for extra backyard convenience.

WINDOWS and walls — Walls of windows will give greatest visibility and comfort. Awning or hopper style windows are probably best since they permit 100 per cent ventilation and keep bad weather out at the same time. Another idea is insulating glass, available in stock windows of ponderosa pine, which eliminates the necessity of storm sash in winter.

Prefinished hardboard paneling available in a wide range of wood-grains, colors and textures is a wise choice for surfacing the interior walls. It creates a distinctive porch interior with minimum maintenance.

Outside, use hardboard siding in a lap or panel style that matches your existing siding. It's attractive, extremely durable, weathers well, and is immune to dents.

HEATING — The sun can heat a glassed-in, weathertight porch even in winter. But auxiliary heat is usually needed too. Check the location of heating pipes and ducts and the capacity of your furnace to see if extending your present system is feasible. Other heating hints: a heat pump that heats in winter and cools in summer, portable or permanent electric baseboard heating, gas or electric space heaters or a wood-burning fireplace.

Add Room But Subtract Maintenance

Planning to add a room to your home? Then be sure the outside of your room addition is as free of maintenance as you would like the inside to be.

Just as prefinished hardboard panels have made interior remodeling a snap, preprimed and prefinished hardboard siding has made it easier to surface the exterior of the home. Factory-finished sidings will last for years with practically no maintenance.

* * * *

HARDBOARD siding panels, with extra strength and weather resistance, are available in board-and-batten panels and in horizontal lap siding for installation as clapboard siding. There are also different surface textures from which to choose, including smooth and rough-sawn.

The advantage of installing pre-primed siding is that the homeowner needn't rush to prime the siding after installation to protect it against the elements. If prefinished siding is used, finishing is eliminated.

* * * *

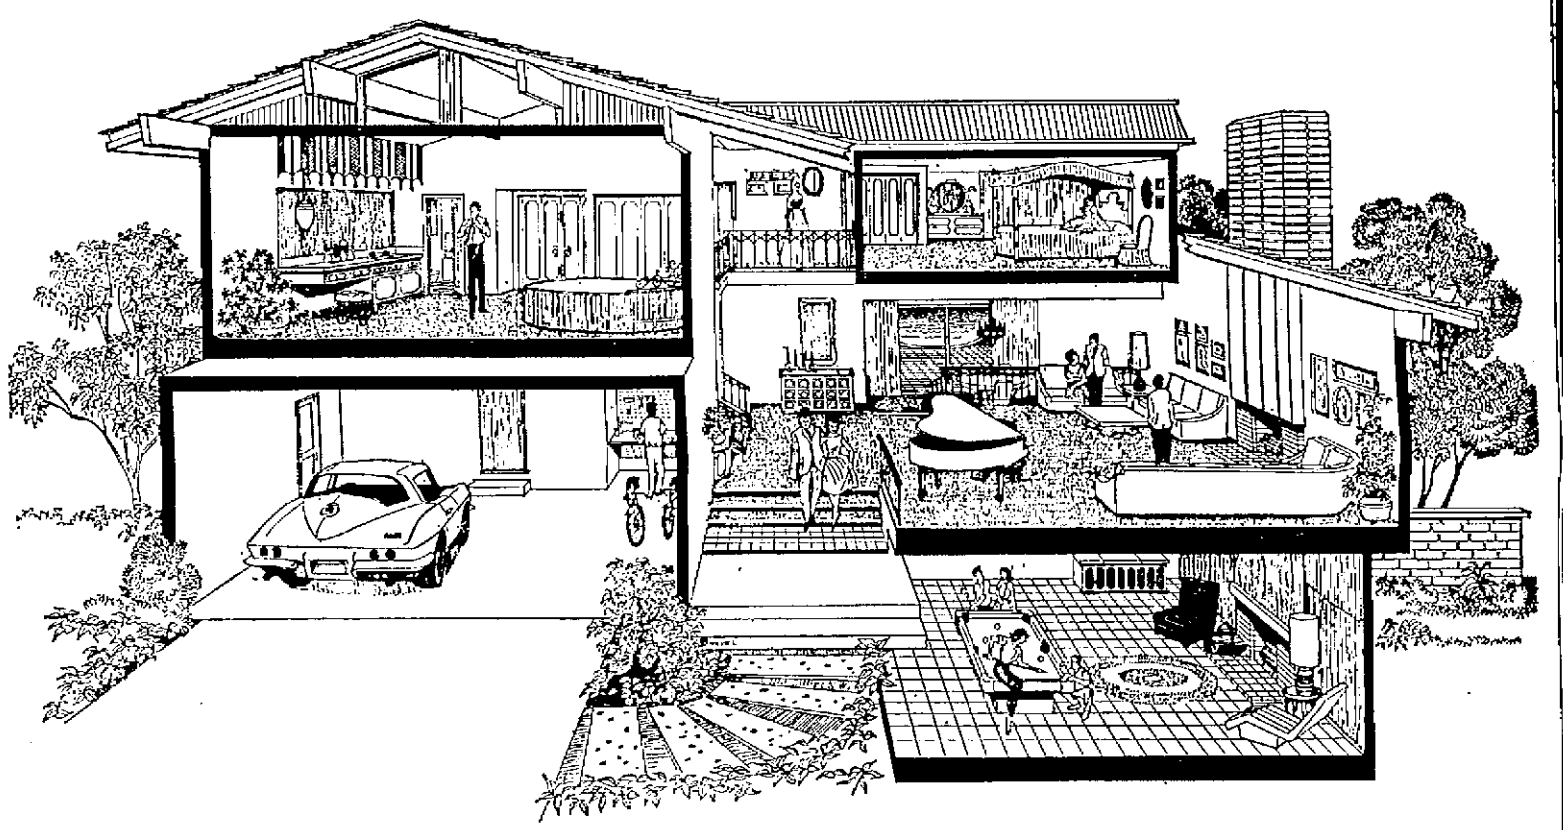

THE CHOICE OF hardboard siding styles makes it easy to match the siding of the new addition to the main house, thus avoiding that "added-on" look. Or, if the exterior of the house is in poor condition, you may wish to re-side the house at the same time.

Handy hardboard panels come prefinished, with no painting or staining required, or as natural brown boards that you finish yourself.

Builders Meet June 6-8 in S.F.

Workable plans for the resurgence of home building throughout the Western United States following a two-year recession will be sought by more than 3,000 builders when the annual Pacific Coast Builders Conference convenes at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco on June 6-8

"In many ways conditions have changed for home builders more in the past two years than they did in the previous two decades," John M. Osmundsen, PCBC president, declared.

"If builders are to provide an adequate volume of housing at acceptable prices in the next five years, they must learn how to adjust to these changed conditions now."

* * * *

NEARLY TWICE the number of building industry leaders and professional consultants serving the industry have been invited to speak at the convention as would normally be asked, he disclosed.

"We are so concerned about finding successful means by which builders can reactivate their businesses that we have asked nearly everyone with a special knowledge of the new conditions confronting us to speak," Osmundsen asserted.

He said that although the lack of financing had been the most publicized difficulty encountered by the building industry in its two-year slump, it was only one of many that drastically disrupted the normal pattern of building activity on the West Coast.

* * * *

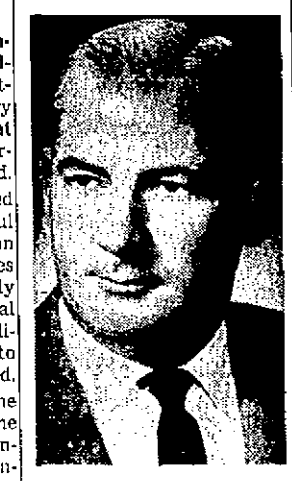

BUILDERS attending the convention will also get their first look at a great many new and improved building products in the largest exposition of building products and services held in the Western United States in conjunction with the conference.

The annual meeting of West Coast builders is sponsored by the Home Builders Council of California, an affiliation of 14 major builder associations that acts as the legislative arm of the state's huge building industry.

Modern Paneling Durable, Elegant

Want to transform your casual living room into an elegant "show room" and still be able to use it every day? Modern high-style, low-care decorating materials have made this possible.

For example, there are now rich-looking upholstery materials that sponge-clean, resilient floor coverings that come in dramatic textures and designs yet clean easily, and waterproof carpeting.

One of the biggest boons to low-maintenance elegance is prefinished hardboard wall paneling.

YOU CAN highlight your walls with the exotic look of travertine marble, with interesting textured finishes such as cane or wicker, with rich wood-grained surfaces, or with unusual filigree or louver accents. You can mix and match panels. They resist dents, mars and scuffs, and will not split, spinter or crack.

The 4-by-8-foot panels are easily nailed or applied with waterproof adhesive on furring strips over existing walls.

Wall Panels Safeguard Play Room

Children's rooms take a lot of punishment, and an ounce of prevention at the time of planning is worth a pound of cure later on.

If your remodeling plans include the youngsters' bedroom or playroom, be sure to use materials that can withstand the hard abuse they're certain to get. It will save you time, work and money for years to come.

Walls in children's rooms generally take the worst beating. They get scuffed and scratched, rammed with wagons and tricycles, and collect an assortment of stains and grubby fingermarke. The best defense is a tough wall covering such as factory-finished hardboard paneling.

* * * *

HARDBOARD resists mars and dents, so it can take the daily onslaught of energetic youngsters without showing the strain. You can even damp-wipe hardboard panels clean of fingerprints, grime, even pencil and crayon marks.

The panels — prefinished, plastic-surfaced or ready to paint — are easily installed over studs or furring strips. Pre-finished and colorp-matched metal or wood moldings and matching putty and nails give the job a professionally-finished look.

* * * *

TO PREVENT the whole house from being turned into toyland, create a "working storage wall" of perforated hardboard to hold toys and clothes. The perforations accept hooks and brackets from which the children can hang everything from cowboy hats to a model of the latest Atlas rocket. You can even get perforated hardboard prefinished to match the other hardboard walls.

Another storage idea is to use perforated hardboard in children's closets.

Tight Money Doesn't Bar Fix-Up Loan

One solution to the new-home mortgage problem is to improve your present home. Many homeowners are doing just that.

"Tight money" is not a problem in home improvement financing, and there are many alternatives available for obtaining the money you need. Here are some:

FHA Property Improvement Loan (Title I). You may borrow up to $3,500 and take up to five years to pay.

Conventional bank installment loan. This is usually more flexible than FHA loans as to purpose, amount and terms.

FHA Section 203 (k) Loan (Title II). Under this plan, devised for homes over 10 years old, you may finance improvements up to $10,000 and take up to 20 years to pay.

* * * *

Open-end mortgage loan. If you have an open-end mortgage, you may be able to finance improvements by borrowing on the same mortgage.

Mortgage refinancing. You may be able to convert your present mortgage for another in a larger amount to include the cost of your improvements.

New Mortgage. If your home is unmortgaged, you can finance improvements with a new mortgage. Or if you plan to buy an older home requiring extensive repairs, get a mortgage that will include the cost of both the home and the improvements.

* * * *

SOME OF THESE plans require that the improvements be "built-in," such as paneling a room with hardboard walls, and some are less promising in periods of "tight money." The type of loan you seek should be determined by your own financial circumstances, the condition, value and location of your home, the type of improvement you plan to make, and the current condition of the money market.

In addition to banks and savings and loan associations, you may be able to get a home improvement loan on your life insurance policy, from your credit union or a commercial finance company. One credit source you should not overlook is the building materials or lumber dealer from whom you buy your materials.

Depressed Fertilizer Prices Seen

PALM SPRINGS — The massive increase in fertilizer consumption this year will not be reflected by fertilizer industry profits, the Western Agricultural Chemicals Association was told.

Farmers will use 15 to 23 per cent more tons of fertilizer, but fertilizer industry revenues won't begin to keep pace, said A. E. Cascino, vice president, International Minerals & Chemical Corp.

* * * *

"PRICE weaknesses in raw materials and finished fertilizers will hold the industry's increase in sales dollars down to about 10 per cent, with an even greater impact on earnings," he said.

Spurring the 15 to 23 per cent increase in nutrient consumption are higher crop prices and the return to cultivation of 30 million acres of farmland, the IMC executive said.

The fertilizer price situation is partly the consequence of rapid expansion by existing producers and the entry of new suppliers into the marketplace, Cascino said. This was aggravated by slow raw materils sales early this year because of adverse weather.

Bixby Hills' Luxury Homes Praised by Early Occupants

Among the first "Move-ins" at Bixby Hill, usually referred to as the "Beverly Hills of Long Beach," were Mr. & Mrs. Donald and Shirley Coscarlli

"We bought our home at Bixby Hill because it was situated on a lovely piece of land. We have always wanted to live in a beautiful home with a view," says Mrs. Coscarelli. "In addition ot its spaciousness, we were most impressed with its livable and efficient floor plans."

Don Coscarelli, president of DAC Investment Co. of Long Beach, adds, "The house was built the way we would have built it. And the Bixby Hill feeling is great; it's like owning a luxurious home in town and still living in the suburbs!"

* * * *

THE CULMINATION of more than four years of planning, Bixby Hill is a luxury home development of S&S Construction Co. According to Nathan and David Shapell, principals — and Bernard McCune, general manager — the development features five dramatic models in Ranch, Classic, Contemporary, Spanish and Mediterranean designs.

More than 3300 square feet of living space encompasses quality features that bespeak a truly elegant way of life. Appointments include custom designed lighting fixtures, concrete driveways, lavish use of natural ash and walnut in cabinetry, formal dining rooms, a choice of shingle, shake, rock or Mission tile roofs and all underground utilities.

Priced from $52,000 to $80,000 Bixby Hill may be reached via San Diego Freeway to Palo Verde Road turnoff. South on Palo Verde (toward beach) to 6381 Bixby Hill Road and furnished models.

Wall Street Briefs

NEW YORK (UPI) — William R. White of Hornblower & Weeks, Hemphill, Noyes says the strong market support shown by institutions recently may be explained by signs of a growing conviction that the market had discounted the possibility of an early cessation of the Vietnam war or a business recession.

Inasmuch as last year's decline was one of the steepest in more than two decades, White believes, it is not surprising that fund managers now are more willing to reinvest unusually large cash reserves.

Bache & Co. says the Federal Reserve Board reduction of member bank requirements from 4 per cent ot 3 per cent could be an important factor in prompting a renewal of the upward swing which had stalled at the 860 level. The company says easing of credit spurred the January advance and recent consolidation was prompted by signs of some monetary tightening.

Goodbody & Co. feels the market's resistance to the disappointing background news surrounding the market may be regarded as encouraging and may be considered a confirmation that the 1966-67 business slowdown has been largely discounted.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cowles Communications, Inc., has agreed to acquire Cambridge Books Co., Bronxville, N.Y., publisher of textbooks, school review books and similar educational materials. The purchase involved an undisclosed amount of stock and cash.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Standard and Poor's Corp. says corporate dividend increases in February, while down from the same month a year ago, were the third highest for any February on record. The investment firm says 204 firms boosted their payouts, 33 fewer than a year ago, while 51 paid cash extra dividend, down 10 from a year earlier. Fifteen companies decreased dividends, highest total in more than a year.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — South Carolina Electric & Gas Co. has announced it will build a $38.6 million steam generating plant 30 miles southeast of here. The coal-fired plant, which will be the largest in the comapny's system, is expected to be in operation in about three years.

MIAMI (UPI) — Family Finance Corp. says it has agreed tentatively to acquire Consolidated Credit Corp., Charlotte, N.C., which operates 128 loan offices through subsidiaries. Family Finance says the acquisition would be made for an undisclosed amount of stock. It is subject to agreement by stockholders of both firms and other conditions.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Broadcasting Co. television network and United Artists Corp. have announced a picture licensing deal possibly worth as much as $115 million. Under the arrangement, NBC will have access to 94 UA films to be shown over a nine-year period starting in Spetember. One of the movies reportedly is "West Side Story," a major UA moneymaker.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Businessmen are somewhat more confident now regarding the country's economic outlook than they were at the beginning of the year, according to Dun's Review. The publication attributed the rise in optimism to the dip in interest rates along with the strong market surge in January. The survey, however, indicates uncertainty about the outlook for profits, inventories and employment.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pan American Airways said preliminary figures for January showed an increase of 10.4 per cent in net earnings. Pan Am said the as-yet-unaudited statement indicated net earnings after taxes for the month of $1,632,000 compared with $1,245,000 a year ago.

Fashion Island, Newport Beach, Ready This Fall

The half-way point in construction has been reached in the construction of The Irvine Company's $20 million Fashion Island shopping complex in Newport Beach, according to William R. Watt, project coordinator.

There are six major phases involved in the 75-acre high fashion shopping complex, Watt said: Four major department stores, the mall stores, mall and parking area and the landscaping. All are on schedule for the formal opening in September.

Buffums', designed by Welton Becket & Associates and being constructed by Jackson Bros., of Los Angeles, will be valued at $900,000 before the installation of fixtures. It will have a floor area of 54,000 square feet and is 70 per cent completed.

* * * *

J.C. PENNEY will be the largest facility in the firm's nation-wide chain with 230,000 square feet valued at $3 million including the tire, battery, and accessories annex. It has been designed by Charles Luckman & Associates and is being constructed by the Santa Ana firm of Allison Honer Co.

The Irvine Company is financing the construction of the J.C. Penney and Buffums' facilities, according to Watt. J.W. Robinson and The Broadway have ground lease arrangements for their stores with The Irvine Company.

* * * *

THE BROADWAY, designed by Charles Luckman & Associates and being constructed by Diversified Builders, Inc., of Paramount, has reached the half-way stage of completion. It will cover 180,000 square feet, exclusive of its future tire, battery, and accessory annex.

J.W. Robinson, another Irvine Company ground lease store, is approximately 55 per cent finished. William L. Pereira & Associates is the architectural firm, and C.L. Peck of Los Angeles is the contractor.

Preliminary valuation of $3½ million has been set for Fashion Island's 55 mall shops which are designed by Welton Becket & Associates, under construction by Diversified Builders, Inc., and owned, along with the mall, by The Irvine Company.

* * * *

A CONTRACT for $200,000 was let last week to Imperial Landscape Co. of Brea to handle Fashion Island's landscaping which has been designed by Sasaki-Walker Associates of San Francisco.

Site engineering for all utilities, grading, and paving is by Quinton Engineers, Ltd., of Los Angeles.

Preview opening of Fashion Island is scheduled for Sept. 9, and the formal Sept. 11.

Householder's Bonus Offered Once More at Hartford Square

Over 150 families showed up at Hartford Square in response to the special announcement of a Householder's Bonus for model home buyers.

Builder Warren Bauer revealed that the incentive package of a color TV, drapes, carpets, sprinklers and landscaping will be offered again to Sunday buyers.

"This is a tremendous bargain when you consider that buyers would need $3,000 to $5,000 more than our current prices — to duplicate these homes," Bauer commented.

NEAT WALL STORAGE . . . Leaves Room

Working Walls Can End Garage Parking Problem

Some people have a parking problem right in their own garage.

These are the homeowners who store tires, tools, paints, garden equipment, lawn furniture, bicycles, wagons and sleds in the garage—and find there's no room left for the car.

One answer is to switch to taxis. Another is to convert the garage into a legitimate double-duty carport and storage room.

The trouble with most garage storage is that cartons, baby carriages, lawn chairs and kiddy cars are just set on the floor or piled up in a corner, creating an obstacle course for the automobile. Meanwhile, garage walls are bare, unattractive and wasted. The trick is to turn this wasted wall space into a working storage wall that will clear the floor, keep the garage uncluttered, and add needed storage space.

* * * *

AN EASY AND economic way to do this is by installing hardboard garage liner on the walls. These are ¼ inch thick panels of perforated hardboard that accept hooks, brackets and heavy duty fittings to hold everything from ladders and rolled up garden hoese to lawn mowers and wheel barrows.

Although rugged enough for hard use, the panels are light enough to be handled by one man, and can be cut and worked with ordinary woodworking tools. They come in 4-by-8-foot sheets and larger panels, and can be installed on studs or furring strips with nails, screws or adhesive.

In addition to ready-to-paint natural color boards, the panels are also available prefinished and in planking and wainscot styles that can greatly improve the curb appeal of your garage.

* * * *

ONCE THE panels are up, you can organize this sizable new storage area into neat furniture, tool, painting and toy storage centers. Set heavy-duty brackets in perforations where you plan to hand heavy equipment, smaller hooks in the panels that will hold lightweight tools. The perforations will also accept brackets for shelves that will handily store paint cans, cartons and odds and ends. Use of such a storage wall lifts everything off the floor and out of the way, yet keeps all items conveniently visible and right at hand.

WOMEN CALL DOOR-TO-DOOR

Fuller brushes-up sales with distaff representatives

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

Since the original Fuller Brush Man's been visiting in the Southland, from his home in Hartford, Conn., he's had his foot on the putting green more often than in the door.

Alfred C. Fuller, the man who made door-to-door selling of brushes an American institution, most frequently can be seen on fairways of Los Angeles Country Club, an organization he's belonged to since 1934.

Thursday was Lady's Day for the founder and chairman of the board of Fuller Brush Co. when he met with a contingent of area Fullerettes at a luncheon in International Hotel.

Fullerettes — or door-to-door saleswomen — are the latest innovation in the nationwide network of Fuller dealers. They're the result of the man power shortage which became acute some three years ago.

So explained the man of 80-plus-years who bears a remarkable resemblance to French Prime Minister Charles DeGaulle.

"The company has been a male organization since I founded it 61 years ago," he said. "But if 55 to 65 million homes are to be served adequately each year, we realize the need to readjust our field program with part-time women employes."

SINCE THE experimental womanpower project was launched two years ago, the fairer sex has proven successful in the once male-dominated field of door-to-door selling.

To what does he attribute the success of Fullerettes?

Perhaps it's because a housewife thinks twice before slamming the door when a woman's foot is in it.

Fuller noted sales dropped drastically in Massachusettes during the Boston Strangler scare, but rose once Fullerettes began calling at homes.

"Direct selling is one field in which women can compete on an equal basis with men. There are no restrictions to age, education or martial status," Fuller said.

WHILE FULLERETTES now number 23,000, an anticipated 75,000 will be ringing doorbells by year's end.

The founder of the $100,000,000 a year business is quick to admit the company's humble beginnings.

WILD WAVES SAY

Kind of dinner they'd gladly hunt for all year

By IOLA MASTERSON
Society Editor

WHETHER THEY'RE hunting Tule Lake jackalope (so rare only taxidermists breed them) or standard versions of deer, duck, quail or pheasant, a gang of hunting companions have been having a blaze-away good time for years.

Started by a few avid nimrodders in 1952, the group grows each year, with newcomers joining the ranks. This gang has hunted annually in Idaho, Utah, the High Sierras or Colorado. Early in its existence the idea was born to have one all-out, bountiful hunter's dinner, borrowing from the largesse of each hunter's freezer.

This year, as in the past, dinner took place at Long Beach Yacht Club and was prepared personally by club manager and hunter Ev Boyette.

Co-hosting with Ev was his wife Dorothy. Others present were Chuck and Virginia Dickie, John and Naomi Hanbery (the two men were among originators), Charles ("Flip") Flippin, who came down from home in Walnut Creek, Harry and Joyce Christensen and Dr. Lowell and "Rick" Bowlon (the latter two men were among the early joiners), Councilman Paul and Lorraine Deats, Milt and Betty Cantor, Marion Graham, Clyde and Louisa Lynch, Jim and Maxine McElfish, John Coultrup and "Mac" and Dorothy Thompson.

Among hunters' guests were Brian and Carol Christensen, Craig Boyette and girl friend, Caroline Brainard, Craig Cantor and date, Mary Coleman, Gene and Renee Ashwill, and "Flip's" cousin, Irene Sallmen, just returned to the mainland from Hawaii, where she has lived for past eight years.

Cocktails were enjoyed to the accompaniment of such grandiose hors d'oeuvres as oysters on the half shell, shrimp, crab, smoked marlin and chicken liver pate, all artfully displayed on a huge platter of cracked ice.

Featured on the main course were succulent wild duck, dove, pheasant, venison and rainbow trout from Hebgen Lake, accompanied by turnip greens, blackeyed peas, fried apples and cabernet wine. Dessert was assorted cheeses, fruits and dessert wines. Hungry? Well, go raid the ice box or take your trusty shootin' iron to wherever whatever is in season.

DENTIST John Tylick went to a great deal of trouble to make a space maintainer for Dona and John Halbert's four-year-old daughter, Mary. Two days after she received it, neighbor Robert and Martha Fronkie invited Mary over for a juice and cookie hour.

In order not to damage the maintainer, Mary took it out and laid it gently on the bench prior to the cookie eating Fronkie's dog, Toto, promptly ate it. He eats anything.

Dona called insurance man, Harlan Miller, and asked if they were covered on mysterious disappearances. "Sure," he said. When the full circumstances were explained, his confidence was "pretty shook." How, he asked, could he explain that and satisfy the impersonal nature of an insurance form?

Oh dunno. Canines who enjoy metal table scraps are definitely mysterious critters.

NECESSITY WAS cause of early bird inventiveness when Ginny Welch had a shower for Beverly Lundell. Although Beverly doesn't wed Ted Flood until next July, Ginny and husband, Rex, leave in less than two weeks for their annual six months in Tahiti, so affair had to be now. It was a bedroom and bath shower at the Welch's apartment on East Seventh Place.

The hostess served champagne and dessert, refreshments that are growing ever more popular on the shower circuit. Among the 20 guests, all were family members or old friends of Ted's mother, Mrs. Oliver (Genevieve) Flood.

The Floods and Welches, incidentally, went all through school together—from grammar school on up.

A SWANK night on the town (the big town) was called for when Muriel and Courtney Trostle celebrated their 10th wedding anniversary. They invited 16 guests to join them for cocktails and dinner at the Pavilion Restaurant in the Music Center, Los Angeles, then saw Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure," performed by the Bristol Old Vic Company.

Guests of the night were Tony and Lois Venne, Glenn and Esther Gilmore, David and Virginia Branch, Don and Lillian Mills, Dr. Lew and Tabi Dorgan, Earl and Virginia Milton, Jim and Shirley Herley and Milton and Madelyn Roberts.

After the show they had the pleasure of going backstage to meet the cast.

DESPITE OUR plentiful rainfall, the Organ Grinders have been having a devastating water shortage. A group of amateur musicians, they may start carrying canteens in self defense.

Eva Caraco, past presidnet of the group, had a luncheon in honor of new prexy, Helen Wilson, in the Caraco's delightful Huntington Harbour home. Everything was going along swimmingly (you'll pardon the expression) when they had to turn off all water in the area, due to some emergency pipe problems in the Harbour. When you're entertaining a bunch of women it's usually so convenient to have three bathrooms. Oh, well.

That's not all, the new officers first met officially at Juanita Deffenbaugh's. Helen, plus Bette Stephens, Alice Minnix, Erla Kruft, Eva Caraco, Lanelle Fosholdt and Josephine Nordstrom and hostess Juanita are the officers. Just before all were due, Juanita was advised water would be turned off from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. She filled every receptacle she could find with water, including the bathtub. Luncheon and business went off on schedule but thank goodness for hospitable neighbors.

BUZZ OF serious conversation frequently gave way to mirth, in fact, uproarious laughter, when Virginia Country Club women golfers of the Niners met at Marcia Ellis' Park Estates home Friday for brunch and a planning session.

TRY SYSTEMATIC APPROACH—

Sweep that housecleaning under the carpet . . .

By working out a systematic approach to keeping your home neat and clean, you can reduce time and energy on the job, and improve the results as well.

"Cleaning the house takes up the largest amount of the homemaker's time, next to preparing meals, and it's an area where slipshod methods are most apt to be found," reports Mrs. Mary Gaffney, director of a national home institute.

Out of a total homemaking work week of 49 hours 14 minutes, city homemakers average 7 hours 20 minutes on housecleaning, including dusting, vacuuming, polishing, sweeping, mopping, and similar cleaning tasks. Not included in the figures is time spent doing dishes or washing clothes.

Farm homemakers, with a workweek of 61 hours 15 minutes, spend 9 hours 37 minutes on the same tasks.

Here are the steps she recommends:

● Make a written list of all cleaning tasks that must be done daily, weekly, monthly, and seasonally.

Daily cleaning tasks, for example, might include sweeping and light mopping of floors and dusting furniture. Weekly jobs could cover vacuuming, silver polishing, and floor washing.

Monthly projects would include polishing of furniture and metal objects, such as copper and brass, cleaning of windows, mirrors, and decorative glassware, and cleaning ceramic tiles in baths and kitchen.

Seasonal projects consist of major housecleaning, including painting and wall-washing; and cleaning and repair of outdoor furniutre.

● Next, fit these tasks into your daily work schedule. Plan out a month in advance, and schedule these jobs to be done at specific times. Post a list of what has to be done in your kitchen so you won't forget it.

● Allow enough time so that each operation can be carried through to completion. For instance, the continuation of sweeping, dusting, and mopping the floors throughout the entire house is easier than cleaning the floor in one room, then switching to another task in that same room.

This method also saves you the extra handling of tools and materials that's otherwise required when you change work frequently.

● Obtain the proper cleaning tools and aids, make sure they're in working order, and keep them in a convenient place. If you can, set up a special closet for cleaning equipment. Use pegs, clips, and simple shelving to keep materials neatly stored and easy to get at.

● Take advantage of the latest in home cleaning aids to save you steps and time.

Throughout this entire analysis of housecleaning, the most important thing is to be aware of what you have been doing and to ask yourself if your present methods can be improved.

"Next time don't let that brush salesman in!!!"

His firm a bit of Americana

in 1906, direct selling was anything but an acceptable way of making a living," he said.

"Charlatans and fast-talking peddlers had tainted the trade."

Fuller Brush Co. was a one-man operation until 1910," he explained. "I took orders, made brushes in a basement, delivered them on Saturday (pay day) and collected $65 for my first week in Hartford, Conn.

"My customers were my designers. I listened to their comments and filled their needs for brushes with longer handles or curved ends."

BY 1910 the budding industrialist increased his production team to 12 by hiring nine men to make brushes in the twisted-in-wire principle which he had perfected.

His was the first company to utilize mass production of brushes in the U.S. Up to that time, brush making had largely been a household craft.

The company also achieved coast-to-coast stature in 1910 when Fuller placed ads for dealers in a national magazine. In 1916, with 260 dealers on the payroll, the company grossed $30,000. Sales hit the $1 million mark in 1919. By 1960, its gross was $2 million weekly.

"The emancipation of women who were looking for shortcuts to free them from housekeeping chores is one of the factors that led to our phenomenal success," he said.

In 1940, the company underwent a major change when the nylon bristle succeeded hog bristles. The life of a brush was increased fourfold.

"We found it necessary to diversify our products which now number more than 200 items such as cosmetics, vitamins and cleaning supplies."

WHAT DOES he see for the future?

"The demand always governs future products," he replied. "Look at the revolutionary change a simple little valve made in creating the demand for acrosol containers."

Although his son, Avard, is president of the company, Fuller maintains personal contact with the production plants in New York, Connecticutt and Canada.

"DURING THE past 50 years more than 200,000 men from all walks of life have sold Fuller products. A former governor of Virginia and the actor, Robert Morse, were Fuller Brush Men. So was Billy Graham, who once said his experience with Fuller probably was the best sales training he ever had."

One of the newest recruits in the ranks of Fuller Brush Men is the grandson of the chairman of the board.

"I'm very pleased about his decision to join the company," Fuller beamed.

PENNEY'S FOR MILLIONS

Corsets to Chelsea, the price is light

ized, of course — the local store is retail outlet No. 1,664 in the general merchandise chain, second largest in the world.)

To get an inside story on the Penney operation, I recently visited the 45-story J. C. Penney Building, nerve center for the vast empire, which shares airspace with the towering monoliths of glass and steel in New York's famed Rockefeller Center.

It's a heroic monument to the "Quality First" motto of founder James Cash Penney who, at 92, still visits his impressive suite of offices daily.

In this bustling edifice, the present is deeply rooted in the "Golden Rule" principles of buying and selling which Penney pioneered in the early 1900s back in Kemmerer, Wyo.

Here one can browse through early day mementos (such as the ledger quoted above) . . . here one can wax nostalgic over the first wooden counter on which Penney served customers his first day of business.

And here—in one of the most modern and best-equipped consumer product testing facilities in the country—one can see the 65-year outgrowth of Penney's determination to sell quality merchandise at the lowest possible price.

THAT'S WHY if you buy a permanent press garment at Penney's today, you know everything about it — the fabric, the trim, the seams — will iron in the wash.

You can be sure because it's been tested. And tested. And tested.

I personally saw a rack full of rejects — ill-fated garments that will never find their way into Penney stockrooms. A child's dress, for instance, came out smooth and wrinkle-free — except for the limp lace trim. It didn't pass the test. In a junior dress, the fabric came through with flying colors. But the seams rippled.

"Unless the entire garment is wrinkle free, we turn it down," said the tester.

FOR THAT PROTECTION you can thank James Cash Penney himself.

The idea of product testing (so important today!) started with his first buying trips to New York in the early 1900s — when he went to the Big City for items needed in his vest-pocket inventory guide.

A washbasin, a cake of soap and a pitcher of water were his tools. A small hotel room in New York was his first testing laboratory.

Before he bought merchandise to take back to his trusting customers in Wyoming, he first washed swatches of the fabric to test them for shrinkage and color-fastness.

Today, test tubes, chemicals, microscopes, launderometers, fadeometers, machines for testing tensile and bursting strengths, steel balls, indelible inks, washing machines, abrasives and an entire floor of the central offices have taken the place of a room in a small hotel.

Every garment sold by the chain is first tested in a multitude of ways — for color fastness, weight of materials, wearing qualities, composition, resistance to fire, susceptibility to water, warmth and muth resistance.

ANOTHER PENNEY idea that has revolutionized the wardrobes of millions of American women: mass-produced fashions at prices all can afford.

Take silk stockings.

Back in his early years, Penney heard of a hosiery manufacturer who had a great many idle machines. Penney approached him with a proposition to produce full-fashioned silk hose that could retail for 95c a pair.

The manufacturer said it couldn't be done. The Penney company agreed to work with him to prove it COULD be done.

Before long the hosiery manufacturer was back on his feet, working three daily shifts. All his machines were busy. His overhead went down and, while his profit per dozen was not large, his overall profit was substantially increased.

WITH VARIATIONS, the same story has been repeated over and over again. Similar price cuts for the customer have been worked out with manufacturers of everything from gloves and underwear to hats and overalls.

As Penney says today: "In the case of the silk stockings, we simply did not agree they were a luxury item, as manufacturers and merchants thought them to be.

"We believe a person of moderate means has the same right to satisfy her desires as the person of substantial means. We set about to prove that belief . . . and the mere fact that silk hose had never been sold for as little as 95c was of no importance."

TODAY, that same philosophy has taken on international significance.

Would you believe Paris Originals for $13.98?

Or moderately priced designs by Mary Quant, innovator of that much-publicized Chelsea Street look that has revolutionized fashion in England and this country?

Both are available in Penney's Young Designer Series started five years ago.

In fact, when I was in the New York office of Lois Ziegler, fashion coordinator for the chain, there was much hubbub over several Mary Quant designs which had just arrived . . . and understandably so . . .

Because, according to Miss Ziegler, it was Penney's who discovered Miss Quant in the first place and brought her designs to this country.

Proving once again, it's difficult to match a Penney when it comes to providing high fashion at a low price.

SIXTY-FIVE YEARS AGO . . . on April 14, 1902 . . . Penney opened first store in Kemmerer, Wyo. From sunrise to nearly midnight, customers looked over his "Quality First" merchandise . . . bought dress goods, clothing, thread, needles, shoes, overcoats, overalls.

FIRST DAY'S RECEIPTS are counted by Mr. and Mrs. Penney in their one-room home above store. Sales for opening day: $466.59, an impressive figure in 1902. Today the Penney chain numbers 1,700 department stores, coast to coast.

Exhibit marks Palm Sunday

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

As part of its Palm Sunday observance today, First Baptist Church, Tenth Street and Pine Avenue, is showing paintings and prints from noon to 7 p.m.

The exhibit is part of the church's "Come Alive" Easter program to encourage the development of art appreciation among its members and in the community. Although not restricted to religious themes, the collection reflects fundamental spiritual values.

The Carl Frye Gallery has loaned the church paintings by Emil Bisttram of Taos, Pierre Clausade, Burt Proctor, John Hilton and other contemporary artists as well as etchings, woodcuts and prints by Rembrandt, Aldegrever, Martin Schongauer, Albrecht Durer, Pieter Bruegel, Lucas Van Leyden, Hans Baldung, and Hans Seball Beham.

An art committee made up of Charles Tingley, Margaret Lloyd and Gordon Barr selected the show.

"OUR GANG is a little old-fashioned compared to others," admits Willis Piper cheerfully.

"Our gang" is the Spectrum Club, a group of men who paint because that's what they like to do.

Last September, the club sent marines, seascapes, landscapes, portraits, clowns, street scenes and two abstracts — the work of 15 artists — for display in Long Beach's sister city, Yokkaichi, Japan.

"We were eager to portray a little of our land," explains Piper, who was in charge of the project.

Now, in return, 17 artists of Yokkaichi have sent paintings which are on view at Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave., where they will remain through March. The work is by members of the Gugen Fine Arts Club, of which A. Hotomi is president.

"There are representative scenes — fishing villages and nets, seascapes, abstracts, still lifes — that are really crackerjack," says Piper, immediate past president of Spectrum Club.

LONG BEACH artist Ben Messick is receiving excellent reviews of his current exhibit in the Springfield, Mo., art museum. His 40 paintings will be on display through March 29.

MARY JANE LELAND, associate professor of art at California State College, Long Beach, will judge Seal Beach Art League's fifth annual Stitchery Show.

The exhibit will open April 15 and will continue through May 14. Entries will be received April 9 through 13 from noon to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. No entry blanks are required but fees begin at $2 and are scaled according to size of the work.

For further information, contact Mrs. Pat Jones, president of the league, at the Art Center, Ocean Boulevard and Main Street, Seal Beach.

MORE THAN $2,000 in cash will be awarded to artists and craftsmen during the sixth annual La Mirada Arts and Culture Festival April 27 to 30.

The $500 purchase award will be for a painting to hang with previous winners in the new La Mirada Civic Center, now in the planning stage. Other prizes of $300 each will be given in abstract, impressionistic and traditional categories. Special awards of $150 also will be made.

Sculpture, ceramics and crafts will share $450 in awards. Artists 9 to 13 and 14 to 18 years of age will have their own junior arts show categories and prizes.

For detailed brochures write to La Mirada City Hall, zip code 90638. Howard Jacobson is chairman of the festival.

ONCE-A-YEAR DRIVE

Offers concert bargain

With three major attractions signed and two others to be announced, Community Concert Association March 27 will launch a membership drive.

Campaign officials remind would-be purchasers that this bargain in music is offered only once a year. In other words, admission to the coming season's five programs will be by season subscription only — no single admission tickets will be sold. Season tickets are $7 for adults and $3.50 for persons up to 21 years of age. They may be purchased at Community Concert headquarters in Humphreys Music Store, 135 E. Third St.

The three programs contracted for are the brilliant colorful Fiesta Mexicana, mezzo soprano Mildred Miller — star of Metropolitan, San Francisco and Vienna State operas — and I Solisti Veneti, a string ensemble of 14 musicians conducted by Claudio Scimone.

IN ADDITION, new subscribers will be given a bonus—admission to the final concert of the 1966-67 season for which pianist Andre Watts will soloist April 23. The young musician will accompany Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra on its world tour in the fall.

All Community Concerts are held in Municipal Auditorium.

Season tickets carry reciprocity privileges — they are honored by more than 100 Community Concert Associations in neighboring communities.

MILDRED MILLER

46th Bowl year opens on July 4

The 46th season of Symphonies Under the Stars will begin in Hollywood Bowl Tuesday, July 4, with the distinguished European conductor, Eugen Jochum, on the podium.

Van Cliburn will be the piano soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra for the opening.

"We are looking forward to our new season at Hollywood Bowl," said Joseph H. Salyers, general manager of the Southern California Symphony-Hollywood Bowl Association.

"Aside from our splendid opening with Cliburn and Mr. Jochum of the Concertgebouw of Amsterdam and Berlin Philharmonic orchestras, the season will contain such programming as a Brahms Festival in the second week, shared with The Royal Ballet of Covent Garden, and later a Beethoven Festival. We will be able to announce shortly the artists for these festivals and the other programs."

Klee added dimension to contemporary art

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

A retrospective of work by Paul Klee, 1879-1940 continues at the Pasadena Art Museum, 48 N. Los Robles, through April 2. Of the 181 works exhibited, several dozen are from Pasadena's own collection. Others have come from collections from all over the United States, Europe and South America. A simultaneous exhibit at the Guggenheim in New York will go on to Switzerland, Klee's home, while the Pasadena exhibit will circulate in this country.

Klee's significance in contemporary art is immeasurable. After the series of art movements which began with Impressionism in the 1860s, art needed a new rationale. Klee, along with Kandinsky and Mondrian helped formulate the concept that art was more than the construction of visual images. Art was to convey transcendent, universal meaning. Much of the reverence for art in today's world derives from the mystical beliefs of these men.

KLEE was also one of the Bauhaus faculty. The German art school, 1919-33, sought to create aesthetic forms from and in the industrial environment. For Klee, the magic was in the walking line — its direction could lead the viewer upward, or through, into ultimates.

Some of Klee's visual characters, besides line, are pointing arrows, humble materials and unpretentious works. Birds, animals, children, and the serpent people his Edens.

However, Klee's works convey inventiveness, whimsy, and sardonic humor rather than profundity.

While many of Klee's works were destroyed during Hitler's war on "degenerate bolshevik art," over 9,146 remain, a glorious heritage of meaningful consideration of life on this planet in this time.

The exhibit may be seen on Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Wednesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays. There is an admission charge for this show.

Great pianist in recitals

Artur Rubinstein will play Schumann's "Carnaval" next Sunday at 3 p.m. in The Music Center Pavilion. He also will be soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, directed by Zubin Mehta, March 30 at 8:30 p.m. and March 31 at 2 p.m. in The Pavilion, performing Brahms' "Concerto No. 2."

Pet Clark billed for L.B. April 2

"My dresses all look like blouses, hanging in the closet, because they're only about two feet long," says Petula Clark, dimunitive (5-feet, 100-pound) English songstress whose record sales in the United States alone have soared past the 5-million mark.

The international star, whose recordings are best-sellers in 14 countries, will come to Long Beach Municipal Auditorium for one performance Sunday, April 2, at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are on sale at Humphreys Music Store and all agencies.

About her clothes. The tiny singer has to have all of them made. Her favorite dressmaker is Dorothee Bis who has a small shop in Paris. No matter where she is, Pet dashes off a sketch of a dress she wants, sends it to Paris, and Dorothee makes it for her.

PETULA CLARK

BORN Petula Sally Olwen Clark in Epsom, England, Nov. 15, 1934, she was a movie star before she was 12, but, since she began recording at the age of 17, her cinema career has taken second place.

Her American record debut started with "Downtown," which won a Grammy Award in 1965. She won the Grammy again in 1966 with "I Know a Place."

Pet has written 30 songs, including scores for two French movies. She is married to Claude Wulff, a Frenchman whom she met when she cut records in Paris. They were married six months later. Her own favorite of songs she has written is "Two Rivers," composed to show her affection for her own England and her husband's France.

The two rivers The Thames and the Seine, of course!

Met star to sing Monday

Soprano Mary Costa will be guest artist on the final concert of the season for Symphony Association of Orange County Monday at 8:30 p.m. in Melodyland Theater. Tickets are on sale at 777 S. Main St., Orange.

With Eugene Ober conducting, the orchestra will play "Symphony No. 36" by Mozart, "Corinthians 13" by Paul Creston, "Adagio for Strings" by Samuel Barber and "Danzas Fantasticas" by Joaquin Turina.

Miss Costa, who is singing her fourth season at the Met, will perform excerpts from Handel's "Messiah," Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," Donizetti's "Don Pasquale" Bellini's "I Capuleti e Montecchi," Puccini's "La Rondine" and Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Concert Reminder

Henryk Szeryng, Mexican violinist of Polish descent, will be soloist Saturday at 8 p.m. when Zubin Mehta conducts Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in the Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium. The program will include Dvorak's "Symphony No. 8" and Brahms' "Violin Concerto."

AFS appeals to local families

"Needless to say, there is much excitement and joy for all when a doctor says, 'You are now the proud parents of a bouncing baby boy!' Can you imagine the excitement when a family hears — 'Congratulations you are now the proud parents AND sister and brother of a bouncing Italian teen-ager!' This happened to us last July."

So said Betty Lou (Mrs. Gordon) Hayter, 759 Terraine Ave. The Hayters are among five Long Beach families currently hosting American Field Service students. Their adopted son-for-a-year is Gian (pronounce it John) Alfonso Siros Negretti from Italy who is the only AFS student at Wilson. His American brother is Andy Hayter, 18, and his sister is Wendy, 16.

UNFORTUNATELY, too few families have opened their homes and hearts to exchange students from overseas. And this, in essence, is a plea for more qualified families with high school age children to apply for one of the AFSers. The reward? Unlimited.

Kenneth and Billie Egan, 315 Ellis St., are hosting a student from Brazil, Sandra Rodrigues Gonsalves, who is enrolled at Jordan with their daughter, Patricia, 17, a senior and candidate for American Abroad Winter program. The Egans, who have a son, Michael, 14, a ninth grader at Lindbergh Junior High, expressed it this way: "We felt that in having a student in our home we would be helping in our small way to bring our relationship and understanding closer with our allies and give them the opportunity of learning more about our country and ways of life."

THE ONLY other families hosting students from abroad on the AFS program are Mr. and Mrs. Glen H. Arrasmith, 74 E. 56th St., hosts to Ludwig Weber from Germany, also a student at Jordan. Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Bailey, 1042 Tehachapie Drive, have Mats Olof Olsson from Sweden and Mr. and Mrs. Wray J. Eggart, 2055 Dawson Ave., have Rita Beatriz Baunaly of Argentina, both students at Polytechnic High School.

Getting back to the Hayters — "It all began," Betty Lou explained, "when our son, asked us to consider having an American Field Service student live with us during his senior year at Wilson. This wasn't a new idea in our family. We had a nephew fortunate enough to be chosen to study abroad in 1957.

"WHAT WE heard and learned about AFS at that time impressed us all." She said that when the opportunity arose, they were eager to host a student. "When June comes," she said wistfully, "we will have to say goodby to Gian, but we'll do so knowing we have taken a very small but very important step toward understanding our fellow neighbors. As the years go by we, and especially the children, will appreciate more and more our good fortunate in having had a unique and fruitful experience."

Gian will go home to Italy with many previous misconceptions of America clarified and, in turn, will be able to describe, from first hand experience, how things really are in the United States.

The Egans, as well as their Brazilian houseguest, can't get over how marvelously the New York AFS headquarters were able to "match" them, simply from paper statistics supplied by AFS officials here.

"I could never believe," says Sandy, "that they would find a family so like my own." And, of course, that is part of the overall plan to place students with similar backgrounds in their own homelands with families here.

"Ken and I," said Mrs. Egan, "have never felt there was a visitor in our home. From the beginning she fit in so well that immediately she was just like one of the family. This has been an experience that we shall always remember. We wouldn't have missed it for the world."

AMERICAN Field Service urges any family interested in becoming a host family to high school students from a foreign land for the next school year to call or visit the AFS representative at the nearest high school. They will be provided with full information regarding qualifications for participation.

In order for a high school to have two students from abroad, it is necessary to receive six applications from homes within the area, according to Frances Sudenga, 4154 Greenbrier Road, publicity chairman for the Long Beach chapter. From these, two families best qualified for specific foreign student applicants will be chosen.

This year neither Lakewood or Millikan High Schools have AFS students because not enough qualified families offered to host. When this occurs, the school which has no foreign students becomes ineligible to send applications rom its own students for the American's Abroad program.

MANY misconceptions about America and its people have been dispelled through the years in day to day living together and observance of our customs and culture. Close relationships almost invariably result. The same is true of young American students given the opportunity to study abroad.

Schoolmates are engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Schlitgus, Lakewood, announce betrothal of their daughter, Jacquelynne, to William A. Pawneshing.

Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Alex Pawneshing, Lakewood. Both are graduates of Lakewood High School and attend Cerritos Junior College.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Teen-ager underestimates self

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've been going steady with Terry for over a year. He tells me he loves me, but for some reason I have the feeling he goes with me because no other girl will go with him.

I love him and I'd like to be sure he love sme. How can I find out exactly how he feels?

SIXTEEN

dear sixteen;

For pity sake, why not take his word for it? Do his actions speak otherwise?

You must not have a very good opinion of yourself to feel the way you do and that's propably the root of all your trouble.

How does a boy go around "proving" he loves his girl except by being good to her, by being honest and true? What more can he do?

M.M.

P.S. You give Terry up and I'll bet you'll find there are lots of girls who would go with him.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What do you do about a man who says he likes you a lot but never call or asks you out?

I see Sid once in a while, but it's purely accidental. He always tells me he's been thinking about me and even says "call or come over sometime."

The only reason I'd call him would be to ask him why he doesn't call me. I've been tempted but maybe I'm afraid of what he'd say. Anyway, Im not going to do it.

If I didn't know different, I'd think he doesn't care anything about me, but I know he does. How do you figure him?

WANDA

DEAR WANDA:

To me, actions speak much louder than words and your Sid's actions tell me he really doesn't care about you. He makes interesting conversation but that's all.

He may like you a little but, as you can plainly see, not enough to take time for a phone call even.

If you have any designs on this boy, forget it.

M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've been dating Harry for a while and I think he's really a great guy, but he's such a liar.

He doesn't have to lie to me — whatever he does is his business and none of mine. And, actually, he hasn't anything to hide. He lies about small, unimportant things for no reason at all.

I know when he's lying and I tell him so, but he says he "never" lies.

What's the matter with a guy like that? He wants to go steady but why bother when I can't believe a word he says? He needs help. What can I do?

SORRY FOR HIM

DEAR SORRY FOR HIM:

He needs help, all right, but neither you nor I is qualified. He needs professional help but he has to recognize that fact first. Obviously he is a compulsive liar and the sad part of it is, he really believer he is not lying. A lot of people think they must lie because the truth isn't good enough, isn't big enough for their egos. They are sick people.

The best thing for yo uis not to get involved with this boy.

M.M.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Now call this CO 'Capt. Cook'

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Food Editor

"Coming," he's a captain—"going," he's a medical doctor.

But, whether you address him as "Capt. Paul R. Engle, USN," or "Paul R. Engle, M.D.," today's Chef of the Week has just thrown out his anchor and come ashore to be the first commanding officer of the Long Beach Naval Hospital which was commissioned on Feb. 1.

Born in Petoskey, Mich., his father was also a doctor. His qualifications to wear both "hats" are evidenced by achievements which read like "Who's Who in This Business of Living."

HE HAS A B.S. degree from Albion College, in Michigan and an M.D. degree from Michigan University's School of Medicine. He completed his internship at the Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, Ind. and since that time has continued his education with the following graduate courses: Internal Medicine, George Washington University; Internal Medicine, Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md.; Tropical Medicine, Tulane University, and Industrial College of the Armed Forces.

Commissioned a lieutenant, jg in the Medical Corps, U.S. Navy in 1941, he had risen to the rank of captain by 1955.

Reporting for active duty in November, 1941, Capt. Engle completed the indoctrination course for medical officers at the Naval Medical School, Washington, D.C. Since then he has served as medical officer, both afloat and ashore, which included participation in operations in the Aleutians, and the occupation of Attu. He was also chief of medicine at the U.S. Naval Hospital, Guam, Mariana Islands.

A TOUR of duty in the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy Department, Washington, D.C., followed where he studied internal medicine and served as head of Ship's Facilities Section, Planning Division. He was next ordered to the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery where he served as director physical qualifications and medical records division.

One of his most rewarding experiences was when he assumed duty in 1965 as commanding officer of the USS Repose, a $10 million ship staffed with 22 doctors, 29 nurses and 250 corpsmen. During his tour of duty here Capt. Engle had seen 3,000 patient admissions.

Capt. Engle wears the Legion of Merit, American Defense Service Medal, the National Defense Service Medal with one star, and the World War II Victory Medal. He is also recipient of the Vietnam Service Medal and the Vietnam Campaign Medal.

He is a member of the Sigma Nu and the Phi Chi Medical Fraternities, American Medical Association, and is a Fellow of the Royal Society, Tropical Medicine and Hygiene.

CAPT. ENGLE was married in 1943 to the former Miss Eloise Hopper of Seattle, Wash. She and their three children, Paula, 17, David, 15, and Peggy, 14, reside in Falls Church, Va. They will join him in Long Beach in June.

Eloise Engle has scored a reputation on her own as a writer. Ten books published to her credit include fiction for teen-agers, while her non-fiction works include "Escape Systems for Aircraft and Submarines," "Satellite Tracking," and the "Alaskan Earthquake", to mention a few.

Off duty, Capt. Engle enjoys frest water fishing and golf. His favorite dish is Planked Steak.

PLANKED STEAK BY ENGLE

Slash the fat in several places at the edge of a 1½-inch sirloin, porterhouse, or rump steak so the meat will not buckle while cooking. Spread lightly with butter; dust with salt and pepper. Place on an oiled, preheated broiler, 3 inches from the source of heat. Broil 3 minutes, or until well browned. Dust with salt and pepper. Turn with cooking tongs.

Broil until browned on the second side; dust with salt and pepper. Reduce heat; broil 16 minutes for steak cut 1½ inches thick, 20 minutes if cut 2 inches thick.

When done, spread over 1 tablespoon softened unsalted butter to each pound of steak. Serve with a Sauce Bearnaise or Maitre d'Hotel Butter. Pass bottled meat sauces of choice in the original containers, their hallmark of excellence.

Carve steak across the grain into long thin slices. Serve 3 to a person. Garnish with a line of sauteed mushroom crowns seasoned with tarragon butter.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

Fall comes to Aussies

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — It's late, green summer now Down Under. A warm 78 degrees with a cooling breeze blowing across the isthmus city from the Pacific to the Tasman Sea.

This is all new country for Americans. (Only 20,000 last year, mainly on overnight cruise ships. But on April 1 the roundtrip air fare West Coast to Australia will drop from $1008 to $756. Or better.

BOAC will begin service April on the route. With QANTAS and Air New Zealand, the Commonwealth airlines will have 16 flights a week each way.

* * * *

"We had thought of going to Australia or New Zealand with an idea of staying . . ."

NEW ZEALAND doesn't welcome immigrants. There are quotas, but they're small. Australia, with a country as big as America and only 11.5 million people, is looking for them. They'll pay part of your passage if you qualify.

"Are there any sailboats for charter around Acapulco or Puerto Vallarta?

AT ACAPULCO a couple of days ago, somebody wanted to rent me a 50-foot boat — at $90 a day! But did you know Mike Burke's Windjammer Cruises are operating down here now? They run the schooner Plynesia — 151 feet. A 10-day cruise along offbeat ports for about $220. Get a folder by writing Michael Hayes, Hotel Caleta, Acapulco, Mexico.

* * * *

". . . shopping for women's sports clothing in Mexico?"

I USUALLY bring something back from Peggy Pena's—she's the designer in Acapulco. Any of her things will be smart and excellently done.

Acapulco's "season" seems to be getting longer. That warm, lovely sunset town was still swinging the other night when I got on the QANTAS minute-to-midnight jet. Champagne and chicken sandwiches while the green-and-gold lights were still under the wing. And that's living.

* * * *

"Did you write that a foreign tip can be figured the same as the price of a local package of cigarettes?"

DAVID DODGE (Poor Man's Guide to Europe, Orient etc.) says he estimates a local tip by the price of a local bottle of beer. (Probably cigarettes would work too. That is a tip equivalent to our tip for doormen, hat check girls, and so on. The tip we do at 25 to 50 cents.

* * * *

"Could you give me some idea of living costs if we rented a house in Hawaii?"

I DID THIS last year but still cannot determine whether I came out better or worse than home. Renting a car is expensive. Canned goods seemed a little higher. But Island beef was lower than home. New Zealand lamb is very inexpensive.

Entertainment is cheap. Beach and ocean are free. And the State parks so fine you enjoy picknicking there. Over a long time you'd save on clothing. What you wear is inexpensive, informal and not much of it.

Now I don't think this works if you are planning Honolulu and the Waikiki route. You're into more clothing, night clubs, theaters. You have to get on Kauai or Maui or the Big Island to keep costs down.

If everybody on the street is in sandals and shorts and muumuus, stay. If they're wearing coats and ties, get out of town.

Dine and drive map available

A free road map and guide to 400 top gourmet restaurants in Britain is out, revised and up-to-date for 1967. Offered by Victor Britain, one of the leading car-hire companies in Britain, it is available from the British Travel Association, 680 Fifth Ave., New York City 10019.

The map lists 40 top dining spots in London alone, and covers the area from Ullapool in Northern Scotland; to St. Ives, near Land's End, in outer Cornwall.

A Canadian goose is depicted on $1 coin.

New coins issued by Canadians

The Royal Canadian Mint in Ottawa, is getting into the festival spirit. When Canada celebrates 100 years of confederation in 1967, the historic milestone will be recorded in Canada's money.

Special coins are already being minted, and presentation sets of coins are being made up.

Each Centennial Presentation Coin set will contain a $20 gold piece plus six subsidiary coins ranging from one cent to $1, all for normal circulation. The sets are priced at $40 each.

The gold coin, the size of a 25-cent piece, is the first issued by the mint since 1914. It will have an effigy of the Queen on the face and the Canadian coat of arms on the reverse side.

* * * *

THE OTHER coins depict Canadian wildlife. The one cent piece has a dove on the back the five-cent, a rabbit; the 10-cent, a mackerel; the 25-cent, a wildcat and the dollar, a Canadian goose. All have an effigy of the Queen on the face. The coins will be contained in a five-inch-square case made of high quality leather.

Another centennial set will contain a silver medallion instead of the gold piece, and will sell for $12.

It will also be possible to purchase these sets, minus the gold coin or silver medallion, for $4. These common currency sets will be available in plastic packages.

Because of gold import regulations, the silver medallion series, and the plastic packages are the centennial coin sets which the visitors will be taking home as historic souvenirs.

JACOBY

Pre-empt is doubled

The opening bid of four is even more pre-emptive than the bid of three. It also should be a substantially better hand. This is because, somehow or other, three-level pre-empts are seldom doubled while four level pre-empts frequently are.

Thus when we open with a four bid we don't have 10 tricks in our own hand but we do have a hand that is almost surely going to make eight tricks by itself and that has some compensating values.

In first or second seat we would open four spades irrespective of vulnerability with: Spades—A K Q 10 8 7 6, H—2, D—Q J 10 2, C—2. We would not open four spades with: Spades—A K Q J 10 9 8, H—3 2, D—7 6, C—8 4.

The first had is likely to make four spades if partner can give us one trick. The later won't make four spades unless partner can give us three.

We have another rule for four-level pre-empts. We never have more than one ace and, if our partner has passed, we do not ever have solid trumps and a void suit.

TODAY'S hand shows the advantage of this hard and fast rule. South had a normal four-spade opening. North looked over his big hand and decided that South might well hold two aces. Therefore, North bid four no-trump.

When South bid five diamonds to show one ace, North signed off at five spades but they were one trick too high.

West opened the ace of diamonds and shifted to the queen of hearts. East took two heart tricks and game and rubber had been thrown out the window.

TRAVEL BY THE BOOK

World at your elbow

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

Travel has become a fetish with Americans, so much so that the legions who already have junketed extensively now are scanning newspapers, magazines, brochures, pamphlets and other sources for ideas which might help them to decide on some new destination.

For these veteran travelers, for those whose journeys have been much less extensive, and for those who merely take armchair peregrinations, the world is only an elbow away with "Encyclopedia of World Travel" (Doubleday & Co., Garden City, N. Y.; 2 vols. $9.95), a single work which contains vital reference travel information on every state and country in the world.

Realizing a decade ago the growing need for such a work, to keep pace with accelerated travel, Doubleday brought out its first Encyclopedia in 1961. It quickly became a mainstay, selling 200,000 copies, but as new countries emerged, and new attractions were made available, it became outdated in a few years. Realizing a new, completely revised edition was a necessity to keep pace with all developments of each country, the Doubleday staff and 20 contributing editors started the project in 1964. To make certain the new edition would be the most comprehensive and up-to-date available, the staff also worked closely with state and national tourist boards, consulates, and even with United Nations missions. The text is augmented by hundreds of new detailed maps and photographs.

In addition to travel information on the land, weather, cities, sports, special events, and dining and shopping, the work includes sections on agriculture, industry and history of each country.

Volume 1 covers the United States (state by state), Canada, Mexico, Central America, the Caribbean and South America; Volume 2, Europe, Africa, the Middle East, Asia and the Pacific.

HOW is the average American traveler treated these days, particularly in Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Yugoslavia? And is he allowed to get his money's worth by going where he pleases?

The people are way out in front of their leaders, says the inimitable Ilka Chase in her fourth travel book, "FRESH FROM THE LAUNDRY" (Doubleday, $4.95). They are unfailingly polite and hospitable, quick to offer friendship and understanding. Then she muses that "they are probably as curious to see the horns of the Capitalist devils as we are to see the tails of the Communists."

Writing in her charming, detailed, informal style—as if she were telling all in a letter to Auntie Mabel—Miss Chase confesses to encountering certain problems. But she and her husband—Dr. Norton Brown, with whom she was traveling by car—look upon the two-month trip as worth the effort in time, money adventure. At least, she gives that impression.

Of course, a brief visit to Germany en route, and to Greece before departing for home, helped. But, on a TWA plane bound back to New York, she confesses to happily testing the comfort of the seats and leafing through the pages of glossy society. After all, they are Americans, members of the club.

TWO NEW books about Mexico, to be read with delight and then tucked away in a handy place for ready reference, are now in the bookstalls.

One is an all new edition of "MEXICO" by the Sunset editors (Lane Magazine & Book Co., Menlo Park, Calif., $1.95). Typical of Sunset books, it covers all the bases — border regulations, customs, modes of travel, entertainment, shopping, prices; where to go, what to do and see in the larger cities, plus trips on various main highways including West Coast Hwy. 15. Amply illustrated with new maps and photographs.

"WORLD ENCYCLOPEDIA of Travel," a two-volume work for those who travel or like to read about travel, lists hundreds of out-of-the-way vacation resorts, including Vina del Mar, one of South America's finest, overlooking the Pacific at the foot of the Chilean Andes.

The second volume, "MEXICO: BARGAIN PARADISE" (Harlo Press, 16721 Hamilton Ave., Detroit, Mich., $2.45) was written by William T. Noble, who has been carrying on a love affair with Mananaland for 30 years. He describes the more famous festivals, offers worthwhile offbeat tips (how to hire a mariachi band, settling accidents, etc.), what to do in case of sickness or death, what to skip or see, and, finally, a chapter on retirement in Mexico.

GETTING around on minor roads — some of them no more than cow paths — to discover local color and historic sites in Southern California is made easy by a series of books authored by Russ Leadabrand, inveterate explorer of the Southland back country.

Now comes Leadabrand's fifth dandy, a compact guide called "EXPLORING CALIFORNIA BYWAYS FROM KINGS CANYON TO THE MEXICAN BORDER," based on a series of articles published in Westways Magazine. Sixteen byways are explored, including the Randsburg Mining District, the San Andreas Fault and the Butterfield Trail. The book, priced at $1.95, is published by Ward Ritchie of Los Angeles and distributed by Lane Magazine & Book Col, Menlo Park, Calif.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES, study, programs, and general travel information are all given complete coverage in the 19th annual edition of "WORK, STUDY, TRAVEL ABROAD," a reference for students (U.S. National Student Association, 1355 Westwood Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90024, $1.95). New and up-to-date information includes a section on Mexico, a rundown on the current work situation in each European country, a list of European festivals and events, and a discussion of the pros and cons of student tours.

THE AESTHETIC side of the City by the Golden Gate—the land and the waters, trees, parks, wildlife and sky—comes to life in "THE NATURAL WORLD OF SAN FRANCISCO" (Doubleday, $6.95), a book that certainly should bring exclamation from nature lovers.

Harold Gilliam, author of "San Francisco Bay" and other books, and Michael Bry, a photographer with a sensitive eye, combine efforts to reveal new wonders in the San Francisco area in this handsome, profusely illustrated volume.

'Paris Package' to be repeated

Air France's popular "Paris Welcome Package Tour," introduced early in 1966, will be repeated in 1967, the airline has announced.

The $14 package, effective between Jan. 4 and March 31, is offered exclusively for Air France passengers on Flight 010, which departs New York daily at 10 a.m.

For $14 in addition to the jet fare, the package offers transfer from Orly Airport to the Hotel Claridge on the Champs Elysees, a double room with bath, entrance to the 1 a.m. show at the Lido and champagne, American style breakfast the following morning, a half-day sightseeing tour of Paris by motor coach, and a car rental bonus coupon which allows the user to rent a car at a flat daily rate without a mileage charge.

The $14 all inclusive price is based on double occupancy of the room. On a single occupancy basis, the package is $17.

Tucson opens big Festival

TUCSON, Ariz. — This city's famous Festival Week, opening March 31, will be crowned by an amazing burst of desert blossoms to make Tucson THE place to go for a Spring vacation.

The week-long activities open at 275-year-old Mission San Xavier Del Bac with the "Fiesta San Xavier," an event with music and narration depicting the founding of the mission. More than 250 Papago and Yaqui Indians take part in the bonfire and torchlight religious event.

Other events in the celebration will include craft fairs, parades, street fairs, a Pioneer Jubilee at old Fort Lowell, art show and square dancing. No admission is charged to any of the events.

IN ADDITION to the festival, Tucson roars with spring activities.

For the sports-minded, the Cleveland Indians are to play a nine-game spring schedule at their Tucson training grounds.

Sightseeing and touring is a never-ending pastime in Tucson.

You may see a gun fight at Old Tucson or explore the life of the desert at the world-famous Arizona Sonora Desert Museum.

It's easy to study the giant Saguaro Cactus in a nine-mile drive through Saguaro National Monument or you can explore the depths of mile-deep Colossal Cave where reported train robbers have hidden their loot.

BEAUTIFUL Sabino Canyon and Mt. Lemmon offer trails for horseback riding or just hiking with bird watching and rock hounding a favorite with the visitors. Guide centers at Sabino Canyon offer conducted tours daily and its camping and picnic areas are outstanding.

Tucson also has outstanding night-time entertainment and dog racing is held here for those who prefer to watch top bred greyhounds compete in 10 races nightly.

It's a record!

The world moves fast — and so do we! A Pan Am jet recently made a new record from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic of 151 seconds. That's right, 151 seconds, or 2 minutes 31 seconds across the Isthmus of Panama.

Animal rites set Saturday at L.A. plaza

The 1,600-year-old tradition of the Blessing of the Animals will be revived Saturday at the Old Plaza, where Los Angeles began, the All-Year Club announces.

Adults and children will bring their animals, ranging from hamsters to cows, for a 2 p.m. parade through Olvera St. led by a satin-black cow blanketed with white gardenias and a crown of orchids.

The procession will round the Plaza where, Father Peter Caballer CMF, of the Old Plaza Church, will sprinkle a few drops of holy water from a golden receptacle and then chant an age-old benediction.

From 10 talented beauties, Miss Los Angeles County will be selected in ceremonies beginning at 8:30 p.m. March 29 at Morningside High School auditorium in Inglewood. First and second runners-up also will be selected and the girls, themselves, will choose "Miss Congeniality." Johnny Grant will act as master of ceremonies.

ECHO BAY'S FOR WATER SPORTSMEN

Nevada resort shuns slots

LAS VEGAS — Another hotel recently opened its doors near this fun city, and there isn't a footlight, stage, slot machine or casino to be seen. There isn't even a swimming pool as such, but there is swimming in Lake Mead.

This is newly-completed Echo Bay Resort, about 50 miles from Las Vegas, on the Overton arm of sunny Lake Mead; and it boasts some of the best accomodations in the West.

Fishermen, boaters, swimmers and water skiers will not miss the lack of show business attractions, because here, on possibly the finest natural harbor on the lake, is a first class resort with rooms to equal any in beauty, a spacious dining room and a quiet, comfortable cocktail lounge, set above a marina in the heart of Lake Mead's little-known upper basin.

* * * *

NEAR THE hotel, nestled in a natural curve of the hills, is a well-shaded campground, sprinkled with picnic tables, fireplaces, shade trees and running water. A modern shower room and restroom serve the campground.

Within the bounds of the Lake Mead National Recreation area, and administered by efficient Park Service rangers, the Echo Bay area is a complete water-oriented vacation area. There is a trailer village nearby, with all facilities for both camp and vacation trailers, as well as the larger mobile homes.

Down at the water's edge, a floating marina carries everything for the fisherman or boater.

Boating out of Echo Bay offers some interesting scenery, sandy, sun-warmed beaches for swimming and skiing as well as probably the hottest bass water on the lake at this time. Cathedral Cove, just 5 miles from the harbor, stuns the eyes with canyon walls that vault from the water and soar hundreds of feet. The upper basin offers more than a million surface acres of water for exploring, and many of the places such as Ramshead, Heron Island, Cleopatra Cove and Surprise reef are as interesting as their names.

ANOTHER nice fact about Echo Bay is that getting there is half the fun. A new highway cuts its way out of Las Vegas through the rainbow hues of Bitter Spring Valley, over terrain formerly accessible only to the Jeep or horse rider. The road connects the upper basin conveniently with the lower basin, which in past years has been, because of the rugged landscape, a trip of nearly 100 miles. Now it's less than 30.

Las Vegas is pretty easy to reach, also, with the freeway system providing fast link with the East and Southern California. Sun lovers can finish breakfast coffee, hitch up the boat trailer, hit the freeway and be on the water of Lake Mead by mid-afternoon.

Even for those not staying the night at the lake, the many hotels and motels in the Las Vegas area cater to boat owners, offering maps of the lake, fishing information, and even making show reservations to cap off a day of fun on the water.

* * * *

JUST AS Las Vegas has more than one good showroom (there are several in most of the more than 15 hotels) Lake Mead's upper basin country offers much to see besides the Echo Bay area. Nearby Rogers Springs is a well developed natural warm water pool, suitable for swimming the year 'round, with fireplaces, shaded picnic tables and a good view of the lake. Farther north is the grotesque collection of sandstone formations and stark beauty of Valley of Fire State Park.

In the little farming community of Overton, beyond Valley of Fire, a "must see" is the Lost City museum, where artifacts gleaned from the area are on display, as well as an accurate reconstruction of the pueblo-like Indian dwellings. This early civilization was said to be a peaceful, fun-loving tribe. Most probably these people, like the nearly 14 million annual visitors to Las Vegas, felt it was a great place for a good time.

WITH A WELL-PROTECTED HARBOR and the recent opening of a new hotel, Echo Bay, in the upper basin of Lake Mead, already has become a popular spot with boaters. Spectacular scenery and sandy beaches add to the lure of excellent largemouth bass fishing.

Travel and RESORTS

Copenhagen to mark her 800th birthday

This year some 370,000 Americans will visit Scandinavia and they couldn't have selected a better time to go. For 1967 marks the 800th birthday of Copenhagen, that fair city of the North which is SAS's gateway into all of Europe.

Celebrations will extend throughout the year with special exhibitions, ballet, music, art and sports events. However, the party will officially begin on June 14 then the mayors of 100 foreign cities — 10 of which from North America — will converge on the city and be treated to banquets, torchlight parades, fireworks and other high jinks.

On June 16, the world's longest table will be set up down the middle of the Stroget (shopping street) which normally is filled with aromas of freshly ground coffee and buttered pastries from its tantilizing shops. The mile-long table will offer beer, coffee and pancakes all day. Beer will be served in commemorative glasses shaped like ancient drinking horns. After consuming the beverage, the glass may be taken home as a souvenir. In the evening there will be dancing in the city squares.

* * * *

COMMEMORATING the founding of Hafnia (Latin equivalent for Copenhagen) in 1167 by Bishop Absalon, there will be a Carnival Parade on June 17 to depict the city from the time of Absalon to the present.

From Aug. 20 to Sept. 2, an athletic congress will be held for approximately 650 youths from 50 different countries. The competition will be appropriately called a "Hafniad."

Matson includes shore excursions on cruises

A new South Seas "Ports of Paradise Cruise Holiday" package, including the most colorful and interesting shore excursions in each port of call, is announced by Matson Lines' marketing director M. D. Vail.

The program embraces the regular 42-day cruises of the liners Mariposa and Monterey from Los Angeles to the South Pacific, New Zealand and Australia, with shore tours and cruise highlights covered by a single ticket.

The Mariposa and Monterey visit Bora Bora, Tahiti, Rarotonga, New Zealand, Australia, Noumea, Fiji, Niuafo'ou (better known as "Tin Can Island"), Pago Pago and Hawaii. Rates for the all-inclusive tour package start at $1,401.

* * * *

SHORE EXCURSIONS included in the "Posts of Paradise" cruise plan are the Moorea tour from Tahiti, a Tahiti Island tour, the Waitomo Caves and famed Glow Worm Grotto in New Zealand, Sydney city and night life tours, Noumea tour, Suva Harbor tour in Fiji and an around-the-island tour of Oahu in Hawaii.

Included in this program are the four spring 25 per cent reduced fare cruises: These sailing from Los Angeles are scheduled March 27, April 20, May 12 and June 5. Ports of Paradise brochures are available from travel agents and Matson offices.

Shakespeare fete readied

Three major productions have been announced for the 1967 San Diego National Shakespeare Festival. Two comedies and a tragedy will be presented in the Old Globe Theater, Balboa Park.

"Twelfth Night" will open the Festival season June 13, followed by "All's Well That Ends Well" June 16. The two comedies will alternate performances until "Othello" joins the repertory July 13. All three productions will be staged through Sept. 10. Performances will be nightly except Monday, with matinees Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

A professional repertory company is featured each summer by the non-profit theatre organization. Craig Noel has been producing director of the National Shakespeare Festival since its inception in 1949.

Electro-battery cars studied

LUCERNE — Two American automobile manufacturers who are planning the elimination of exhaust and noise problems in city traffic have sent engineers to this Swiss city to study construction of a passenger car with propulsion by an electro-battery. This may bring back the electro-automobile.

Travel show opens doors on March 31

Travel Row again will be a prominent feature of the Los Angeles Sportsmen's Vacation and Travel Show, March 31 - April 9, at Pan-Pacific Auditorium.

A newcomer to the row this year will be the state of Yucatan, Mexico, land of the ancient and mysterious Mayans. A recently inaugurated non-stop plane flight by ACSA air line from Tijuana to Merida now makes it possible for Southlanders to get to the heart of this colorful and historic country in 6½ hours flying time.

The country surrounding Merida abounds with deer, pheasant, dove, quail and wild turkey, and a hunter hasn't far to go for "El Tigre."

* * * *

EXCELLENT fishing, including the mighty tarpon, may be found nearly all year long either in Gulf of Mexico or the Caribbean waters, which surround nearly three-fourths of the Yucatan peninsula.

Merida, a city of about 200,000 populaetion is the gateway to many ancient Mayan ruins, including such fabled names as Uzmal, Chichen Itza, Tulum and Palenque, among many others. They represent ancient cultures dating back to 2000 B.C.

Yucatan, land of sharp contrasts, is only now being discovered by Southern Californians. A staff of experts will man the Yucatan booth in the sportmen's Show, willing and able to answer questions of this land which is rich in history, hunting, fishing and archeological treasures.

Saskatchewan, Canada. It's so big and different, you can't miss it. Especially this year.

Lances raised, Canada's red-coated 'Mounties' perform their world-famous Musical Ride in Regina, Saskatchewan.

You can't escape the vastness of Saskatchewan, but you can escape to it. Enter from the southeast, perhaps via Highway 9, and the gently rolling rangelands, purpled by distance, eventually give way to the uplands of Moose Mountain, and one of Saskatchewan's many Provincial Parks.

Or if you enter on the Trans-Canada Highway, you'll drive into Regina, the provincial capital.

It's a thriving city with a man-made lake, Wascana Lake. And hotels as hospitable as Westerners themselves.

In Regina, you'll find headquarters for Canada's famed Royal Canadian Mounted Police (take the kids), the absorbing Museum of Natural History, and delightful restaurants and shops.

And if it's unspoiled lakes and streams, great pine woods and clear air you're after, then you came to the right place.

In the northern Canadian Shield region alone, there are thousands of well-stocked lakes. All along the way, there are plenty of camping and trailer park accommodations. Pick them as modern or as rugged as you want.

Tackle-smashing fish of almost every description are found in the abundant waters of Saskatchewan. (The record-breaking lake trout, weighing 52 pounds, was caught a few years ago in Lake Athabasca.)

Add to that Saskatchewan's natural beauty, such as the Qu'Appelle Valley, the Cypress Hills, the Lac La Ronge area, and you've got yourself a big vacation. And a different one.

Especially this year, because 1967 is Canada's 100th birthday. Our Centennial. And naturally, Saskatchewan is celebrating with Centennial festivities such as Pioneer Days in Saskatoon, and the province-wide Square Dance Jamboree featuring thousands of dancers in community "reels".

There are hundreds of big and different vacations waiting for you in Saskatchewan. To help you pick the one you want, send in the coupon below and we'll send you free maps and brochures.

Have a nice vacation.

It's our 100th birthday. Join us in our year-long, coast-to-coast Centennial celebrations.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

Frankie and Annie

By TERRY VERNON

One of the things television does best is bring to the mass viewing public what has proved itself as a success elsewhere. The latest example is Hal Holbrook's "Mark Twain Tonight!" which had already established itself and was enhanced by its TV exposure.

Another proven product will be aired at 8:30 tonight in color on channel 4 — the re-creation of the Broadway musical, "Annie Get Your Gun" with the cast which presented it last summer in Lincoln Center, New York: Ethel Merman as Annie and Bruce Yarnell as Frank Butler, and including Benay Venuta, as Dolly Tate. Miss Venuta, one of the singing rages of early radio says she was a glamour girl of the 1930s "but I've never been a beauty . . . just a jazzy singer."

Miss Merman, who opened in the role of "Annie" on Broadway in 1946 and starred through the Irving Berlin play's run of 1,147 performances, scored a return hit when the show was brought back last year.

Like Miss Venuta, she is no beauty, but nobody belts out a tune in the same brashy fashion. She never took a music lesson in her life. She just sings the way she wants to. That was good enough for George Gershwin, Cole Porter and Irving Berlin, who wrote "Annie" for Ethel.

YARNELL, MERMAN

MISS TEEN INTERNATIONAL PAGEANT TRIO
Sally Field (left) and Noel Harrison, hosts, with Cinda Lewis, 1966 Miss Teen, U.S.A.

Teen Fair

The second annual "Miss Teen International Pageant" will be presented in color at 9:30 p.m. Saturday, on Channel 7.

The pageant, which will originate live in Hollywood, will bring together Miss Teen International finalists from 11 countries—Japan, France, Sweden, Norway, Italy, Ireland, Canada, Switzerland, England, Ecuador and the United States.

Noel Harrison and Sally Field, two of TV's young stars, will serve as host and hostess of the pageant.

The crowning of 1967's Miss Teen International will climax a year-long, world-wide quest to find the teen girl who best exemplifies "the finest qualities among youth around the world." Seventeen-year-old Ewa Aulin, the blue-eyed, golden-haired Stockholm model who is the reigning Miss Teen International, and who has just completed a year-long tour of world capitals, will crown her successor.

There will be two runners-up in the pageant, which places emphasis on appearance, poise, background and ambitious rather than the standard beauty-contest format Contestants must be at least 14 and not more than 18 years old.

Each contestant in the Miss Teen International competition will be presented initially on the telecast via a previously filmed sequence shot in her own country.

GEORGE ERES, Editor

PAN AND FAN MAIL

RECENTLY an argument has arisen concerning The Andy Williams Show. I hold with the fact that Mr. Williams mouths the words that have previously been taped. My father advocates he does not. Could you please set us straight?

Robert Marquette

You're both right. Sometimes he does what is called lip-synchronization; sometimes a one-shot operation.

PLEASE give some background information on actor Martin Landau who is featured on "Mission: Impossible." A friend of mine says he's from England, but I think he's from the U. S. Who is right? Also, we'd like to know where to write to receive some photos of Martin Landau and the rest of the cast of this program.

LANDAU

B. Say

Landau, born in Brooklyn, had extensive experience on Broadway ("Middle of the Night," "Uncle Vanya," "Stalag 17") and television ("Studio 1," "Playhouse 90," "Kraft Theater," "U.S. Steel Hour") as well as motion pictures. You can ask for photogrphs by writing "Mission: Impossible," Desilu Studio, 780 N. Gower, Hollywood, 38.

ON THE March 11 channel 7 Saturday Night Movie, why were so many of the words cut out in the movie, "36 Hours." Also who wrote the original book and what was its title.

Kelly Nelson

Channel 7's Broadcast Standards Department "blooped" out swear words in the film. The film is based on the book, "Beware of the Dog," by Roald Dahl.

I WOULD like to know if the man who plays the barber on the Andy Griffith Show is able to walk. On several of his recent shows we noticed that he always seems to be sitting or just standing. His name is Howard McNear.

Martha Lien
Lakewood

Howard McNear suffered a stroke about three years ago and was out of the series for a year. He is able to stand with braces.

What is the ratings for the last two Smothers Brothers shows as compared with Bonanza?

Anee McCready,
Anaheim

On the 30-city Nielsen index for the week ended March 5, CBS-TV's Smothers Bros. and NBC's "Bonanza" were tied with 22 average rating and 32 audience share.

I HAVE just finished viewing channel 7's "Sports Journal." It is aired weekly on Saturdays from 6:30 to 8 p.m. It is undoubtedly one of the best sports programs on television. It delves into all aspects of sports of the past week.

At the close of the program it was stated that this was the last time it would be aired. I would like to know why programs of this nature are going off the air while shows like "Hurdy Gurdy" are still being aired?

Dana McCune

Channel 7 says the show has been cancelled because of the desire to make the Saturday night programming more musical fun type and, at present, no other slot for "Sports Jour-Douglas, is available.

KATE SMITH sang a wonderful song as her first number when she appeared on Hollywood Palace and my wife, Phyllis, and I have been trying to think of its name ever since. Could you find the name for us?

Henry Stedman

"Somewhere My Love," theme from "Dr. Zhivago."

CRITICS' CORNER

PROGRAM: "End of the Trail," aired Thursday night on channel 4.

A documentary on the Indians that moved at the pace of the snail, went on interminably and repetitiously and bored the hell out of this viewer. Lo, the poor Indian deserves better.

—George Eres, IPT

PROGRAM: "Toscanini: The Maestro Revisited, aired last Sunday on channel 4.

The prospect of a full-hour tribute to a musical conductor would usually be enough to make many viewers change channels in order to avoid long speeches. . . As it turned out the Telephone Hour was an interesting 60 minutes—full of fine music, some great old film of the maestro conducting and even humor.

—Cynthia Lowry, AP

TV has come up with few scenes as stirring as climax of "Telephone Hour" showing the great, gaunt face of Toscanini singing along with the soloists and chorus Verdi's "Grand March" from "Aida," and then it was over and his ramrod body slumped in exhaustion and you saw he was 82 years old. . . As a portrait, the hour failed. But for a few minutes, it reproduced a memorable image of a genius, time-ravaged, but still fully potent.

—Beig, Variety

PROGRAM: "Winchester 73," aired Tuesday night on channel 4.

. . . May be the most violent television show of the season. Worse, it was a long, drawn-out bore that leaned on every cliche in the Western book.

—Lowry

PROGRAM: "The Vine," illustrated story of the life of Christ, shown last Sunday on channel 4.

The narration, in language drawn largely from different versions of the New Testament, was simple and understated, a fine accompaniment to the beautiful photography made in Jordan and Israel. . . The message was one of brotherhood and love. One jarring note was the insertion of contemporary scenes of war and hungry, suffering people.

—Lowry

PROGRAM: Duke Ellington, Barbara McNair on Celanese Center Stage, aired last Sunday on channel 5.

Four Star, one of the few tele-filmeries which still turn out product for syndication on a first-run basis, preemed "Celanese Center Stage," a series identical in format to its "Something Special!" series of last year. First of the hour-long tape musicals stars Barbara McNair, with Duke Ellington, was an impressive, well-produced show.

Hell Revisited

"Our Time in Hell," the combat odyssey completed by the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II as they clawed their way from island to island across 7,000 miles of Pacific, will be seen in color at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, on channel 7.

Lee Marvin, Academy Award-winning actor who as a teenage Marine participated in landings on Kwajelein, Enlwetok and Saipan, hosts and narrates. Marvin donated his fee for the narration to the Marine Corps Civic Action Fund, which is currently being used to rehabilitate victims of the Viet Cong in Vietnam.

Island invasion is not to be compared to any other type of fighting. There is only an angry sea into which one may withdraw. Knowing this, the Marines never made plans for retreat. They landed expecting to win, but prepared to die if necessary.

On Iwo Jima the Marines were the victors. They paid for the victory at the cost of 4,000 Marine casualties per mile. They were buried where they fought and died, and many a marker in the Pacific carried this epitaph composed by an unknown Marine:

"And when he goes to Heaven,

To Saint Peter he will tell:

One more Marine reporting, sir—

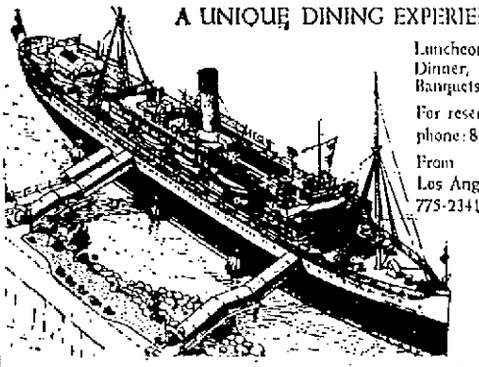

I've served my TIME IN HELL!"

ONE OF 20,000 MARINE casualties suffered in taking Iwo Jima in World War II is helped by fellow Marines. This is part of the action in "Our Time in Hell."

SPECIAL

CHRYSLER THEATRE — S. Lee Pogostin is writer-director for this 9 p.m. color hour, ch. 4, shifted from its original Christmas-holiday airing to screen it closer to Emmy deadlines. John Cassavetes, Ben Gazzara, Suzy Parker, Diane Baker and Johnny Silver star, as two musicians create disturbances, including one in the middle of Sunset Boulevard, in trying to save Los Angeles from a decadent rock and roll world. Jazz performers Louis Bellson, Ray Brown and Sid Levy are featured. (Cliff Robertson, who won an Emmy in Pogostin's "The Game" for Chrysler, returns to the series next week as an attorney who undergoes bizarre trial by torchlight.)

"TAMING of Shrew" Premiere—Paul Condylis and Jan Gregg are hosts for an hour's color tape of last night's Hollywood premiere of the Taylor-Burton movie, at the Stanley Warner Theatre. The 9 p.m. show, ch. 13, erroneously listed here for last Wednesday, includes highlights of premieres in both New York and London.

TV'S WHEEL OF FORTUNE

It Can Take $50,000 to Open

By JIM SHEVIS AND SARAH HINTON
North American Newspaper Alliance

A lot of time, a lot of talent, and especially a lot of money go into making a commercial that lasts only a few seconds on your television screen.

The production cost can range all the way from $5,000 to $50,000.

"You could spend a little less or a lot more," says Marilyn Ellman of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn's (BBD&O) public relations office. BBD&O is one of the nation's largest producers of TV commercials.

"A very rough estimate of the average color, outdoor location commercial is about $20,000 — and that's strictly the production cost. Buying the time and paying the talent are separate costs.

"MEDIA COSTS vary widely, too," she said. "Network (ABC, CBS, NBC) prime-evening, in-season time can only be bought on a one-minute basis. And, depending on the time and show, one-minute prime-evening, in-season time can cost from $25,000 to $55,000 per minute.

"Talent payment is another expense area. On-camera models or actors, who are called 'principals' — you see their faces — are paid $120 for an eight-hour day plus residuals.

"If the face doesn't show, the model is called an 'extra,' and is paid $60.50 with no residuals. If they demonstrate a product but their faces don't show — for instance, only the hands or legs — they receive $156.50 and no residuals.

"The voice-over speaker is paid $90 per two-hour recording plus residuals.

"A major personality, of course, names his own price."

IT'S BIG business, all right. Last year, $50 million reportedly was spent to make TV commercials. And that doesn't include the residuals Miss Ellman refers to. Residuals are payments a performer collects for replays, based on a gradually decreasing scale.

But there was a time when actors — even the newcomers — refused to do TV commercials. They felt it was beneath their dignity and damaging to their reputations. It was almost like admitting they were strapped for money.

AS COMMERCIALS improved and actors felt they could do them without harming their careers, they still had to overcome resistance at many ad agencies.

"It took a long time for an agency to accept the word 'actor'," says Evelyn Peirce, casting director at J. Walter Thompson, the world's largest ad agency. "Most agency people had had little contact with actors, and thought they were affected.

"As television grew and emerged, all that changed. Today, actors are respected for their ability and techniques. And they're competing with each other to do commercials."

This is the second of four articles on the new trends in television commercials).

Questions & Answers

Q. What finally became of "Shoeless Joe" Jackson, the great star who was kicked out of organized baseball for taking a bribe? Was he ever reinstated? S.C.

A. Jackson was never reinstated, despite his lifelong claim of innocence and the fact that he batted .375 and fielded flawlessly during the Series he was supposedly bribed to throw. In succeeding years, Jackson played and managed in semi-pro baseball, and he owned and operated a liquor store in Greenville, S.C. "Shoeless Joe" died in 1951 at the age of 64. Joe Jackson was one of eight members of the Chicago White Sox who were accused of accepting bribes to throw the 1919 World Series to the Cincinnati Reds. For their involvement in the "Black Sox" scandal, the eight were barred for life from organized baseball by Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

Q. Does a star on the sleeve of a train conductor's uniform have any special meaning? L.F.

A. On some railroads, a star signifies 25 years of service and a stripe or a bar, 5 years. Thus, a star and two stripes represent 35 years of service.

Q. In what country is the Irrawaddy River? E.K.

A. The Irrawaddy River, approximately 1,350 miles long, is the chief river of Burma. It is formed by the confluence of the Nmai and Mali Rivers and flows south into the Bay of Bengal. The river has a huge delta whose rich soil and abundant rainfall make it an important rice-growing region. Rangoon, port city and capital of Burma, is on one of the many mouths of the Irrawaddy.

Q. Is the width of house trailers regulated in interstate travel? O.W.

A. In all but a few states, 96 inches at the base is the legal maximum width for house trailers (mobile homes) moving on public highways. Authorized haulers can obtain special or limited permits for movement of over-width house trailers, usually up to 120 inches wide at the base. These are primarily intended for residential use within trailer parks. Each state has specific laws governing mobile homes moving on its highways.

Q. Has Alaska three or four time zones? M.V.

A. Four. Juneau uses Pacific Standard; Yakutat, Yukon Standard; Fairbanks and Anchorage (and most of Alaska), Alaska Standard; Nome, Bering Standard. These zones are 3, 4, 5 and 6 hours earlier than E.S.T., respectively.

Q. How many people visited the Seattle World's Fair? J.S.

A. There were 9,639,969 paid admissions through the gates of the Seattle World's Fair; 10,008,012 tickets were sold. An attendance of 7,000,000 persons had been predicted. The fair lasted from April 21 to Oct. 21, 1962.

Q. Explain what the Commodity Credit Corporation does. A.L.

A. The Commodity Credit Corporation engages in buying, selling, lending and in other activities with respect to agricultural commodities and their products, food, feeds and fibers. The purpose of the CCC is to stabilize, support and protect farm income and prices, assist in the maintenance of balanced and adequate supplies of such commodities and to facilitate their orderly distribution. The corporation also makes available the materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of the commodities.

THOUSANDS OF SQUARE FEET OF MERCHANDISE AT SAVINGS

Time to Get Rollin' on sprucing up home and garden

The sweet sounds of fix-up are heard across the land: paint can tops popping, curtains swirling, tool-sharpeners humming. Yes, now's the time to give your home a fresh Springtime face!

But first take a look inside; get handy tips; preview products designed to make the jobs easier--- and even fun.

By Ev Hosking

THIS IS THE YEAR of slow moving property and fast moving hands.

The downward trend in housing sales has made it profitable for the guys and gals with vim, vigor and a handful of tools to go to work on the old homestead.

Chances are it will be a lot more fun to slick up the place and enjoy it than to search around for a new home.

But, if you're determined to sell anyway, improvements are bound to increase the value and chances of sale of your property.

Do the work yourself or find a reputable contractor.

Requirements for home improvement loans have tightened somewhat, but applicants who enjoy a good credit rating and adequate income are not having too much trouble finding sufficient financing.

Take a critical look at your home — does it need paint? Need more room? More space for storage?

The entry way of your home is a good place to start — it sets the mood and theme for the rest of the house.

Those who have lived with a front door opening directly to the entry walk will testify to the need for a porch, a protective roof overhead and some wind screening. As a rule of the thumb the porch should be at least large enough to accommodate three people.

Ideally, the porch should be elevated above the front walk to the level of interior floors. A good idea is to build it wood-deck style. The thin spacing between the deck boards allows rain runoff. In appearance, one built of weathered 2 x 4s is not only good looking, but practical.

Windscreens are often used in the overall design of the exterior entrance. Uually, they're a byproduct of landscaping and used either to highlight plants or to conceal a side yard. Yet these screens can also be placed to direct attention to the front door and, at the same time, to divert wind from the entrance.

IF PLANNED TO give privacy to an area immediately bordering the front walk, a good pattern for the screens is developed by nailing 1 x 2s horizontally between 4 x 4 posts. Only a narrow spacing is left between the 1 x 2s. Airy in effect, the design nevertheless makes an effective sight barrier while pointing up walk and door.

Creation of good outdoor storage space is a pressing

Home Improvement Ideas Galore

Efficiency--and Beauty

need in most homes. Many things rightfully belong outside the house and are far more usable when stashed near the yard.

The most likely stashing spot is usually the garage or carport.

Some architects suggest that one wall of the carport or garage be devoted to storage and designed with full-height double-door closets. These can open to the carport's interior or directly into the yard if protected by a roof overhead.

If the storage wall is designed at the end of the garage it is a good idea to include a side or back doorway to the yard so that the equipment can be easily wheeled in and out.

It is easy to combine style with practicality in a garage addition. Closet doors can be built using 1 x 4-inch tongue-and-grove siding boards.

THE SIDING BOARDS are screwed into Z-shaped braces at the back. Two screws are used per board at each horizontal member of the brace and can be set so that the visible screw heads make a decorative pattern.

Doors can be hung with surface-applied butt hinges, and gate latches with padlocks are a simple, sensible solution to hardware.

As far as the inside of the house goes, there is just no rule of thumb for choosing a theme for interior remodeling other than personal preference, practicality and pocketbook considerations.

The two basic reasons for interior remodeling are to create additional space and to upgrade what already exists.

Panel is one way of achieving instant upgrading. Whether for an entire room or just a wall, real wood adds the natural look that contributes to the character and coziness of any room.

One of the principal benefits of using paneling in remodeling is its ease of application. Manufacturers of panelling products work constantly to improve the application facilities of the paneling as well as to develop new and simpler aids for application.

Louver doors blend easily into a paneled room and can be used to cover such items as portable air conditioners and music centers.

IF YOU WANT TO define a dining area, want to create study space or create a home office center and add luster to a long wall, there are any number of quality shelving systems on the market today.

The shelving systems either stand alone or can be bracketed to the wall. About the most that is ever needed in the way of tools for installation is a screwdriver.

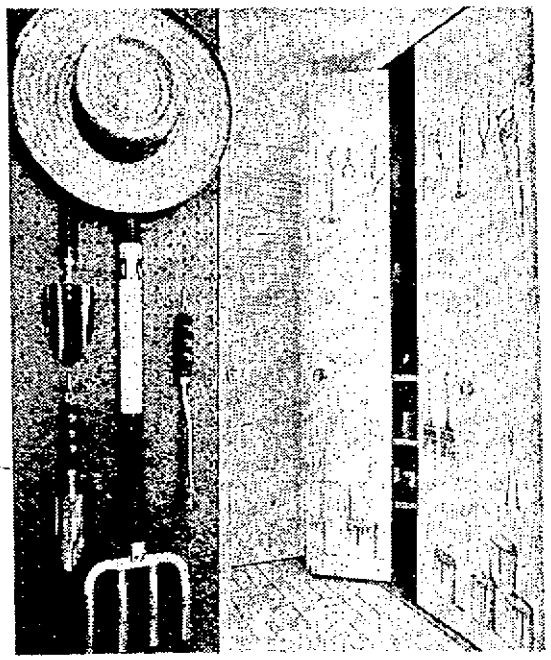

When remodeling your home, if you have run-of-the-mill wood floors it is often more convenient and less expensive to refloor the entire area with some of the new resilent materials rather than patchwork the old floor.

There is a variety of resilient floor products available today, both in tile and in sheet goods. All are easy to install. The variety of colors available together with smooth or textured surfaces offer many decorating possibilities.

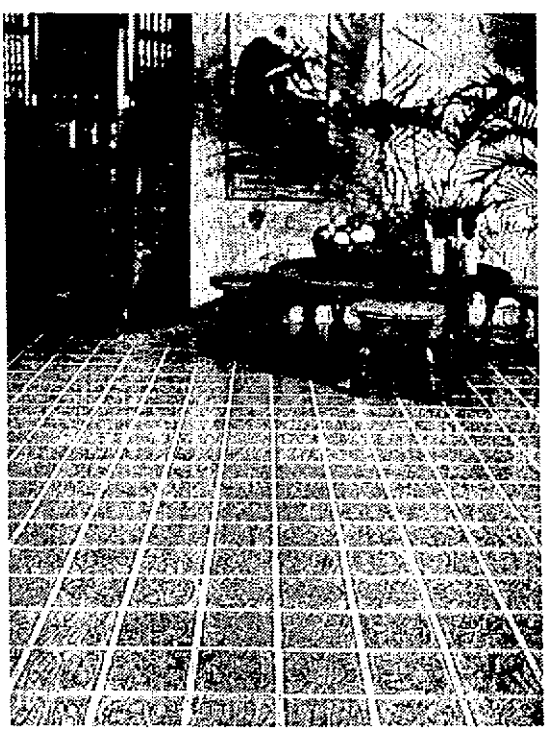

While laying the tile isn't difficult, it should be carefully planned and thoughtfully carried out. Authorities advise working on one quarter of the room at a time.

THE TILES ARE laid on new roll-on or brush-on adhesive. The adhesive must be dry to the touch before the first tile is laid down. The Better Floors Council says that even 24 hours is not too long to wait for a good set, though often 30 minutes may be sufficient.

Automatic dishwashers, mixers, blenders, disposals, vacuum cleaners, sewing machines, washers, dryers, buffers, grinders and electric can openers all have one thing in common — they save time and they make noise.

Small room may be set aside—or built—for tool storage by do-it-yourselfer. Perforated wallboard with removable hooks for hanging tools lends efficiency. Classic beauty and primitive charm is found in new solid vinyl tiles inspired by artistic imagination of ancient Mexico.

As the number of labor-saving devices increases, the sound level goes up at a corresponding rate — but it needn't be a permanent problem.

Of all the noise problems, the most common is sound reverberation—an "echo" effect. This is caused by a reflection of sound waves off the hard surfaces of a room such as the walls and ceiling.

Fortunately reverberation sound is the easiest noise problem to solve. Accoustical ceiling tile is the simplest solution to the problem. And since the ceiling is usually the room's largest single sound reflection surface, it's the logical place for accoustical materials. Not only that, it offers unlimited decorating possibilities.

It also offers the possibility of a suspended ceiling, making it ideal for lowering high old-fahsioned ceilings, for covering hanging ducts, rafters, pipes and electrical wiring. Recessed lighting is possible by incorporating translucent panels into the framework beneath fluorescent fixtures.

THE SUSPENDED CEILING is supported by a metal framework which is suspended from the existing ceiling wires and is adjustable to any height.

In addition to the suspended ceiling there are two easy methods for normal installation — one is to staple the tiles to furring strips, the other to cement the tiles to the existing ceiling.

Where an existing plaster ceiling is uneven or badly cracked a framework of wooden furring strips is nailed securely to the joints and the tiles are then stapled directly to the strips.

When the existing ceiling is in good condition, cementing is usually the fastest, most economical installation.

When the existing ceiling is in good condition, cementing is usually the fastest, most economical installation.

Need some more ideas?

Try installing an intercom system. It will save a million steps and enhance the value of your home.

HOW ABOUT INSTALLING patio or garden lights? There are a variety of low-voltage, easily-installed lights that can be quickly put in by the average homeowner.

They even have "instant fountains" for your backyard. They are shipped so complete that only the addition of water is necessary to put them into operation.

Radio-controlled garage door openers are available in kit form from some electronic suppliers. Easily constructed and installed they open your garage door, turn on the light and once you're inside close the door and lock it tight all while you relax in the comfort and safety of your car.

Install a combination ceiling heater and vent fan in the bathroom. It's not only a wonderful way to keep warm after a shower, it's a convenient way to void unwanted odors.

IF YOU LIKE THAT brick accent in the family room or kitchen—buy imitation brick in strips and just glue it on. It comes in both new and used styles and looks just like regular brick.

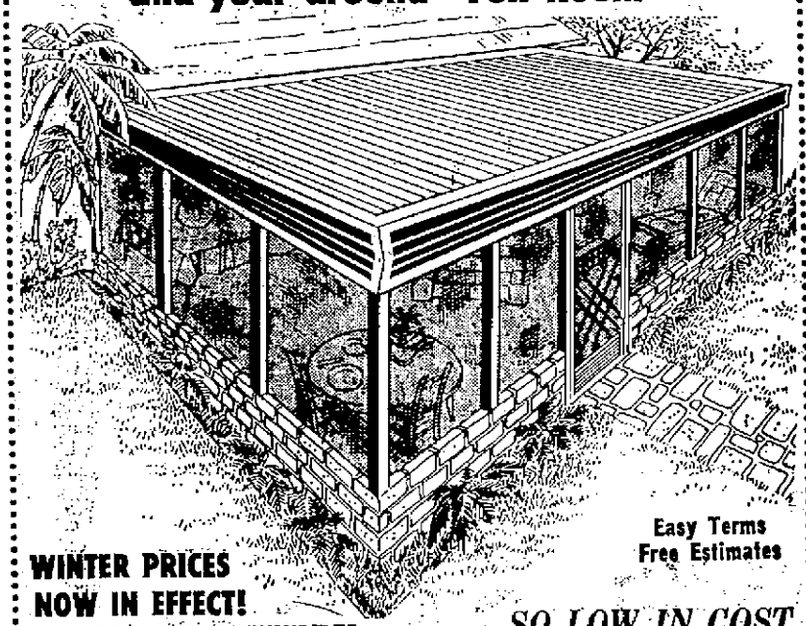

But the whole idea is to just get started on home improvements.

One idea will lead to another.

And it's an awful lot of fun, to sit and contemplate what an improvement you've made to the old homestead once that project is completed!

Mr. Burbank's $10,000 Bonfires

IF YOU POSSESSED a couple of thousand fine flower bulbs that had a ready market at a dollar each, unnumbered quantities of seeds and cuttings which could easily find eager buyers, would you be inclined to consign those products to the flames and figure you had done a good turn for yourself and the world in general?

Few of us, I submit, would do so. But then few of us combine so clear an objective with the degree of patience and understanding in growing things that caused the great horticulturist, Luther Burbank, to do just this—not once, but many times at his experimental farms at Santa Rosa and Sebastopol, a short run north of San Francisco.

These illuminations in the Sonoma County sky provided what the neighbors called, "Mr. Burbank's $10,000 bonfires." And indeed they were, and at a period when such a sum would represent many times that figure at today's values.

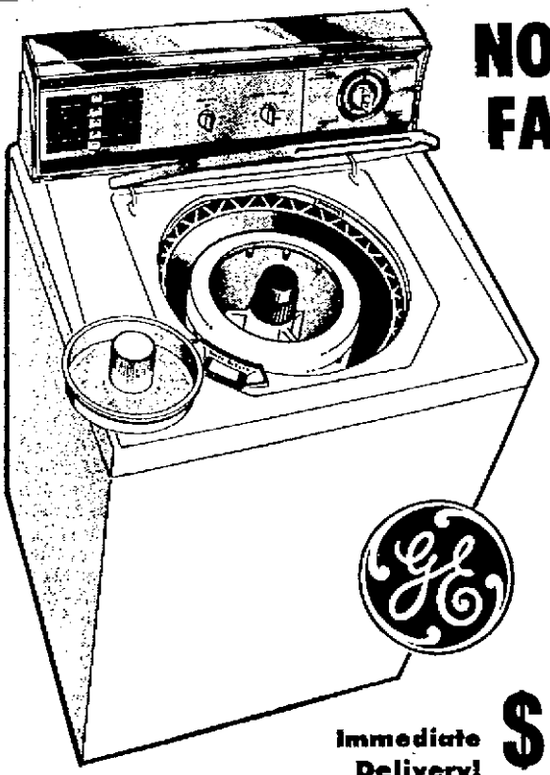

FED TO a typical Burbank bonfire would go hundreds of cherry grafts, produced with painstaking care, so that one specimen could be brought forth in superior form; rose bushes in the thousands, nurtured to blooming age, searching only for the single prize example that would mark such extensive effort as worthy. Included might be many hundred seedlings of his noted spineless cactus, product of years of development, but which had performed their function in developing the species. Perhaps fifteen hundred or more gladioli bulbs, readily marketable at a dollar each, would be pitched to the flames that a chosen few might be salvaged as fit for further advancement.

In other lines of endeavor many manufacturers and merchants can salvage inferior or flawed products by selling them legitimately as "seconds" at lower prices. Burbank, likewise, could have disposed of his discards most profitably. For once his name had become world famous, the demand for his products skyrocketed beyond his means of supply.

But Burbank envisioned advanced standards of improvement for his chosen plants and trees, even new varieties entirely, and wiped out with ruthless thoroughness every stage of the procedure that no longer contributed to that one objective.

"It is better," said Burbank, "to run the risk of losing a perfected product, through the destruction of the elements which went into it, than to issue forth to the world a lot of second bests which have within them the power of self perpetuation and multiplication, and which, if we do not destroy them now, will clutter the earth with inferiority or mediocrity . . . We give our product the advantage of a better chance to live. We remove from it the necessity of fighting its inferiors for the food, and air and sunlight which give it life."

Blessed with ability to plan and sustain so exacting a program, it is small wonder that Luther Burbank attained international recognition as the topmost plant breeder of his age, achieving in addition the distinction of being among the ten best known men in the world.

What Your Name Means

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801; for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Would you inform us on HOLLOWAY?—M. H., Long Beach.

HOLLOWAY was a place description. Two English localities produced the modern spelling, both of them used by an ancestor as a surname. One was Hol-Weg meaning "on the path in the hollow," while the other was Holl-Weg describing "on the path to the religious shrine." William de Holeweye was a Warwick ancestor in the late, 1200s. The Holloway armorial shield is red, crossed by an ermine stripe placed between three silver crescents. Among early Massachusetts residents was William Holloway, recorded there in 1644.

MISS RULE: Please analyze LARAMIE.—E. L., Long Beach.

LARAMIE was taken by the medieval ancestor from a southern French town where he lived, called "L'Aramy," located near the Pyrenees Mountains separating France from Spain. L'Aramy is considered by philology authorities to be from the Roman word "Aeramen" meaning "copper," alluding to the town site near ancient copper mines. Aeramen became the French surname L'Aramen, then L'Aramy and Laramie. The southwest Wyoming city of Laramie originated as an important fort on the old Oregon-California Trail in the 1800s. It was named for Jacques Laramie, a fur trader who died in 1821.

MISS RULE: Would like genealogy on ENROUGHTY — E.M., K.M., Lomita.

ENROUGHTY developed from the Gaelic Irish clan-name MacIonnrachtaigh, deciphered as "Sons of the unlawful one." This clan, who originated in West Munster, were granted an armorial shield jointly with the related clan O'Hanraghty, a blue background decorated with a golden griffin, a mythical combination of lion and eagle.

MISS RULE: Please inform me on MASGAI — G.M., Long Beach.

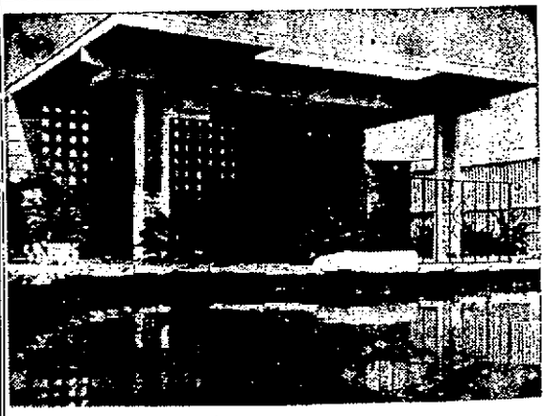

MASGAI originated as the Polish surname Mazgaj, deciphered as a personal nickname for the forefather, meaning drowsy one."

MISS RULE: Would appreciate data on STULTS — N.S., Torrance.

STULTS of Germany was initiated as a provincial terminology for the ancestor. This unusual surname means "man with a wooden leg."

MISS RULE: Would you give genealogy on SCHOFIELD, SCOFIELD, SCO-

"FIRST IN QUALITY—FINEST IN SERVICE"

The Shape of Homes to Come

By Bill Duncan

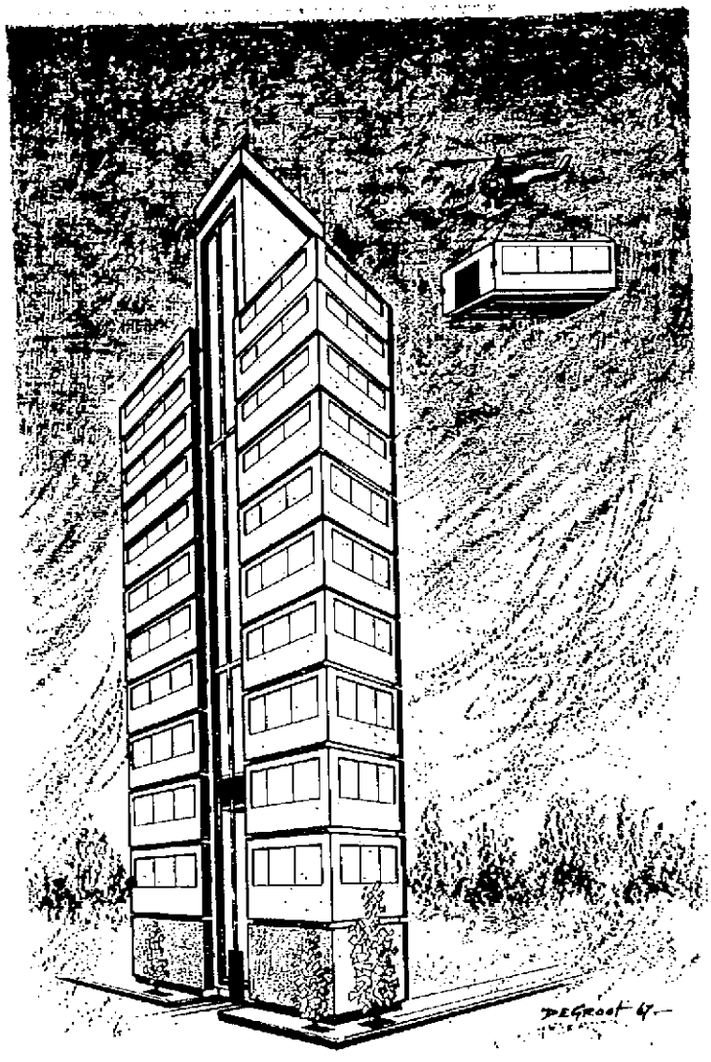

THE TIME: 21st Century.

The place: A typical Southern California home.

The characters: Mr. and Mrs. Southland, plus 2.

You are about to enter the home of the future. What's inside this home isn't fiction — it is either already invented, feasible or on somebody's planning board.

This article is based on a survey of America's industry — from technical papers and interviews with its researchers, its planners, its designers, its engineers, all architects of tomorrow's home. These men are not dreamers. They are projectionists of the technological breakthrough that brings the futuristic home of tomorrow into focus today.

High-rise, unitized Southland homes-of-the-future may be built, Erector set-style, with family dwellings stacked higher and higher by helicopter. Each dust-free apartment may have full wall-size television set, dial-a-dinner electronic marvel Among the other wonders . . . replacing present kitchen.

LET'S VISIT THE HOME of Mr. and Mrs. Southland, plus 2.

First, as you walk through the front entrance ultrasonic waves remove all dust, lint, pollen and dirt from your clothing so as not bring these things into the sputless home. Vibrating floor grills at the entrance shake loose and suck away all the dirt and foreign matter from your shoes.

Electrostatic air filters are working inside the house to keep any dust or dirt that might have been missed at the door from settling on the furniture. The house itself is completely sealed and its environment is controlled by a computer that adjusts the temperature, light and humidity to maximum comfort.

Mr. and Mrs. Southland recently purchased the home made of fiber glass from a factory where it was preassembled. They had their choice of colors, pre-painted and baked on. The wall panels are reversible for instant color change. The rooms are modular units — a living room, family room and three bedrooms — which were helicopter-lifted to a concrete core which contains the kitchen and bathrooms.

If at some later time Mr. and Mrs. Southland decide to move, they just call up the helicopter moving company which unplugs the living quarters from the core and airlifts them to a new location. The furniture is built in and although Mrs. Southland doesn't enjoy the pleasure of moving it around like her mother did, she can change its color by spraying on a new fabric.

Of course, single family dwellings are rare in this 21st Century where land is at a premium and these cores, some of concrete and others of steel, are as tall as 100 stories. An elevator moves up the center of the core stopping at an entry way leading to the home itself.

IF YOU'RE INVITED to stay for dinner, Mrs. Southland will go to her microwave oven, which is connected to her home freezer and dial a dinner. The frozen dinner, proportioned exactly to prevent leftovers and already prepared down to the dessert in a much more sophisticated manner than the old TV dinners, will be automatically selected and moved from the freezer to the oven. If it's a roast, it will be done in 30 minutes — lighter meals can be prepared in 30 seconds in the microwave oven. Because the microwave cooks from inside out the meat looks raw and has to be browned by ultraviolet lights before it is ready to serve.

When the dinner is finished, there will be no dishwashing because the dishmolding machine in the kitchen has manufactured disposable dishes, cups and bowls for the meal. In fact, Mrs. Southland won't even bother to clean up after dinner because later, while she sleeps, a mobile robot maid will do it for her.

A blipping noise causes Mrs. Southland to excuse herself from the after dinner conversation to fetch baby boy Southland from the balcony — 70 stories up. She spotted the danger by home radar which keeps track of the small children by a special reflective object sewn into the children's clothing.

The doors in this house are hingeless and knobless, mounted on pneumatic air-tubes. No locks are needed because the doors are permanently locked when closed and the only key that will open them is a voice command from any of the members of the family.

WHEN THE DOOR BELL rings, a closed-circuit TV in the house flashes a picture of the person outside.

A conveyor belt delivers the mail, food and other goods to the house. There are no ironing chores to be done because the new fabrics are permanently pressed and are cleaned by simply hanging them in the closet which is programmed to remove every speck of dirt, grease and stains from the clothing electronically.

There are no electric outlets in the house, except for one inside the utility room which is used to recharge all of the cordless transistorized appliances.

A special performance of the London Symphony Orchestra is on TV live from Britain. The screen, wall sized, allows you to watch in three dimensions. Later you'll see a video tape the Southlands borrowed from the public library of a Shakespearian play. The tape is fed into the home television set.

A question about the play that no one can answer comes up during the conversation. Mrs. Southland dials the local library and reaches a computer. She asks the computer the question and it answers in a flash.

After you leave, Mrs. Southland doesn't bother to empty ash trays or pick up beverage glasses left in the living room. She has already programmed her robot maid to come from its special closet at 2 a.m. and clean the mess. This self-moving appliance, a box-like device with telescoping arms, fingers, brushes and suction tubes, has a complete memory of the house floor plan and moves about in the darkened house doing chores.

It will pick up the dinner leavings and place dishes and leftovers in a waste disposal. A laser beam will vaporize the dishes and garbage and even the paper wrappings of the gift you brought Mrs. Southland.

The garbage disposal and the trash can went out years ago when a programmed waste disposal system was invented for space travelers.

The robot maid will wash windows, wax floors and even pick up after Mr. Southland and the kids.

A SMALL HOUSEHOLD COMPUTER — desktop sized — helps Mrs. Southland with meal planning and family budgeting and the children with their homework. Mr. Southland feeds it his income and expense information and it has his Internal Revenue form ready by tax deadline.

A small plastic card inserted in a slot in the telehone automatically pays all the household bills when a bank computer reacts to telephone dialing and transfers funds from Mr. Southland's account to the account of the company he owes.

The Southlands don't worry about fire. Of course the structure itself is completely fire proof. If a fire should start in the interior, the telephone equipment is sensitized to detect fire and is programmed to call the fire department immediately — even to tell firemen the nature of the fire. It will also sound an alarm inside the house.

Sound wonderful? It is all in the mill for the future. Perhaps some of these wonders will be available before the 21st Century. Some of them are available now, but economically they are impractical for a mass market.

Aerojet-General is developing the fiber-glass house out of the same resin-wrapped fibers of glass that are now going into space hardware. This lightweight material is

New Beauty for Older Areas

MODERN WINDOWS can give your old house a bright, new outlook. Installing new units is not difficult, and the results are so effective that it's worth consideration as a home-remodeling project.

One thing you can do is create a new focal point for your house exterior by installing a stock bow or bay window of ponderosa pine. These graceful units are particularly suited to Colonial architecture, but add elegance to any house style. They offer a large glass expanse for wide visibility, frame a view beautifully, and allow ventilation through operating panels at the top or bottom of the window.

Bows and bays are especially effective in a living room, but many homeowners are recognizing their possibilities as an interesting window treatment in second-floor studies or attics. Ponderosa pine units are available with built-in window seats that make such placement particularly appropriate.

Adding an elegant bay window, as was done on this house, creates entirely new focal point for exterior. Here a stock unit of ponderosa pine adds grace and interest to what otherwise would be a flat side-of-the-house facade.

IF THE double hung windows in your house are old and need replacement, combine beauty and function in the new units you choose. Stock wood units can be fitted with attractive removable grilles that snap on to give a small-pane look and snap out to reveal a single pane of glass for easy cleaning.

Sliding windows in wood frames, which offer extensive visibility in an operating window, are a good choice for contemporary homes. They can be combined with sliding doors to form a beautiful glass wall entrance to the patio that opens the house interior to the outdoors. A bonus feature of the wood frames is that they can be painted a different color on either side to match the exterior and interior decorating scheme.

When building walls of windows it pays to use insulating glass. This consists of two panes of glass hermetically sealed together at the edges to form a layer of "dead" air that prevents heat loss. Windows with insulating glass keep a room round and represent a sizeable saving on heating bills. Insulating glass is now available in all styles of stock wood windows.

TO PERK up a drab dining room that suffers from too little light and air, consider this unusual window treatment. Bank a series of awning or hopper windows, three across and three high, or four across and four high. The awnings open out, and the hoppers in, at a 90-degree angle, providing a free air flow and maximum ventilation while the stacking provides wide visibility.

Even an old kitchen deserves a modern and efficient window. Ideal for hard-to-reach over-the-sink location is a wood casement window which opens out with the simple turn of a handle.

What makes remodeling with windows practical today is that all these styles are avilable at local lumber dealers in stock sizes of Ponderosa pine. They're precision • engineered for easy installation, and have a factory-applied chemical preservative that protects them against weather abuse for the life of the house.

It's Easy to Sound-Condition Older Home Inexpensively

VISITORS TO SCORES of new-home and new-product displays frequently ask, "What can be done to quiet my present home? Is this feature restricted to new homes?"

The answer is "No." There's a lot you can do to significantly quiet the home you now live in. Here are the steps to take offered by the Insulation Board Institute:

ACOUSTICAL CEILINGS

Insulation board acoustical ceilings in all rooms where the noise level is high will sharply reduce annoying din. Up to 70 per cent of the noise striking the surface of an acoustical ceiling is absorbed, making the room quieter and creating a more relaxed environment. The product you install can be either the familiar 12 x 12 inch and 12 x 24 inch tile or large 2 x 2 or 2 x 4 foot panels for a suspended ceiling.

QUIET WALLS

If a wall partition between two rooms permits noise to pass through easily, it must be modified. IBI suggests that homeowners install an auxiliary wall directly in front of the present wall on one side only. The IBI system uses 2 x 3 inch wood studs placed 24 inches apart on 2 x 3 inch wood floor and ceiling plates. There is a 3 inch space left between the new and existing wall partition. This same auxiliary wall can also be constructed on metal studs.

The new studs are then covered with sound deadening insulation board with the nails dimpled. Finally ½ inch gypsum wallboard is applied vertically with the joints, offset 12 inches with respect to the sound deadening insulation board.

The gypsum wallboard is installed with drywall laminating compound, not nails. Edges of the gypsum wallboard are temporarily blocked with wood strips, while the adhesive sets and bonds. The wallboard joints are then taped and finished. Finally, the entire perimeter of the new wall is calked to prevent noise leaks. Your lumber and building materials retailer can supply complete details of this new wall system. If you now hear loud conversation through your present wall, this auxiliary wall installation will reduce the same conversation to a murmur!

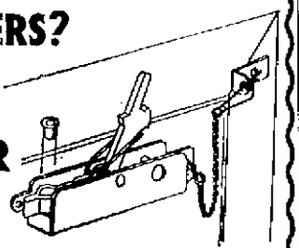

REPLACE hollow-core doors with solid doors with vinyl gasketing and a snug-up threshold closer. If you are installing new floor coverings, take a look at the products with cushion backing which reduces noise.

Mount appliances on rubber mats to absorb vibration. Line the underside of kitchen cabinets with insulation board acoustical products to reduce countertop clatter. This same technique works well

What Your Name Means

VILLE? — J.S., Seal Beach; M.S.,D.S., Long Beach.

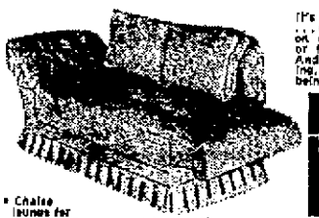

SCHOFIELD was first recorded in Lancashire, England, as "Skali-field" an old Norse-English location phrase meaning "field covered with sheds." Skalifield became the town name Scholefield, shortened to Scofield and Scoville in the 1300s. The Schofields became baronial noblemen in Lancashire, where their coat-of-arms was granted in 1582. This shield is red, crossed by a silver chevron set between three silver bull heads.

MISS RULE: Would like the background on OVERBERG, OVERPERK — M.O., J.J., Long Beach.

OVERBERG and OVERPECK are from northern Germany. "Ober" or "Over" indicated "upper." Combined with "berg," Overberg designated the family land as on the "upper mountain." Over-peck began as Ober-beck meaning "on the upper stream." No shield is available for either lineage.

Enjoy More Convenience In Modern Bathroom

BATHROOMS rank high on the list of most wanted — and needed — home improvement projects. According to the trade publication, Building Supply News, 16.5 million bathrooms in the United States are badly outmoded, too small and inconvenient.

If cost is inhibiting your immediate plans for bathroom modernization, the editors remind you that the bathroom demands consideration because it can do so much to improve the home and increase the family's comfort. What's more, says the magazine, a wide variety of new plumbing fixtures, accessories and materials that are both decorative and utilitarian, allow you to choose features that will suit your budget as well as your taste.

The three major disadvantages of older bathrooms are lack of privacy, space and modern convenience features. The tendency toward larger families means that one bathrrom per house is simply not enough. Most families require at least an additional powder room.

IF YOU can't manage a second bathroom yet, there are some things you can do to make present quarters more serviceable, comfortable and attractive.

Compartmentalization is the solution to the daily bathroom traffic tie-up. It can be achieved by closing off the lavatory area from the rest of the room with a partition, thus permitting two people to use the bathroom at the same time. The room can also serve double-duty if you add a second sink or install a new double-lavatory unit.

Since the bathroom takes hard, daily abuse, it should have facilities, walls and floors that are easy to clean. This is no problem if you select the right materials. Plastic-coated wall paneling that resists heat and humidity is inexpensive, sponges clean, and gives the room a warm, unusually good-looking decor. Washable wallpaper that comes in a variety of colorful, attractive patterns is another practical way to relieve the cold, antiseptic appearance of old-fashioned bathrooms. If you decide to paint, use a washable enamel finish and get away from the traditional white, pink or blue shades with interesting new combinations of browns, yellows or greens. In addition to floor tiles, there are now many vinyl flooring materials that offer beauty and low-maintenance.

NEW FIXTURES make a big difference in bathroom remodeling. Don't choose them hastily. Take a look at the wide variety available at local building supply dealers, many of whom feature full bathroom displays to give you sound and interesting remodeling ideas.

It pays to get good quality fixtures and facilities that can take daily use. The trend now is towards wall-hung toilets because it's easier to clean under and around them, built-in vanities, and round or oval lavatories with adjacent

Don't Let Hands Look Disastrous

MALE OR female, aged 15 or 50, hands that pound nails, wield a paintbrush and refinish furniture, can look and feel like a disaster area! To protect hands while doing chores and to restore them to good looks afterward, skin-care specialists suggest these timely tips:

PREVENT GREASY, GRIMY NAILS

Ideally, gloves give hands and nails the best protection. However, some home improvement tasks require fingertip touch. If you can't wear gloves for certain chores, apply hand cream under fingernails before you tackle a task. You'll find that an emollient-action cream keeps out grease and wipes away after the job is done. To bleach away nail stains, apply a product such as Mani Magic crystal cream cuticle remover under nail tips and around cuticles, leave on for three minutes, then wash off. Stains will disappear quickly.

GIVE HANDS A "SECOND SKIN"

There's nothing sissy about hand cream. It can help prevent roughness, chapping and irritation caused by commercial sol-

If chores leave your hands, face and neck less than clean, try two-minute cold cream clean-up —in newly-refurbished bath.

Remodeling Basement Can Be Fun, Low Cost

BASEMENTS CAN be pretty dreary looking, particularly in old houses. But a little imagination and time devoted to hunting bargains plus a few hours of physical labor can transform the drab quarters into a pleasant, workable laundry area.

That's what one young couple did. There was plenty of space in the basement but it was dark and dull. They didn't want to spend very much to refurnish this part of the house so they started first with paint. They chose a soft lime green and painted the pipes, walls, beams in the

COIN ROUNDUP

Fake Coin Ads Mislead Public

By Maurice M. Gould

SENSATIONAL PRICES ARE sometimes offered for coins, but with misleading advertising. Many times this is done to sell a booklet or attract attention to a particular dealer or company.

The coins I am going to mention will be the ones that in most cases are pedigreed and accounted for. There would not be one chance in a hundred million of their being found in circulation or in the average collection.

The first piece is the 1913 Liberty Head nickel. There is no possibility of one of these $20,000 coins being available. They are all accounted for and recorded. Only a few pieces were struck at the time the new-style Buffalo nickels were being minted in 1913.

Another rarity is the 1894-S Dime. Only 24 of these were struck, to use up a small residue of silver on hand at the San Francisco Mint. A circulated one did show up a couple of years ago, but most of the pieces are in museums or in the hands of top collectors.

Still another item is the famous 1804 silver dollar, one of the world's most valuable coins. Even though these coins were struck at a later period than 1804, they are dated that year. Much publicity, pro and con, surrounds this valuable coin. There is even a book devoted just to the story of this one dollar.

While the 1799 large cent is the rarest of any large cents, the coin is still obtainable in used condition. But the misleading advertisements sometimes ask for the coin in uncirculated condition. With only one piece known in this condition, it is highly improbable that any others would come to light.

Some advertisements offer to pay high prices for certain Indian Head cents. The only problem is they want them in silver and gold and in dates and metals which are not known to exist.

Another flagrant violation is the advertisement to purchase the 1866 quarter dollar without the motto, "In God We Trust." There is just one of these pieces in existence. If offered for sale, it would bring a fantastic sum.

On the other hand, it is still possible to find a few items which have a substantial premium, such as the 1955 double die Lincoln cent. This shows up frequently in the New England area. I have heard from many people who have found from one to a dozen in circulation. But as each year goes by, they will be more and more difficult to locate. Many of the small number struck have been removed by collectors.

In the West, it is possible to find some of the rare Lincoln cents with the San Francisco or Denver mintmarks. Correspondents tell me that they do occasionally find a valuable item, but these are mostly collectors who go through such tremendous amounts of change that the law of averages is with them.

The scarce 1916 Denver dime (D) occasionally is found, badly worn. Some of the quarters and half-dollars, which are scarce, from 1916 to date, will come to light.

The Bureau of the U.S. Mint recently announced it will accept orders for the 1967 special mint sets consisting of half-dollar, quarter, dime, nickel, and one-cent piece.

The price is $4 per set, including shipping by registered mail to any point in the United States.

Coins used in these sets will be struck at the U.S. Assay Office at San Francisco, from specially prepared blanks on high tonnage presses. They will have a higher relief than the regular coins, and will be of high quality, although not proof.

These sets will not carry mint marks and will be dated 1967.

Cashiers checks or money orders should be made payable to the Officer in Charge, U.S. Assay Office, Numismatic Service, 350 Duboce Ave., San Francisco, Calif., 94102.

Planning ahead on home improvements keeps your house in good trim, modern and pleasant. It's easier on the family budget, too.

A five-year program makes good sense for many, as it takes into consideration growing youngsters and changing family needs.

"The way to maintain a home's living and actual values," says one expert, "is to keep it up. One year, it may mean buying a new living room suite; another, repainting the exterior; another, Installing air-conditioning."

The consultant suggests a family conference to plan a five-year home improvement program. This should result in decisions and a list. Dad and Mom can take it from there.

ceiling. They bought a brand new washer and dryer in a decorative color.

Next, came the selection of a fabric. They found just what they wanted in a vinyl coated material with a lime and turquoise pattern. This they used to cover a screen to shield the water tank, for curtains at the window and for the lower part of the wall. Next they picked up the turquoise tone in floor tile, added a shelf for accessories and they had a cheerful, gay laundry area for less than $100. Here's the cost accounting on the decoration:

Fabric	12.17	Floor tile	40.00

Animals of every variety will be brought by young masters and mistresses to 1,600-year-old Easter ritual Saturday in Los Angeles' Olvera Street.

'Almighty Father, we bless these animals...'

Ancient Rite Lives Again in Pueblo Los Angeles

By A. C. McLeod

A PARADE OF ANIMALS — those who warm, feed, inspire and labor for mankind — will parade through Los Angeles' Olvera Street for the annual Blessing of the Animals, Easter Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Thousands of Southland residents are expected to attend the 1,600 year old rite, which will be held in the Old Plaza, birthplace of Los Angeles.

"Benedicion de Los Animales," has been a 30-year tradition on Olvera Street and is sponsored jointly by the Recreation and Parks Department, El Pueblo de Los Angeles, Inc., and the Greater Los Angeles Zoo.

Early on Easter Saturday, March 25, children and their parents will begin congregating at the Macy Street entrance to Olvera Street, leading cattle, horses, sheep, goats, pigs — and more conventional family pets.

Following a processional to the Old Plaza Park, Father Peter Caballer will preside over the ancient ceremony, flanked by altar boys and surrounded by animals brought for blessing.

A second procession around the Plaza will be led by a satin-black Holstein cow, lent by Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Pellissier and draped with a blanket of white gardenias and crown of orchids.

"Almighty Father, we bless these animals for all they have done for us, in supplying our food, in carrying our burdens, in providing us with clothing and companionship and rendering a service to the human race since the world began. . . ."

With these words, Father Caballer will sprinkle drops of holy water from a golden receptacle as the host of mankind's servants passes the platform.

According to tradition, the ceremony was initiated by San Antonio de Abad, patron saint of the animal kingdom, who died in 356 A.D., antedating St. Francis of Assisi by 800 years.

Participants in the parade will be Hernando Courtright, Padrino of Olvera Street and Mrs. Florencia Sepulveda de Schoneman, Madrina of the historic street.

Sheriff Peter Pitchess also will join in, along with the Charro Posse, Mexican Charro Association, plus a host of patrons of the Blessing who will be present Saturday.

The Easter Bunny's Choice for 1967

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

THE EASTER BUNNY'S choice this year for your special brunch, is chicken livers, wrapped bacon, tastefully teamed with golden pineapple slices. An excellent choice, too, if you're having a crowd as all the cooking is done in the oven.

Just pop the wrapped livers in for a quick bake, then add pineapple slices the last few minutes to get them hot and lightly tinged. And since this flavor combination is so good, you might keep it in mind for hors d'oeuvres — chicken livers and pineapple chunks, perhaps, on little cocktail picks. Waffles, homemade or the frozen ready-to-toast kind, and chilled fizzes are brunch go-alongs.

Canned pineapple's refreshing flavor and sunny color brighten many a breakfast. Choose one of the convenient forms — slices, chunks, tidbits or crushed — to stir into cereal, top French toast, fill an omelette or scramble with eggs. On its own, chilled pineapple juice is purely delicious.

PINEAPPLE WITH CHICKEN LIVERS
24 chicken livers (about 1¾ pounds)
Seasoned salt
12 slices bacon
1 (1-lb. 14-oz.) can pineapple slices.

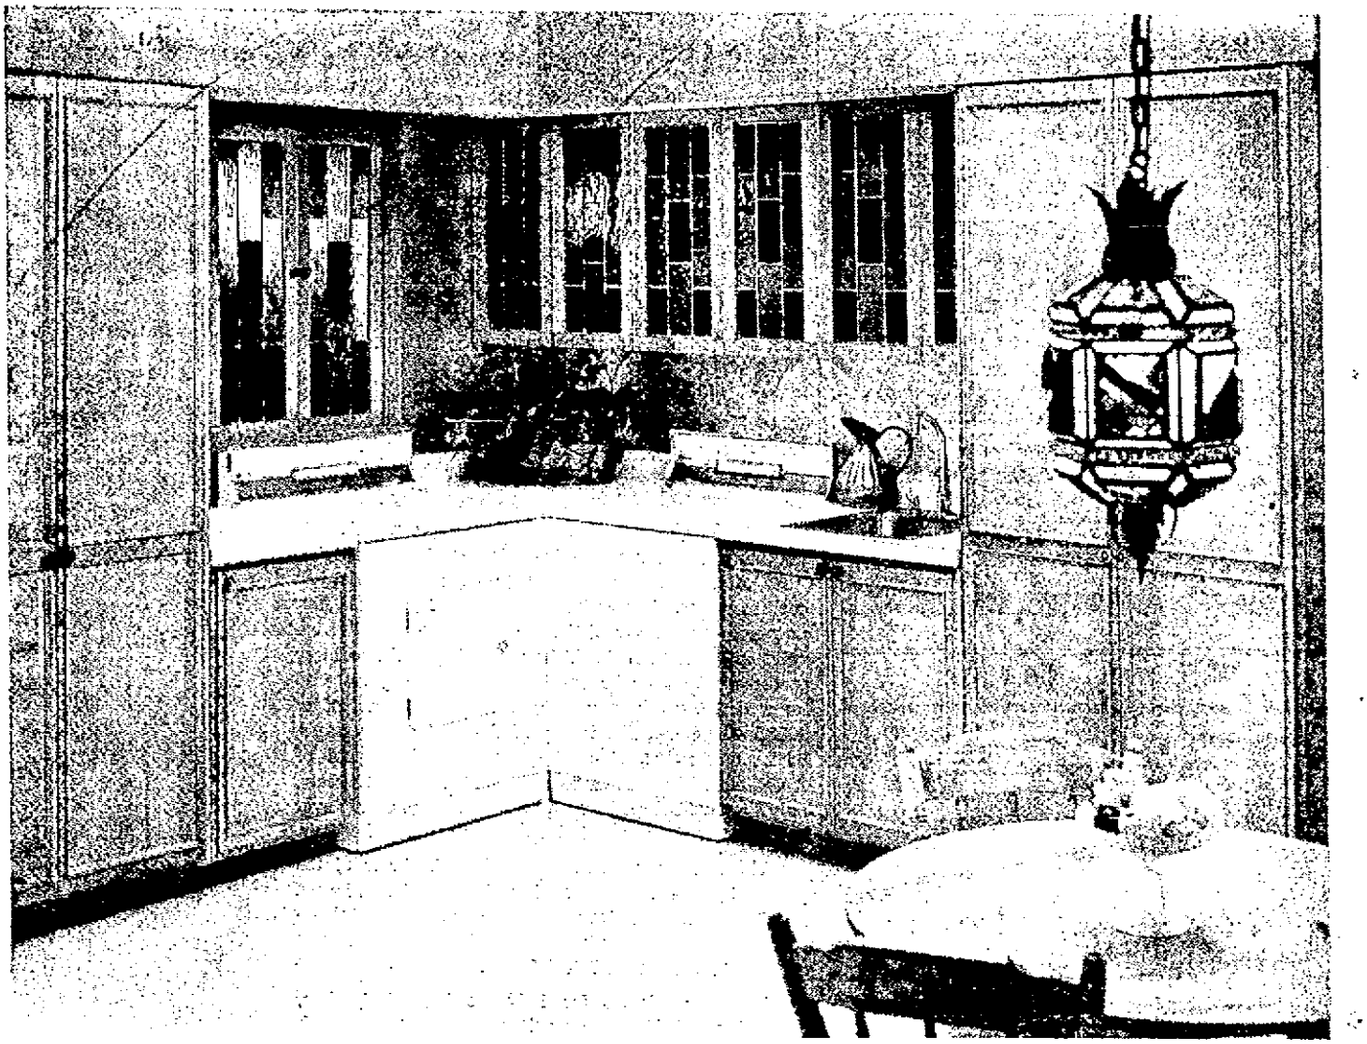

Sprinkle chicken livers lightly with seasoned salt. Cut bacon strips in half. Wrap each chicken liver in bacon; skewer in place. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 10 minutes. Baste livers with pan drippings once or twice. Drain off fat. Place well drained pineapple slices in pan. Continue baking 5 to 10 minutes until bacon is crisp and pineapple heated. Makes 8 servings.

QUEEN BEE PINEAPPLE CHUNKS provide a stylish accent for dessert. Marinate drained canned pineapple chunks in mixture of half honey and half brandy for several hours. Serve chilled in champagne or sherbet glasses topped with toasted slivered almonds.

EXOTIC PINEAPPLE KABOBS are a sweet tasty meat garnish or a tempting contrast with ice cream. Alternately string canned pineapple chunks and chunky pieces of banana on skewers. Brush with honey thinned with pineapple syrup; heat on grill or under broiler until glazed and brown, brushing often with honey mixture.

PINEAPPLE SALAD sweetens summer. Toss golden canned pineapple chunks, flaming strawberries, dark blueberries and orange sections. Pile in leafy lettuce cups and drizzle with dressing made by beating equal amounts lemonade concentrate, honey and oil with a few poppy seeds.

Here's Another Spring Fix-up Idea

Elegance in a Laundry Room

Long ignored area may be beautiful, efficient

INTERIOR DECORATORS In the laundry room? Yes, sir. And yes ma'am.

Long the most ignored spot this side of the trash barrels, the modern laundry room can be a place of elegance—and should be a place of elegance, judging by the amount of time most housewives spend beside the washer and dryer.

Today's homemakers are seeing the good sense of combining creative decorative, easy-to-maintain building materials and home furnishings, and versatile laundry appliances to make the laundry area one of the most efficient as well as attractive in the modern American home.

The new generation knows that dependable automatic washers and clothes dryers are ready to work any hour, any day of the week, making their location the key to convenience. Best locations, according to the Maytag Home Laundry center, which developed the ideas shown here, are near the bedroom-bath or kitchen areas.

All the more reason, then, to combine laundry with other home functions to make the most of valuable floor-space. Fortunately, choice of location is up to your imagination, now that clothes dryers do away with the necessity of a laundry convenient to the backyard.

THE SECRET of attractive decor is to complement the scheme of surrounding areas. To help your decorating plan, you can choose from shaded coppertone, turquoise, yellow or white appliances—or an exciting new Spanish avocado.

Whether the planning is done by the homemaker or a professional, attractive and serviceable materials are readily available to do the job—wallpaper or decorative wallboard, floor and ceiling tile, scrubbable carpet, plastic laminate surfaces, imaginative hardware, curtains and draperies.

Want to give a lift to your laundry job?

Then, lift your laundry out of the garage or some other dark corner. Bring it out into the open, equip it with a versatile washer and dryer designed to suit all your laundering needs, and decorate your new laundry room in a tasteful, cheery way.

A well-planned home laundry center can be a real woman-saver, especially if it is located right where most of the soiled clothes accumulate—in the bedroom-bathroom area.

A small but complete hallway laundry is a good answer. Because of the new narrower dryers, only 54 inches is needed for both washer and dryer. They can share a wall and plumbing facilities with the bathroom, as is suggested in the Maytag booklet, "A Primer of Home Laundry Planning."

The overhead cupboards can be dual purpose, also. One can be a pass-through towel storage cabinet. Clean towels are put in on the laundry side and taken out, as they are needed, from the bathroom side. Another can be used to store detergent, bleach, fabric softener and any other laundry supplies the homemaker needs.

Opposite the appliances, a counter can contain sorting bins for soiled laundry, plus space for sorting and folding on top.

Just a small laundry area, but well-planned and attractively decorated, can do a lot to make washday sunny. Ideas on planning laundries in other areas of the home can also be found in the Maytag laundry primer. To obtain a free copy, write to: Information Center, The Maytag Company, Newton, Iowa 50208.—Mildred K. Flanary.

Prize-Winning Roses

By Jerry Fellman

HAVE YOU EVER heard any of the following?

"All the roses in the catalog illustrations are so beautiful! So are the rose pictures over the bins at the garden centers and nurseries, as well as those attached to the potted roses in the sales yards. Which roses should I buy? Which ones will do well in my garden? They all look so good and, according to the descriptions, they are all so perfect."

The above is a word picture of a common confusion that will occur countless times this spring as the general run of non-expert customers enter the stores where rose plants are sold to stock their gardens for the coming summer, or just to buy a few plants because they like roses.

For the guidance of these many people who just do not know which roses to buy, All-America Rose Selections, after two years of careful testing in 24 official test gardens scattered throughout the nation, has named four new roses as winners of the famous AARS award of excellence for 1967. It should be reassuring to the ordinary gardener who may be considering purchasing roses to know that those bearing the green and white seal of an AARS winner are the cream of the world's new roses. Back of this guarantee of quality lies the record of AARS—of 2,300 fine new roses tested in the past 28 years, only 72 made the grade to an award, which is a little over 3 per cent of the rose varieties that competed in the trials.

The chances are heavily weighted in favor of the probability that if these award winners are chosen by the rose buyer they will give as excellent an account of themselves in his or her garden as they did in the AARS test gardens throughout the United States.

The four winners for 1967 are Bewitched, clear, phlox-pink hybrid tea; Gay Princess, soft, shell pink floribunda; Lucky Lady, pink bi-color grandiflora; and Roman Holiday, orange-red floribunda.

BEWITCHED — a clear, bright, phlox-pink hybrid tea rose which, unlike most of its companions of this color, exhibits no tendency toward the hard, unlovely magenta pink usually in evidence in pink roses.

Fresh from an outstanding triumph in the 78th annual Tournament of Roses parade where the City of South Pasadena float, beautifully bedecked with thousands of Bewitched blossoms, captured the sweepstakes prize for the most beautiful float, this rose will be to all gardeners of 1967 one of the foremost pink roses of its time.

Aside from its outstanding beauty of bloom, Bewitched possesses another attribute which should endear it to all rose lovers in its remarkable, long-lasting qualities as a cut flower. Floral arrangements of Bewitched hold their color with marked persistence, often lasting from 6 to 7 days.

The elegantly formed buds open into very large flowers, some 5½ to 6 inches across, having 35 to 40 firm textured, slightly frilled petals. The exhibition type blooms are borne on long, strong stems and are produced in large quantities from spring until winter.

The plants are vigorous and tall, though compact in habit, and are well covered with large, medium green, holly-like foliage.

GAY PRINCESS—possesses the makings of an excellent garden rose with its shapely, soft shell-pink tea rose flowers, set on a compact, medium height, bushy, floribunda type plant. Gay Princess also has the floribunda characteristic of mass blooming and is constantly covered with its attractive blossoms.

Although "Queen Elizabeth" and "Farmer's Wife," both tall, stately roses, are to be found in the geneology of Gay Princess, this variety stays within the bounds of accepted, compact floribunda growth. The foliage is dark green and decorative and heavily clothes the whole plant from top to ground.

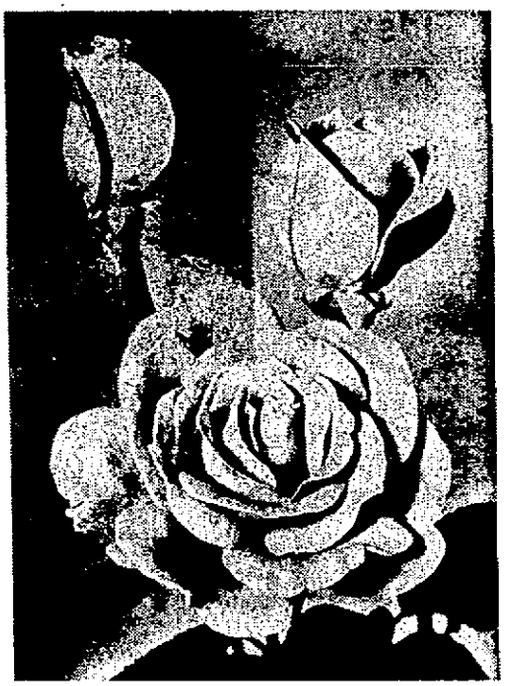

One of the foremost of the new race of large flowered garden floribundas, Gay Princess has the advantage of large, hybrid tea-type blooms which, as cut flowers, may be used either in the natural clusters or the blooms may be cut from the clusters for the many decorative uses of individual short-stemmed roses.

Gay Princess will prove itself useful in most any location in which you might expect to plant a rose. Give it sunshine, satisfactory drainage and good soil and the results will be most rewarding.

ROMAN HOLIDAY — Dazzling orange-red, always in bloom from early Spring until late in the Fall, large clusters of big 2½ to 3 inch blooms—that is Roman Holiday. It is rated as a floribunda and no doubt it is, but to many of us it sort of harks back to the good old polyantha roses that were so hardy, bloomed so freely and grew so well. However, Roman Holiday has much larger, more double, more spectacular blooms.

This rose is the result of a cross between a seedling of Independence and Circus and comes rightly by its clusters of brilliant flowers which really are bi-color, having a rich yellow base shading into gleaming orange-red, but the red dominates so completely that one hardly notices the yellow.

Roman Holiday has an elusive tea fragrance, much more pronounced at some times of the day and apparently it varies even from flower to flower.

Like Circus, Roman Holiday has dark green, leathery foliage completely clothing the plant. The growth of this floribunda is vigorous and healthy and the variety is a most useful one, adapting itself readily to border plantings, massing in a bed, or use as a background.

Gallery for Spring

"Roman Holiday," above, produces orange-red blossoms in great clusters. "Lucky Lady" combines light and dark pink with healthy, vigorous growth of many flowers.

LUCKY LADY — The only grandiflora AARS award winner for 1967, and outstanding for the lovely and unusual combinations of pink shades to be found in its buds and blossoms. A grandiflora rose is a type that, for the most part, carries large tea rose flowers in clusters. This characteristic is typical of Lucky Lady, but along with the clusters may be found very large blooms borne on single stems, long, straight and fine for cutting.

Actually this rose also is a bi-color because the back of the flower petals are much deeper pink suffused with red and as they are incurved, the deeper pink blends in with the soft pink face of the petals to add brilliance to the bloom. The urn-shaped buds are large, long and tapering and open into lovely, graceful blooms of about 30 petals.

The parents of Lucky Lady are the famous Charlotte Armstrong and Cherry Glow. This cross endowed the variety with virtues that should endear it to generations of gardeners. It develops a shapely plant with excellent, rich green foliage and a healthy, vigorous habit of growth.

Lucky Lady is a rose well worth a place in any garden.

We Lucky California Gardeners!

GARDENERS IN California have it luckier than those who have green thumbs in other states. Our benign climate permits many more days of gardening and at the same time, it permits the use of many more, often spectacular, plant materials. You can accent the unusual in this state, and if you don't there's no one to blame but yourself.

Take the bottle-brushes for instance. These are highly unusual shrubs, seldom seen in colder climates than ours. Yet, in California, they are almost commonplace, or should be. Natives of Australia, they adapt well to the similar California climate, thriving outdoors here, while gardeners in colder states grow them only under glass.

If you're not familiar with the bottle-brushes, picture an actual brush for cleaning bottles, substitute scarlet bristles for the real thing, put them on a gray shrub, and you've got the picture. They really provide the gardener with an unusual accent shrub and one of many uses.

The bottle-brushes are available in more than one form, too, as any local member of the California Association of Nurserymen can show you. Most familiar of the family is the Scarlet Bottle-Brush, a drought resistant shrub of moderate size, excellent for planting along a fence, or against the sunny wall of a house. Next in popularity is the McCaskill Bottle-Brush, a pendulous shrub or small tree — usually pruned into the latter form — which carries the familiar red brushes on "weeping" branches. Other family members include two lower-growing varieties, one which is almost prostrate, and excellent for bank plantings.

The popular Scarlet Bottle-Brush is available through C.A.N. nurseries as a small tree or as an espaliered shrub in addition to the standard upright shrub.

Lawn Scalping Time Is Here

By Joe Littlefield

FANCY FOLIAGE caladium bulbs, like many kinds of bulbs, have a dormant, leafless period, slowly start to grow in season, mature fully, and many kinds in most cases burgeon forth with showy flowers and gradually die down.

The fancy caladium we're discussing may possibly bloom, and if so, the flower is small and looks slightly like a calla blossom. These bulbs are available at some garden shops and nurseries and are grown as potted plants for indoors, or planted in a protected area of shade garden. They primarily are grown for their unusually showy and colorfully variegated foliage and last throughout the summer. Plant some and you'll have them in season annually, provided you store the bulbs as you would tulips, Dutch hyacinths or any similar type bulbs, but replant them in late winter.

SCALP MATTY hybrid Bermuda, St. Augustine or Bermuda (devil) grass lawn now, if you didn't have the opportunity to do so last fall. "Scalp" means to mow the lawn by gradual lowering of the cutting bar of the power mower after each mowing, until the cutting bar cuts the lawn flush with the soil. Rake off the grass the grass catcher may miss before continuing each lower mowing.

It is optional whether you should sow grass lawn over the existing scalped lawn. If you prefer the lawn you have, it is much better not to seed grass seed into it because the existing lawn grows back like a brand new lawn. (Fall scalping of such lawns usually are grass seeded for a green winter lawn). Once the new growth has started you'd be wise to feed it with one of the specific turf fertilizers recommended for such blade lawns.

PESTS THAT gardeners should keep a wary eye out for now mainly are aphids, snails and slugs. The gardener will get maximum insecticide spray effect by adding a tablespoon of an oil emulsion spray to each gallon of water containing the insecticide spray. The oil emulsion causes the other spray to stick to the foliage instead of running off the leaves.

Scatter an effective snail-slug control in shady and low foliage garden areas and especially in ground covers where these pests nest, breed, then sally fourth to feed on tender garden vegetation, damaging choice plants. Snails — and slugs even more so — feast on dichondra lawns, too. Those "icy" looking tracks over walks or foliage are tell-tale signs these pests are around. Scatter the bait in those areas even though you don't see the pests.

Plant some more gladioli in groups of dozen or more spaced up to around six inches apart in sunny flower bed areas or even edging walk, or driveway or a sunny exposure narrow soil area between walk and wall or lawn and soil area.

Different, colorful, these fancy leaf caladium bulbs soon will be available at shop or nursery.

Major Remodeling Job Delights L.B. Family

THE LONG SEARCH for a new home, after 30 years in the old one, ended where it began at the California Heights residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Foust.

After their two children were grown, the Fousts decided it might be time for a change from the home they had built. They spent most of a year looking at property and homes only to realize each time they already had added most of the advantages to their home and were not ready to accept newer disadvantages.

Even the children were delighted to have home remain where they had grown up, and, although Nancy is married and Terry is in college, this always will be home.

After the decision to stay put was reached, the Fousts set about adding a few things they always had wanted to the house and even incorporating some into the children's rooms.

THE RUMPUS room originally was built for the children's activities with mostly functional furniture and slab floor with easy access to the patio for cookouts. A major change was in decorating the same room to suit adult tastes and activities.

When the room was added bordering the living room, dining room and kitchen on the outside, the window glass was removed and stained shutters were added to each window frame, giving the extra room a feeling of belonging to the balance of the house.

Since the living room, rumpus room and patio flow directly into each other, the color scheme incorporated in all rooms blends with the outdoors, with green predominating.

Pink dominates the living room, from rosy beige carpeting to coral velvet fireplace chairs. Swag draperies are beige with a pink cast. Warm red bricks have been highly polished to give a quarry tile effect with black paint grout outlining each brick. Tri-level pecan end tables hold lamps at the side of each button-back chair.

Mrs. Foust retained most of her earlier choices and is happy to note that much of her early furniture has returned to fashion!

A CREWEL PRINT sofa includes all of the colors used in the room with velvet pillows adding highlights. A Rembrandt print above the sofa was added hurriedly to complete the room in time for a luncheon. Mrs. Foust was not sure she liked the picnic scene in the dark green frame, but everyone at the luncheon thought it was the perfect touch—so she kept it and finally had to admit she liked it, too!

Since the walk-through space to the rumpus room is narrow, a small baroque coffee table was used.

One green check fan-back chair is placed near the entrance to the rumpus room. A companion chair on the opposite side of the glass divider makes each room part of the other.

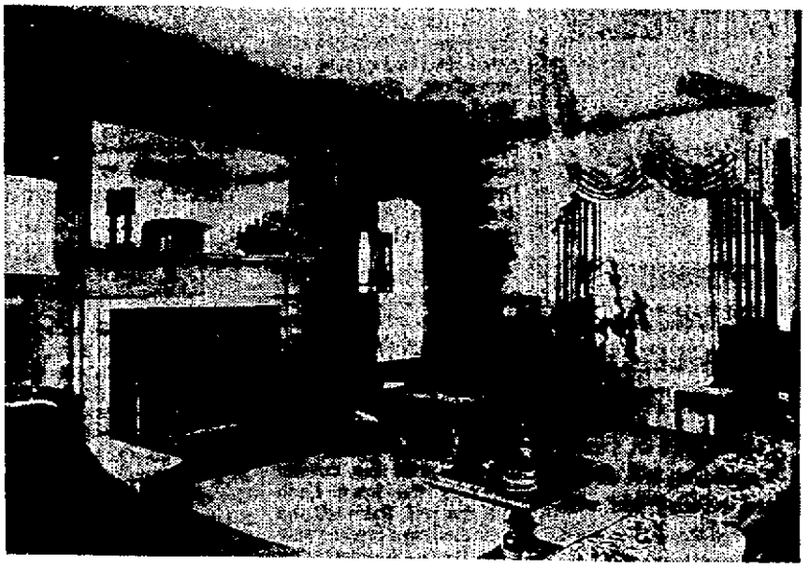

To complement the Gov. Winthrop desk, Mrs. Foust used a family heirloom needlepoint chair. On top of the desk is an old, ornate French clock with a figure of Mozart on the side.

With coved ceiling and blending carpeting and draperies, the living room gives a spacious and light appearance.

GLASS PANELS surround the glass door to a step-down family room with all knotty pine paneling and a sloping ceiling. A built-in pine bar harmonizes in the warm wood tones.

A low planter box lines one wall under a corrugated glass window. The Fousts added an awning, which, even so, admits enough light to brighten the avocado-carpeted room and to permit plants to thrive.

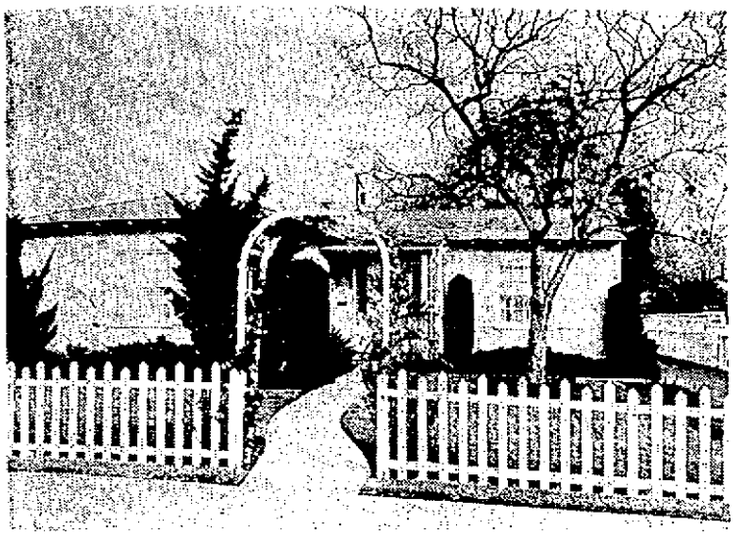

To continue the tie-in color scheme, a crushed-rose velvet sofa matches

Formal living room is furnished in rose beige swags, matching draperies and coral velvet button-back chairs. Informal den offers easy lounge chairs in green, avocado carpeting. Den opens through shutters from living room.

THE SOUTHLAND AT HOME

pinks used in the living room.

Shelves were installed under the shuttered former windows. Avocado draperies hang under a carved valance. A collection of brass plates tops the valance.

Two blue-green print lounge chairs corner the room, balancing a much-used piano in an opposite corner. A pine farmhoue rocker is comfortably uphostered in bright print. A dominant influence in the surrounding rooms and patio is the gracefully winding elm tree which was the basis for the patio design.

GREEN PAINTED concrete covers the complete rear patio with narrow borders of ivy, imperial bamboo, eugenia and Schefflera.

The red brick patio fireplace shields the driveway and curves to divide the guest house and entertainment section. A swinging bracket is useful for long-cooking foods. A grill makes outdoor breakfasts pleasureable and a tile-topped column serves as buffet.

White wrought iron furniture mixes comfortably with aluminum to provide seating and dining in different areas of the patio.

Among the happy decisions was the one to keep the Hepplewhite dining furniture and a low, turned-back cedar chest fitted under the window. A mural of the scenic Hudson River completely covers the upper half of the wall. The soft greens were used in the pleated draperies outlining the shuttered windows.

The hall to the master bedroom is square with an opening to a remodeled bath.

THE FOUSTS admit there is little can be done with an old bath except start over, but they decided to remove the old medicine chest and line the wall with mirrors. Pink and cream tile made the use of pink rose wallpaper with pink draperies and carpet most valuable.

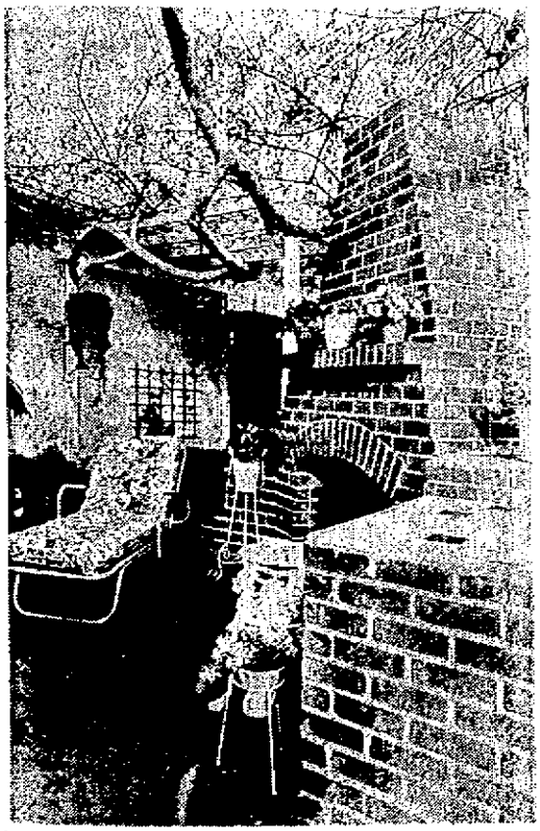

The master bedroom is a blending of pinks with white based on the embossed wallpaper background. With a built-in dressing table, only a double dresser was needed for storage. An antique gold headboard enhances the colorful print bedspread.

A multi-colored tweed wallpapered hall leads to the very important den. Practical tweed carpeting makes the traffic flow easy on the housekeeper. Knotty pine paneling covers two walls with recessed shelves and a built-in desk for Foust's work-at-home days.

Venetian watercolors are reminiscent of a vacation in Europe. A maple platform rocker, leather-covered rocker and a sofa bed provide ample seating and sleeping space. Balance of the den walls were painted oyster white and the win-

Picket fence and rose-covered arch surrounds Foust home. Columnar eugenia serves to soften pink stucco bungalow. Gnarled evergreen elm forms lacy cover for patio, cook-out complex with built-in grill and swinging potholder.

New Messiah Complex Arises in LSD Users

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Editor

ONCE AGAIN a doctor warns against the dangers of the hallucinating drug LSD

Dr. Sidney Cohen, chief of the psychiatry service at Wadsworth VA Hospital in West Los Angeles, describes the following reactions in patients:

● A 20-year-old male supermarket employe took LSD four times and became incoherent and agitated. He suffered hallucinations and became convinced he was the New Messiah. He refused food, stating he did not require sustenance. The drug chlorpromazine was administered at a county hospital, but this treatment was ineffective. The patient was then committed to a state hospital where he alternately raged and wept. Frequently he would curl up in a fetal position.

● A manager of a door-to-door magazine sales crew took LSD a half-dozen times, became convinced he was the Savior.

● A young man who had taken LSD left a party, stepped into the path of an oncoming auto, raised his hand and yelled, "Halt!" Death was instantaneous.

Dr. Cohen, who has written a book about LSD, says that this compound and similar drugs are "potent mind-shakers which should not be lightly or frivolously consumed."

The report is in the journal Psychosomatics.

COLLEGE STUDENTS WHO use LSD are often afflicted with deep-seated feelings of personal inadequacy and shame, another psychiatrist says.

Dr. Edwin Lipinski of Vancouver, B.C., says that student-users of the hallucinating drug appear to be hoping "for some sort of magical cure for their turmoil."

In other words, he says, they are attempting to bypass the "shameful experience of working out their problems in the presence of another person (a therapist), whom they fear will learn their secret weaknesses."

NEW YORK RESEARCHERS have found that a new delayed-reaction drug sloughs off skin cancers.

Called TEIB or Trenimon, the drug is applied directly to the skin cancer. It induces delayed hypersensitivity, resulting in erosion of malignant tissue. Little or no damage is done to normal tissue.

The drug, produced in Germany, is available in the U.S. for research only.

Investigation is being carried out in this country at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.

DRINKING OF FLUORIDATED water over a long period of time appears to have no adverse effect whatsoever on man, a 16-year study discloses. The study, conducted among thousands of children in Evanston, Ill., is reported in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

HAVE TROUBLE GETTING your youngster to take his medicine?

Well, zoo veterinarians have that problem, too, with animals. Here's how some of them handle it, according to Dr. Charles P. Gandal of the Bronx Zoo:

To get oral antibiotics into birds, oxytetracyline is injected into meal worms.

For peanut eaters who down the shell, too, the vet removes one of the peanuts and substitutes a capsule of antibiotic.

Chocolate bars have even been melted, laced with a medication, then reformed and shaped as a bar for subsequent feeding to animals that show a preference for chocolate.

DISEASES OF THE HEART and arteries accounted for more than half the deaths in the U.S. in 1966, statisticians at Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. report.

Deaths from pneumonia, influenza and emphysema (a lung ailment) rose 10 per cent, reflecting a flu outbreak during the year.

Cancer, second to heart disease as a natural cause of death, showed no change from 1965 to 1966.

vents, turpentine and paint removers. Before you begin a painting or refinishing job, give hands a soothing rub-down with a specialized hand cream. Three formulas are available — one for extra dry skin, one that's anti-detergent and one that's medicated. Used on the hands before a job, these creams not only protect, but also leave skin smooth and soothed.

BE AN EFFICIENCY EXPERT!

Simplify the waiting line for tub and shower after grubby chores. An entire family can clean hands, face and neck with a new rinse off cold cream that removes grime with warm water and a washcloth. One new idea in cold creams rinses off or tissues away dirt and adds the bonus of clean, clear skin. It's especially effective for use after contact with irritants, since its softening action penetrates deep into pores.

dows were draped in the same color.

The kitchen and dinette were remodeled by removing a dividing wall, lining the kitchen wall with birch cabinets, adding all copper appliances and insisting that the two windows remain intact for privacy.

MANY SUGGESTIONS were made for a large window over the sink, but Mrs. Foust felt the exposure to near-neighbors would be difficult for them both. Instead, a mirrored spice shelf separates the two curtained windows.

A curved formica counter serves to break the line btween the kitchen and informal dining room. A white wrought iron table with white formica top is surrounded by matching chairs covered in turquoise print to match the batik wallpaper.

SOUTHLAND AT HOME

The final addition to the original house was added when the children arrived. The porch became a utility room and two bedrooms with bath were added.

The shared bath has red and white snowflake wallpaper with white tired ruffles at the window. Cheerful red carpet covers the floor, all blending well with the red and white tile.

TERRY, THE college-age son, has a combination study and bedroom overlooking the gardens. Tailored, box-pleated spread in brown with turquoise contours the bed. Fixed-shelves, desk and cabinets corner the bedroom. All bedrooms have windows on the three sides for perfect hot-weather air flow. Loose-weave draperies with pleated, brown valances match the bedspread in Terry's room.

Nancy, the married daughter, enjoys her own room when she visits. Her two boys sleep in the maple bed she had as a child. White painted closets for the dressing table alcove. Narrow windows on each side of the table are outlined with floor-length chintz curtains. Blue is Nancy's color, so blue carpeting and bedspread in blue print make the Gainsborough Blue Boy reproduction, framed with his companion, Pinky, very much a part of the room.

The corner patio window looks down upon a nostalgic memento—Nancy's school desk.

Social Study of New Ulm Ranks with Pioneer Work

GERMANIA, U.S.A.: Social Changes in New Ulm, Minnesota, by Noel Iverson. University of Minnesota Press, $5.50.

GOOD SOCIAL studies of American communities, like the Lynds' two near-classic books on Middletown (which actually was Muncie, Ind.) are few and far between.

Robert and Helen Lynd wrote their "Middletown" and "Middletown in Transition" in 1929 and 1937. Noel Iverson's 1966 study of a differnt kind of community is rattling good reading and of great sociological value.

New Ulm, in southern Minnesota, has a population of 12,000. What makes it a different sort of a community is the fact that it was founded in 1856 by refugees from Germany after the revolution of 1848. (They named their settlement after Ulm, in southern Germany, on the Danube.)

They were progressive in thought, indeed Utopian. They were members of the liberal Turnverein society. In due time they became the elite of New Ulm, running its businesses, politics and cultural activities.

Prof. Iverson analyzes the changes in the community as reflected in status, class, power and assimilation. He compares two generations of the Turners (descendants of the Turnverein members and founders of New Ulm) and two generations of non-Turners.

It is a first rate study of an ethnic community, and of power structures in an American town. The author lived in New Ulm in his youth.—Nat Honig.

Who Burned Moscow?

WAS IT THE SPONTANEOUS, self-sacrificing act of a patriotic populace, determined to present Napoleon, not with a grand triumphal entry, but with a hollow shell of a city?

Was it done by the Russian soldiers themselves, accidentally or deliberately? Was it the carefully planned action of the Russian authorities? Or did the French set the torch to Russia's proudest cities?

The controversy began while Moscow's ashes were still hot, and, like most historical events of heroic sacrifice, in no time at all became clothed in the mystique of popular legend, and never will be settled.

Daria Olivier, St. Petersburg-born Russian history buff who lives and writes in France, adds new fuel to the controversial fire in The Burning of Moscow, Crowell, $6.95. She adds new knowledge as well, because she has taken advantage of the opening up of Russian archives on the occasion of the recent sesquicentennial of what the Soviets now like to call "The Patriotic War" — the Napoleonic invasion and its rout.

There is no questioning the decisive effect of the great burning on the subsequent course of the Napoleonic invasion, on the fate of Napoleon himself and of Russia.

Instead of the grand triumph he had envisioned, Napoleon, on Sept. 15, 1812, entered a dead city, empty and still burning. The peace and the political victory the Emperor had sought to force on the Russians were not to be found amidst the ashes of Moscow. To the Russians' aid there came a new commander, "General Winter," and the harried retreat of Napoleon from Russia was the result of his strategy.

"It is one of the most singular facts in history that an action to which public opinion attributed such a great influence on the fate of Russia remains without a father, like the fruit of a forbidden love affair, and will always remain shrouded in mystery," wrote the great Prussian military scientist Clausewitz.

Tolstoy attributed the burning to chance. Stalinist historians laid the blame on Napoleon. Clausewitz at first blamed "the Cossacks' habit of looting in earnest everything that had to be abandoned to the enemy and then setting fire to it." Later the Prussian became convinced that the governor of Moscow, Count Rostopchin, a man disliked by Czar Alexander I, had ordered the burning to stop Napoleon, and the weight of evidence supports that view.

The author of "The Burning of Moscow" concurs with Clausewitz and the evidence, refusing to lay the burning at the door of Tolstoy's chance, or the French or Russian armies.

Yet the count, who had accepted adulation as the hero of the burning, suddenly, in 1823, published a pamphlet in Paris, denying he had ordered the fire, and blamed Napoleon.

Tales of Two Italian Families in Poverty and Affluence

By Morry Rabin

MY HOME, SWEET HOME, by Giovanni Guareschi. Translated from the Italian by Joseph Green. Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $4.50.

NO STEADY JOB FOR PAPA, by Marion Benasutti. Vanguard, $4.95.

MOST ANYBODY but Guareschi, author of the delightful Don Camillo stories, would be frustrated in a family that votes as a corporation on how to spend his income, holds trials with him as the defendant and won't accept his writing of books and magazine and newspaper articles as a profession as useful, say, as driving a truck or fixing shoes.

So the Pasionaria, age 6, introduces poor Giovanni to her blonde friend as the family chauffeur and calmly lays claim to half the cake he receives as a tip for driving the little friend home. Albertino, 10, is obsessed with the sex of bicycles and grudgingly decides to read one of his father's books after somebody at school tells him Giovanni is an author. "It's written in big letters and goes fast," is the expert assessment by the devoted son.

The Pasionaria runs the house, with exasperating logic, but Mama Margherita is triumphant in the kitchen even when Giovanni's rebellious stomach inspires him to have catered meals brought in and placed on the dinner table. Mama retaliates by having meals catered for everybody, they returns to her outrageous frying, and Giovanni returns to bicarbonate.

Stuck with a 1,000-lira note every merchant in town knows isn't for real, Margherita makes a deal with the concierge to pass it on for her and split the proceeds. It's done twice, each lady pocketing 500 liras apiece both times. When the homing bill returns again, Mama takes it to the bank to lay it to final rest. "There are defects in the printing," the banker says, "but the bill is not counterfeit," and hands her two 500-lira notes.

IN THE WARM, bittersweet account of the tribulations of her Italian parents and their five daughters — four born in Pennsylvania — Marian Benasutti calls herself "Rosemary" and exercises the novelist's privilege of poetic license, but her autobiography is an authentic addition to the lore of immigrant assimilation.

Things might have been easier if Papa had been trained in the Old Country for hard work instead of scholarship, but had not Papa disregarded the merits of year-round employment in America, the family would have missed its most memorable experiences.

Denied a call to the priesthood, Papa came to America as a youth in 1892, returned to Italy and married pretty, unshod and unlettered Mama, then went back to America for the riches he didn't find. Mama, tired of waiting, followed with her little mother and baby Trina, paying their way in steerage.

First the family lived in a mining town in Pennsylvania, where Papa learned hard labor; then on Back Street in "Filadelfia," where Papa had a steady job only during World War I. While still in childhood, the girls pitched in, Rosemary looking after a rich old lady and working in a knitting sweatshop. Poverty wasn't their only problem, though, because Trina eloped with Larry Lacey, and if there was one woman on Back Street Mama couldn't take, it was Larry's fiercely Irish mother.

Papa's ultimate breakthrough into private enterprise, as a maker of cement steps and owner of his own pickup truck, and Mama's acquisition of their own home in respectable Germantown, are the tasty sauce on this well cooked bowl of spaghetti. Mama Mia, what a gal.

Ways, Wiles of Conmen Bared by Expert Writer

WOLVES, WIDOWS AND ORPHANS, by Dan Tyler Moore. World, $5.95.

THE TITLE is a catchy one, and the contents of this book more than fulfill the expectations of the reader. In 35 almost incredible and often humorous pieces, the author exposes "the ways and wiles of conmen, cardsharps, swindlers and rogues."

With the skill of an expert short story writer of the O. Henry type, Moore bares the "true accounts" of a number of the most ingenious frauds and swindles of all times. Some of them involve world famous personalities or major companies.

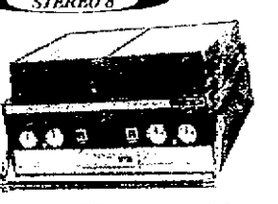

Included are schemes to break the bank at Monte Carlo, to defraud the stock market, to produce gold from sea water, to market a pill possessing the power of a bucket of gasoline, to sell a powder that makes a man irresistible to women.

Moore is former chief of the O.S.S. spy-catching apparatus in Cairo and has spent years bringing deceivers to justice. He is the author of the Ohio Securities Act.—Bob Martin.

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: A Simple Rocket.

NEEDED: A balloon, pencil, paper, scissors and paper clip.

DO THIS: Roll the paper around the pencil. Remove the pencil, and fasten the rolled paper with the clip. Put the roll into the balloon, as shown in figure 2, inflate the balloon, and release it.

A little experimenting with scissors will result in the right size and weight of the paper and clip. When this is correct, the released balloon will sail up. If the rocket trick is tried indoors, the balloon will push against the ceiling until the air comes out.

HERE'S WHY: For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction. This is the rocket principle, Newton's third law, dating from 1686. The balloon pushes the air out and the escaping air makes for a lighter pressure on the neck side than on the opposite inside of the balloon. The weight of the paper and clip and the balloon neck keep the balloon in an upright position so it will climb.

Tips on Gardening

SEVERAL GARDENERS believe the fruit set spray has helped tomato blossoms hang on and set fruit on tomatoes that have been planted early in the season.

PLANT SOME carnations for delightfully fragrant blossoms and for cut flower use. You must snap out the top growth to force more branches for more flowers.

PLANT SOME ranunculus from pony paks for lots of bright color good picking cut flowers. Set them out in the sunny garden.

DAY LILIES not only are good perennial plants, but they are desirable space fillers in gardens where evergreen foliage adds to the garden planting, as well as the attractive lily-like flowers, whether one of the various shade of yellow, orange, or deep dark red colors. They may be left undisturbed for four years or so before they need to be dug up, separated and young plants reset.

WRAP SOME form of cloth cover around non-sprouted roses and daily keep the cover and soil moist. If there is any life in the rose roots, they'll shortly sprout.

IDEAL TIME to set out ground covers, especially on steep banks or slopes, is just as soon as the rains are over. This gives the plants a good chance to establish their roots firmly in the soil before the hot weather sets in. If not practicable to prepare trench rows where young plants are to be set out, at least prepare the holes for the plants by working in either pre-moistened peat moss, compost soil, leaf mold or one of the planting mulches.

GARDENERS WHO grow chrysanthemums for flower show competition never would think of using "Irish" cuttings, which means taking the rooted plants from a large mum clump, separating the new growths with some roots on them, because they feel the true tips cuttings from the new growth produce the best plants. Average hobby gardeners who like lots of flowers happily use the separated already rooted young plants from the old clump.

THOSE EARLIER set out bare root roses, or bare root shade or flowering trees should be sprouted out by now. If they've been in the ground six weeks or longer and are not sprouted yet, chances are the soil may be loosely packed, or the gardener doesn't give them enough water and the roots are kept too dry. Firm the soil, keep it moist.

Seeing Spots?

Don't be depressed by soiled wall-to-wall carpet or rugs. Weinheimer will use modern, deep-cleaning equipment to bring carpet color back bright & shining, raise the pile tall and proud. And your rooms are ready for use a few hours after cleaning.

Pet Bunnies May Be Illegal

MANY CHILDREN enjoy rabbits and like to enter them in kids' pet shows. It happened at the last Bixby Park event. Two children were elated because theirs were "in the ribbons." Yet a couple days later, a police officer rang their doorbell and told them they had just a short time to "get rid of them."

It seems that in some areas, especially south of the Pacific Coast Highway, it is illegal to have pet rabbits.

So before you buy that captivating Easter bunny for a gift, find out if you can keep it.

A young rabbit should be handled very little. Never pick it up by the ears or feet. Take hold of loose skin on the shoulders, together with the tips of the ears with one hand, and place the other hand under the rump. Turn the rabbit's feet away from you. If it struggles, tuck its head under your arm or rest the bunny on a table while still holding it.

A TINY rabbit can eat bread and milk and some prepared pellets from a pet shop. Add greens sparingly at first. A thriving rabbit can have bulky foods such as clover, alfalfa, lawn clippings, carrots, beets, turnips, sweet potatoes, pea pods, lettuce, stemless hay, wheat, buckwheat, oats, barley and pellets. Raise protein level with additional peanuts and linseed, also soybeans if your veterinarian feels they won't cause an anti-tryptic factor harmful to the pancreas.

One evening meal is sufficient for the older rabbit. Remove all food not eaten by 10 a.m. the next day. Never toss in food indiscriminately. Put it in a clean crock, and use another for clean water.

A rabbit hutch will soon be needed. The best will have a wire-mesh bottom so eliminations can fall through. Use a roofing of tar paper or linoleum. Be sure the structure is strong. Place it in shade during summer and under shelter in cold weather. Provide a nest box by darkening one end of the hutch or securing a nail keg inside. A few inches of loose stemless hay will be appreciated.

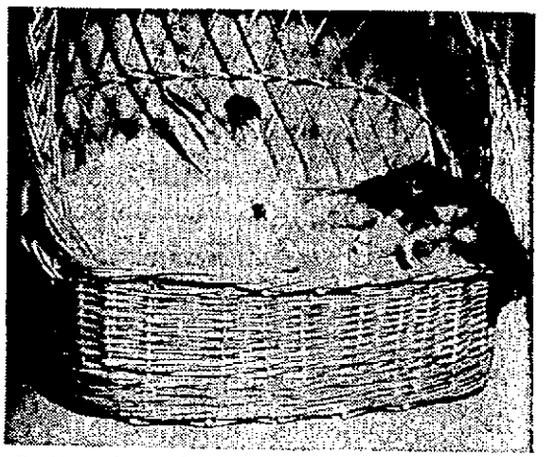

If your rabbit does something that pleases you, reward it quickly with food, and soon the pet may learn tricks. Use low boxes for it to jump from. Walk back and forth before its hutch, and the rabbit will appear to be dancing.

If a mother rabbit has babies, be certain she has her own separate cage. Don't disturb her young, but check to see that she is eating. Keep her food rich in protein and minerals.

TODAY: Caravan Cat Club show closes at Morgan Hall, Long Beach.

NEXT SUNDAY: Orange County Toy Breeders Association match, Artesia Park, South Street between Pioneer and Norwalk Boulevards, Artesia. Dogs over 8 weeks old may be entered; entries close at noon.

APRIL 1, Sun Maid Kennel Club unbenched show and trial at Fresno County Fairgrounds. April 2, Kern County Kennel Club has a similar event at Bakersfield Fairgrounds.

Resting after a happy romp are these two good friends, "Peter Rabbit" and "Little Napoleon."

Don't Be Bamboozled by Bamboo

By Ted Krec

I GUESS MY FIRST exposure to bamboo came in the 1920s when the elders of my era were playing a schizoid Chinese gambling game known as Mah-Jongg. It was a beautiful game played with ivory and ebony tiles. Symbols on these tiles were circles, characters, winds, pretties, dragons and bamboos.

The bamboos and pretties always were my favorites.

Then, as a teenager, I used to go fishing in Big Timber Creek and Little Timber Creek, and we used "Democrat poles," great long pieces of yellow bamboo. The epitome of the plush life was to have a "split bamboo" casting rod.

Come to think of it, I've been a bamboo fan for a good many years, so it was with unbounded joy that I found this old friend growing in profusion when I came to Southern California.

In profusion is right — because once it gets started in a yard, you have to be in league with the devil to get rid of it. So the moral is: "Be careful how you use it!"

IT'S FINE if you contain it in tub planters — no problem. But let certain varieties get started in the ground and it requires poured concrete three feet deep to contain it!

Some varieties are fast growers and will shoot up new growth at the rate of several feet a day.

Actually, bamboo is not a tree — it's a woody grass of great variety and complexity. It ranges in size from dwarf varieties a few inches tall to forest giants 100 feet high. It is native to every continent except Europe and can grow in a

Before this weekend is over, crawling, slime-trailing slugs or snails can be out of your garden and out of your life. Your plants can be safe again.

ORTHO BUG-GETA does the trick, just scatter the pellets or meal about your garden (especially around bedding plants or other low-growing plants) and give it a light sprinkle of water. That's all there is to it. Slugs and snails can't resist its metaldehyde lure.

Scatter a few handsful every three weeks and you can lick your slug or snail problem for keeps. Used as directed, it's safe, effective and thrifty.

Installing Floor Tile's Not All That Hard, If...

THE INSTALLATION of floor tile appears surprisingly easy, on paper. Just follow the simple instructions and shortly you will be walking on a beautiful new floor. However the job can be tedious and time-consuming, not to say messy unless you take your time and work very carefully. To simplify the job, do this:

By GLEN STILLWELL

Move all furniture out of the area. To move heavy appliances use a dolly or slide a piece of rug under them. An old broom will also serve as a sled for moving heavy pieces.

Get together all of the material you need to do the work, including the adhesive, and put them in a large-size grocery carton. This is important because try as you may, you can't keep the adhesive from making a mess unless it is kept in a large-size corrugated cardboard box. Determine the type of adhesive solvent most suitable and place a supply of this in the same box along with clean wipers. Keep applicators in this box along with other tools but not the new tile. Paint thinner is generally used as an adhesive solvent except when asphalt tile is used.

If you are installing vinyl, rubber or linoleum tile, beg, borrow or even buy a good paper cutter (photo trimmer) and use it to cut your tile. It will do the job neatly, quickly and with great accuracy.

BEFORE APPLYING adhesive, lay out at least a portion of the area to be covered with bare tile and mark them. Next smear a bit of petroleum jelly on the handle of the adhesive applicator and on the handles of other tools, including the shears—or your own hands. This may seem a bit messy but if you've had any experience with adhesive you'll prefer this mess to the one you'll get if you don't protect yourself from the sticky floor cement.

Take off your shoes and stockings then cover your feet with an old pair of sox which you plan to discard. Get into a pair of old shorts and you are ready to do the job.

With about everything you'll need to work with in the carton the chore will be greatly simplified since you can keep everything together within arm's reach, even tile trimmings, and there will be no messy clean-up necessary when the last tile is fitted into place. Use the adhesive very sparingly because a little goes a long ways.

When asphalt tile is used this creates an extra problem because it cannot be cut when cold. Hold the tile to be cut over a gas stove burner or use an infra red (heat) lamp in a suitable reflector. It is advisable to wear gloves when installing asphalt tile.

Keep all tools, rags, can of adhesive solvent in grocery carton. Tile trimmings also can be kept here until needed.

Smear applicator handles and other tools with petroleum jelly to keep hands adhesive-free.

Rubber, vinyl or linoleum floor tiles may be cut easily, accurately with small paper cutter.

wide variety of climatic and soil conditions.

It's used extensively in Southern California landscaping, and the interesting point here is that it is NOT native to this area. However, nurserymen list some 70 varieties which can be grown here successfully. See what I mean? It's a real bamboozler.

There are two types — clump bamboo and running bamboo. The clump type has comparatively little horizontal growth, but the running type is true to its name. An underground stem called a rhizome grows horizontally for some distance then shoots up a new vertical growth.

Therefore, some bamboo lovers who seek to cloak a wall with the graceful grasses suddenly find their whole back yard has turned into a Thailand thicket!

KNOWING OF my deep interest in bamboo, a friend called me up one day to tell me he had obtained for me a catalogue devoted exclusively to bamboo and published by some mysterious chap called "The Bamboo Man."

My mind conjured up visions of the mysterious East as I sped toward my friend's home — but when I got the book in my eager hands, I was amazed at the authorship. This authority, this connoisseur of exotic shrubs was no Fu Manchu from far-off Cathay — he was an Irishman from Saddle River, N.J.!

Disenchanted as I was, I still found his book extremely informative. So much so, in fact, that I almost "did in" the whole family!

In one part of his book he told how to cut and eat bamboo shoots. Lo and behold, right outside our den window is a stand of golden bamboo. So, book in hand, I went out and cut a handful of bamboo shoots. I was thrilled with the new adventure, for even though I had eaten bamboo shoots in chop suey and chow mein, I never had tried them in the native state.

CAREFULLY I peeled them according to directions, then handed some to my wife and dog who also were lined up in eager anticipation.

I didn't think it too odd when my wife's face turned purple — she has quite a flashy disposition and has been known to color up in a moment of pique. Nor did I think it bizarre when the dog began contorting wildly on the floor with great red tongue extended. He's a showoff, too.

But when I bit into the delicacy I realized what was wrong, and the only thing I could do was clutch my throat and cry: "G-a-a-a-a-a-h-h-h!"

Without a word of lying, this was the worst, bitterest and most acid-tasting morsel I ever had tried. It took hours for us to get the taste out of our mouths.

Since then I have learned there are definite ways to prepare these and definite varieties which are favored for culinary purposes.

SO THERE you are—it just goes to prove the adage that: "An expert is a guy from out of town!"

I work hard on my patch of golden bamboo, shaping it and training it — but these days I don't bite it, I use the trimmings for plant stakes!

One thing I can promise you — Saddle River, New Jersey, isn't too far from where my wife's relatives live, and the next time I go back there I'm going to take some delicious shoots from my golden bamboo and forcefeed at least one of them.

Then we'll see who's a bamboob!!

PRATO Kentucky Bluegrass grows so thick, it crowds out weeds! Perfect for new lawns or re-seeding.

Proven on thousands of California lawns, Northrup King's Golf Brand Lawn Seed with Prato is your key to a denser, more weed-free, lovelier lawn. A lawn that will grow thicker, greener, more carpet-y year after year.

25% more grass blades! Prato produces many fine leaves through underground shoots. 25% more than common bluegrass! This dense growth of fine leaves means a better looking turf. Roots are shaded and stay healthy even under hot mid-summer sun.

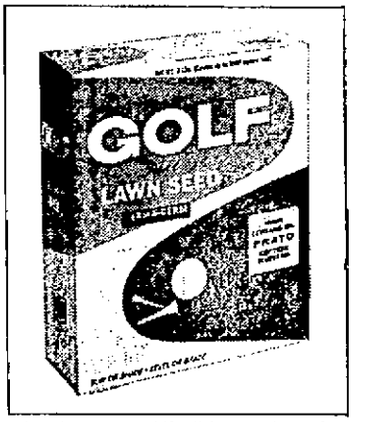

Stronger, sturdier turf. See how the deep, close-knit strip of Prato turf withstands the tearing of a heavily weighted hook, while common bluegrass (right) tears and comes apart easily.

Cushiony, carpet-like feel. Prato gives you a thick, green, grass carpet. A close-packed, lovely lawn that stays thick and green even when mowed short.

"Perma-Germ" processed. Every box of Golf Brand Lawn Seed with Prato has Perma-Germ moisture-proof inner-wrap protection. This four layer wrap shields the seed from harmful moisture. Keeps it brimming with vitality and germinating power until you're ready to plant it. Get Prato . . . only in the Golf Brand blend of fine grasses.

GEN. AL KUSTER
Flaming Steak Dianne

GUESTS who've known him for years call him the general — although he's never commanded an army and seldom dashes about shouting "charge!"

His name is Al Kuster and he's the friendly, tuxedoed maitre d' in the beautiful, spacious Parisian dining room at the Edgewater Inn, 6400 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., Long Beach. Al has been a familiar figure for many years in the better local restaurants. Long ago someone -- noting the similarity between his name and that of Gen. George Custer — gave him the nickname of "general." It's even more appropriate now since Al's head, balding a bit, more closely resembles that of the dashing Custer who lost his locks to the Indians during the disastrous battle of the Little Bighorn.

One of Al's superb specialties is the Edgewater's 14-ounce steak Dianne, which he cooks in a chafing dish at the patron's table. With a flare for showmanship he first creates a delectable sauce which includes ground pepper and a special German seasoning. After cooking the steak, he flames it spectacularly with brandy and adds some burgundy. The result is gustatory enchantment. The $5.95 price includes relish tray, soup or tossed green or spinach salad; potato, vegetable or large wedge of tangy fresh pineapple, hot sourdough bread from San Francisco and beverage.

Served on the same dinner are such Edgewater treats as veal cutlet, parmigiana, with rich marinara sauce, $3.60; roast prime rib of beef au jus with Yorkshire pudding, $4.95; eastern pearl scallops with tartar sauce, $3.65; 10-ounce filet mignon with broiled tomato and onion rings, $4.95; and beef tenderloin Stroganoff, saute, $4.35. The inn is open every day.

SUNDAY TREATS — How's your appetite? If you're starved, try one of the complete dinners in Nik's coffee shop, 3400 Cherry Avenue, Long Beach. Priced from $1.80 (for delicious halibut sticks), they're generous affairs including soup and salad, beverage and dessert. For smaller appetites Nik's includes fewer courses and charges less ($1.35 for the fish sticks). The Viking Room lounge, which doesn't serve dinners Sundays, has inexpensive nightly specials including wine.

Q. Is it true that Jackie Kennedy asked that all mention of her drinking and smoking be deleted from the Manchester book?—Rosalind Graves, Durham, N.C.
A. She asked that references to her smoking and drinking be deleted.

Q. Please identify "the other woman" in the Cary Grant-Diane Cannon marriage breakup—C.B.F., San Bernardino, Calif.
A. No "other woman"—just general incompatibility. Grant, 63, likes to stay at home, avoid the Hollywood social swim. Diane, 29, likes to go out.

Q. Who said, "A ship is always referred to as 'she' because it costs so much to keep her in paint and powder."?—Harold Berenson, Roxbury, Mass.
A. The late Adm. Chester Nimitz.

Q. How many intercontinental missiles do we have as opposed to Soviet Russia?—Newton Glick, Cambridge, Mass.
A. Defense Secretary McNamara said a few weeks ago that we had 1446, the Russians 470.

Q. There has been so much comment about Lyndon Johnson's taste in art since the Peter Hurd affair, I'd like to know what is the President's favorite painting? —Mrs. Fred Oliver, Washington, D.C.
A. One of his favorites: "The Cowboy," by Frederic Remington.

Q. Is it true that after 15 years Italian star Vittorio De Sica is about to marry the mother of his sons?—D.S.S., New York, N.Y.
A. De Sica has two sons, Emanuele, 15, and Cristiano, 17, by actress Maria Mercador, 49 (see photo above). Since there is no divorce in Italy, De Sica has been unable to divorce his wife, Giuditta Rissone. As a result, he has taken French citizenship so that he can divorce Giuditta in Paris, then marry Maria.

Q. Charles de Gaulle—I understand that like General Franco of Spain he refuses to be buried where other famous generals are buried—wants a national monument for himself. Is that so?—S. Gross, El Paso, Tex.
A. Franco forced Spanish political prisoners to work on a gigantic memorial outside of Madrid, where he will be buried. General de Gaulle refuses to be buried in Les Invalides, where many of the great French generals are buried, has decided to be interred in the village where he now has his country estate, Colombey-les-deux-Églises.

Q. The word in Hollywood is that George Hamilton is trying to dump Lynda Bird. What's the scan? — R.E.Y., Hollywood, Calif.
A. People who know of Hamilton's social activities in Munich, Vienna and Paris while abroad on his last film have some doubts as to the true position Lynda Bird holds in Hamilton's ambitious heart.

Q. I have seen this saying many times: "At the third cup, wine drinks the man." Who said it?—Penny Dee Unger, Louisville, Ky.
A. It is an anonymous Japanese proverb.

Q. Who plays "Granny" on the Beverly Hillbillies TV program, and how old is she? — Minnie Bentley, Knoxville, Tenn.
A. Irene Ryan plays Granny who says, "I am somewhere between birth and death." She is 63.

Q. Lee Radziwill, the first or second wife of Stanislas Radziwill? Also did Lee get married before her sister, Jackie Kennedy?—W.P., Atlanta, Ga.
A. Caroline Lee Bouvier, Jackie's sister, was married to Michael Canfield, son of Cass Canfield of Harper & Row, publishers, in 1953, before her sister married John F. Kennedy. Lee's marriage ended in 1958. The following year she married Stanislas Radziwill. He had been married twice before, to a Czech baroness and to Grace Kolin of Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia. Michael Canfield married Laura Charteries, Countess of Dudley. The countess' husband, the Earl of Dudley, in turn married Grace Kolin. They've all been involved in a marital merry-go-round.

Q. I would very much like to know what has happened to the widow of Dylan Thomas, the Welsh writer who drank himself to death in 1953.—Mary Ann Larabee, Evanston, Ill.
A. Caitlin Thomas, 51, now lives in a Rome apartment with Giuseppe Fazio, 44-year-old Sicilian, father of her youngest son, Francesco, 3. As yet they have not married. She also has three children fathered by Dylan Thomas: Llewellyn, 25; Colm, 17, and a daughter, Aeron, 22.

WHACKY BUTTONS ARE REALLY PINNING IT ON

by JOHN G. ROGERS

Some of the corniest, funniest, sickest, cleverest, most irreverent and inane comments on the American scene are found these days on buttons, worn in ever-increasing numbers by teenagers, college kids—and quite a few adults.

"MAKE LOVE, NOT WAR," one popular button urges. "STAMP OUT REALITY" and "I'M POOPED," say others. There's no end to the zany messages: "DRAFT BEER, NOT STUDENTS"; "PRAY FOR SEX"; "L.S.D. NOT L.B.J."; "DEPORT THE MAYOR"; "LEGALIZE BROWN RICE."

One button simply reads, "BUTTON." The wearer says that's equivalent to naming your dog "Dog," if that sort of thing appeals to you. The next step may be a blank button, with each viewer free to visualize his own crazy words.

The button madness began about five years ago and built up steadily. Today button buyers are pursuing their hobby so avidly that manufacturers who once prospered only with political buttons in election years are now reaping good profits every year.

"We're riding a button boom," says New York's Manny Ress, who, as a big manufacturer, calls himself "the button baron—a sloganeer without a peer.

"It began with the causeniks — the peace lovers, bomb banners and war supporters. It went on into the joke buttons. Now the boom is also getting a big lift from big business, more and more firms are using buttons for promotion."

A glance at the window of a retail shop, where buttons sell for 35 cents to $1, shows enough variety to satisfy the nuttiest of tastes:

"HELP ME, I'M AN ANONYMOUS PERSON." "NEVER." "I'M AN ALCOHOLIC, IN CASE OF EMERGENCY BUY ME A BEER." "WHACK H.U.A.C." "PEANUT BUTTER IS BETTER THAN POT." "APATHY." "SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL POLICE, BRIBE A COP TODAY." "SEND BATMAN TO VIETNAM." "MARY POPPINS IS A JUNKIE." "KILL FOR PEACE." "GOD IS ALIVE AND WELL IN MEXICO CITY."

As one retailer put it: "The buttons are selling like insanity. Some days we sell $250 worth."

There's a fine impartiality among button makers. The same plant turns out "BOMB HANOI" and "GET OUT OF VIETNAM." One firm offers a choice of "BLACK POWER" or "WHITE POWER." And some suggest "ITALIAN POWER" and "GREEN POWER." Manny Ress, who makes up most of his own slogans, sometimes while sitting in the bathtub, even has a button which says: "I DON'T CARE WHO WINS—MY BUSINESS IS BUTTONS."

Why wear buttons? There seem to be various reasons. The causeniks, of course, wear them to further their causes. The nuts are out for a laugh.

"Some people wear buttons to get attention and to communicate without speech," says psychologist Harold Greenwald. "Others wear them to become part of the crowd and gain identity in a large group."

Dr. Emil A. Gutheil has written in The American Journal of Psychotherapy:

"A button has a magical character like an Indian's war paint. By wearing it a person rallies his friends and frightens his foes."

Ress, who's made some 500 million buttons in his time and ships them to all 50 states, Puerto Rico and France, sees another button-wearing reason, and it gripes him:

"Some people are buying just for shock value. By that I mean the dirty buttons. Some of 'em even have four-letter words. That's an awful thing to have in a store where kids gather. The button business has always been a fun business, and I resent cheapening it.

"I've even brought out a button that says: 'STAMP OUT THE SMUT NUTS!' "

Perhaps the most versatile button around is the one that merely screams: "HELP." Anyone can wear it and apply it to his own personal problem. A high school graduate in Chicago explained his "HELP" button this way: "There's a war on, and I'm draft bait."

The most disturbing of the tongue-in-cheek buttons warns: "LOOK ALIVE. YOU TOO CAN BE REPLACED BY A BUTTON."

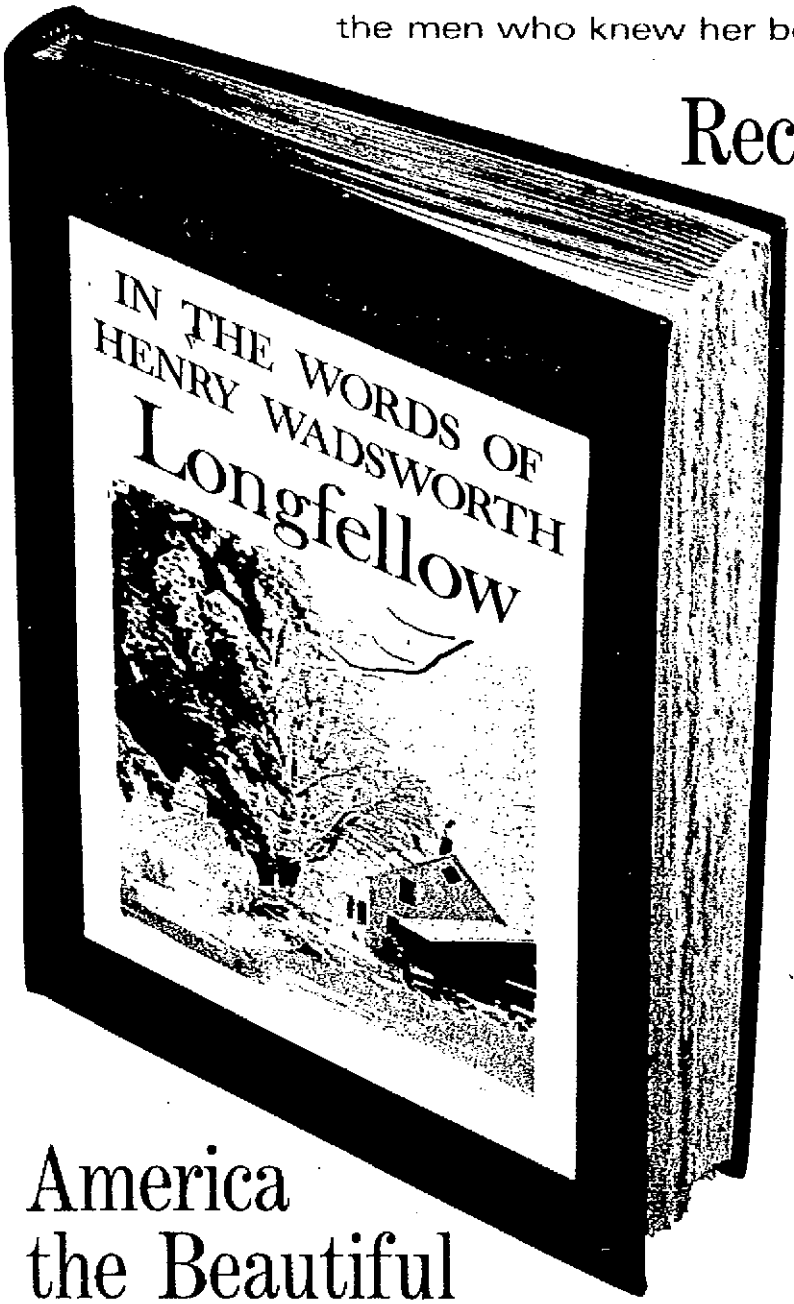

It looks as though the button boom will be with us for some time. A consensus of U.S. retailers goes something like this:

"Wearing buttons is a form of mental therapy. For a dollar or so worth of buttons, a kid can get out of his system anything he wants. It's a lot easier to flash a button than to flap your lips."

Button your lip and say it with a button: U.S. retailers contend, "wearing buttons is a form of mental therapy," and teenager above shows why—there's one for every occasion.

INSTANT DIVORCE—

A Specialty of Juarez, Mexico

by Lloyd Shearer

Actress Dina Merrill wed actor Cliff Robertson (above) after Juarez divorce from Stanley Rumbough. The daughter of cereal heiress Marjorie Merriweather Post, sedate Dina quietly flew in and out of the Mexican divorce center.

JUAREZ.

Several weeks ago TV and film actress Dina Merrill, having arranged a mutually satisfactory financial agreement with her estranged husband, Stanley Rumbough Jr., flew to Juarez, Mexico, a gaudy, bawdy, almost-anything-goes town across the Rio Grande River from El Paso, Tex.

Here, everything set, she was divorced quietly and quickly in half an hour. A few days later she married actor Cliff Robertson in Washington, D.C. No fuss. No bother. No trouble.

Behind Miss Merrill in Juarez came actress Camilla Sparv, a Swedish beauty tired of married life with Robert Evans, young, ambitious production chief at Paramount Studios. Having in mind a potential marriage to British actor Michael Caine, Miss Sparv spent 30 minutes in the Juarez City Hall getting her certificate of residence (cost: $14), another 20 minutes in front of a judge listening to him grant her a divorce. Then she, too, whizzed off to London and into the waiting arms of swinger Michael Caine.

Because a Mexican divorce is recognized in New York, California, Pennsylvania, other large states and remains unchallenged in others, and because divorce in Juarez is a one-day job, painless and relatively cheap—$250 and up—Juarez currently ranks as the divorce capital of the world.

When Stavros Niarchos, the Greek shipping magnate, needed a quickie divorce to marry Charlotte Ford, it was obtained in Juarez. When Ingrid Bergman, pregnant with child by Italian director Roberto Rossellini, required instant freedom from husband Dr. Peter Lindstrom, the necessary legal work was performed by veteran Juarez lawyer Javier Alvarez. He could have earned a small fortune by tipping off the American newspapers but didn't. When producer Carlo Ponti needed a fast wife shedding to marry Sophia Loren, the shedding was done in Juarez. When a frightened, trembling Marilyn Monroe decided to drop playwright Arthur Miller, the divorce locale she chose was Juarez.

The list of the famous, infamous and not so famous who've taken advantage of the Juarez instant divorce setup is as long as your arm: Abbe Lane, Betty Hutton, Merle Oberon, Virginia Gilmore, Debra Paget, Elizabeth Taylor, Janet Leigh, a Roosevelt, a Rockefeller, a DuPont, Ethel Merman, Jayne Mansfield, Rhonda Fleming. These are just a few who come quickly to mind, not to mention the flocks of writers, directors, executives and politicians.

Week after week, Saturdays included, the Juarez divorce mill grinds merrily away while divorcees-to-be make one brief appearance with their lawyers in front of one of three judges—Lorenzo Holguín Cisneros, Jesus Manuel Erives Garcia or Florencio Torres Zubia—in the civil court of Juarez.

MONEY-HUNGRY LAWYERS

Approximately 20,000 divorces are obtained in Juarez each year, with 50 to 60 local lawyers handling the bulk of the business. Members of the Juarez Bar Association who I interviewed estimate the gross divorce business involving Americans to range between $5 million and $10 million annually. Many of these lawyers insist, however, that they clear no more than $50 to $60 per divorce.

"We have to pay approximately $110 in court costs," explains Javier Alvarez. "We have office overhead to look after. It is not the profitable business one would imagine. As a matter of fact, I no longer handle divorces. I turn them over to the younger members of my firm."

One of these admitted, however, that ever since the case of Rosenstiel versus Rosenstiel in 1965, upholding the validity of Mexican divorces in New York state, "Business here has been booming.

"You must understand, of course," he quickly explained, "that every case is judged on its merits. A film star who is sent to us by a prominent Los Angeles attorney who demands red-carpet treatment for his client naturally is charged somewhat more than the housewife who comes in off the street."

Some use the divorce mill as a publicity circus. When Zsa Zsa Gabor (right) and her sister Eva arrived in Juarez last year for Zsa Zsa's divorce from husband number four, Herbert Hutner, they were gay and bouncy and most cooperative with reporters and fans.

Fernando Romero Figueroa, another Juarez legal light, told me, "There are some American lawyers who don't know the ropes down here. Frequently they cost their clients unnecessary expense by using middlemen who aren't lawyers.

"We have about ten such operators down here. These middlemen have all been cited for trying to practice law without a license. These fellows have contacts with American lawyers. They tell these lawyers, 'You want a Mexican divorce? Just get in touch with us. We'll handle it for a minimal fee.'

"What these fellows do," says Figueroa, "is meet clients at the airport in El Paso. They act like lawyers, talk like lawyers, but they're nothing more than greeters or chauffeurs or guides.

"The clients don't know this. Most of the American women who come to Juarez hardly understand ten words of Spanish. They don't know what's going on. All they know is that they want a quick divorce. Lots of times they go to court with two men. They don't know which one is the lawyer. On occasion they even pay the middleman, who then splits his fee or pays the lawyer a specified sum agreed to beforehand. It's a racket we're trying to stamp out."

One middleman who handles many of the Hollywood stars who come to Juarez for their divorces confided, "A lot of our Juarez divorce lawyers are money hungry. They'd stab their own mothers for a buck. They just don't want to share the wealth. The want every last dollar for themselves.

"It's worth something to someone like Janet Leigh to have me meet her at the plane, drive her to a hotel, where I've already secured the best accommodations, drive her across the border to a reputable lawyer who's had all the necessary papers drawn up. If she wants, I even help her avoid the press. I shepherd her all through Juarez. I translate for her. I make it easy and pleasant. No sweat. I get her back on the plane. It's better than coming into a strange country, not knowing where to go, what to do.

"The lawyers in Juarez are worried," the middleman continued, "because most of their business comes from New York, and New York for the first time in 180 years has finally liberalized its divorce laws."

THE NEVADA VIEWPOINT

Nevada lawyers are also anxious to skim the divorce cream now rising to the top in Mexico. The Nevada State Bar Association recently pointed out that its state, which led the nation more than 30 years ago in enacting quickie divorce legislation requiring only six weeks residence, may discard residence requirements entirely to compete with Mexico's snap divorce laws.

Divorces in Nevada have slumped to less than 10,000 per year, half the peak of two years ago. Nevada weddings now outnumber divorces five to one, and many marrying justices of the peace in Las Vegas earn ten to 20 times what the lawyers earn. No one needs a lawyer to get married.

In a recent poll two-thirds of 271 attorneys responding to a Nevada Bar Association query said they favored granting uncontested divorces after one day's residence, provided both parties, the plaintiff and defendant, hired individual lawyers. Contested divorces would not be affected. Such a move, they suggested, "would boom the divorce business in Nevada and add to the income of the legal profession."

In Clark County, home of Las Vegas, largest city in the state, 5438 divorce cases were filed in 1965. At the minimum fee of $250 this adds up to a gross of $1,359,500 for the attorneys handling the divorces. Since many lawyers charge more than $250, the annual take is about $2 million. But the attorneys are not the only beneficiaries of the six weeks' residence requirement. Hotels, restaurants, beauty shops, motels, gambling casinos, all share in the bounty. And it is the owners of these various enterprises who do not want the current residence requirement for divorce in Nevada shortened.

Nevada drew widespread criticism when it enacted its liberal divorce laws in the 1930's as part of an antidepression package, which at the time also included legalized gambling. But as the years rolled by, many of the nation's most prominent celebrities journeyed to Reno to end their marriages, and for awhile Reno was called "the divorce capital of the world." But no more.

Today Juarez has won that title hands down. Several farsighted Nevadans claim the Mexican city can keep it. "There is no point in further easing our divorce code," one Las Vegas attorney declared. "It would just serve to make worse Nevada's image, which is bad enough as is."

One Hollywood actress who went through the Juarez divorce mill only a few weeks ago described the experience as "a breeze."

"My Los Angeles attorney," she explained, "arranged the whole thing, and there was nothing to it. I caught an early morning plane to El Paso. A delightful little Mexican gentleman met the plane. He drove me to an excellent hotel in Juarez, the Camino Real, something like that, and I washed up. Then we went to see the lawyer in Juarez. He had me sign some papers.

"From there the three of us drove to the Juarez City Hall, I guess that's what they call it. And I signed my name in a book of registry. That's to show that I'm a resident. Then my lawyer took me before the judge. My husband's lawyer was also there. You need two separate lawyers for one of these divorces. Everyone wants a slice of the pie. My lawyer said a few words, in Spanish of course, about incompatibility. The judge was most pleasant, nodded, said a few words. Then my lawyer told me the divorce had been granted, that the notice would be published in the Official Periodical of the State, that the papers would have to go through the local consulate and that I'd have them in about two weeks.

"I caught the evening plane back to Los Angeles," the actress reported. "There was no publicity, no trauma, no recrimination. It was just about as easy as getting married."

Many Hollywood actresses are not particularly interested in unpublicized divorces. When they file for divorce in Juarez, they see to it that somehow the press has been notified (usually by the actress' press agent) beforehand.

Last March when Zsa Zsa Gabor arrived at El Paso International Airport accompanied by her sister Eva, reporters, photographers, movie fans, curiosity seekers were all on hand to greet her. "I see, dollinks," the irrepressible Zsa Zsa greeted them, "that you are having one of your sandstorms." She waved to the fans, shook hands with surprised servicemen, posed for the photographers, signed autographs, told reporters that she "loffed being in Texas," was going to spend the night in the Hilton Inn—"My first husband, you know, Connie Hilton, built his first hotel in this loffley city of El Paso"—would go to Juarez in the morning to divorce her fourth husband, Herbert Hutner.

Another film star who uses her Juarez divorces for publicity purposes is buxom Jayne Mansfield. When she divorced Mickey Hargitay in 1963, she was accompanied by her press agent, then her lover, a Brazilian-born entertainer named Nelson Sardelli, and a mob of TV cameramen, reporters and spectators, who followed her into the Juarez Municipal Palace and courtroom, where she proudly spoke Spanish and proudly displayed her 40-inch chest endowment.

After the divorce was granted, Jayne and her claque returned to her lawyer's office, where everyone toasted the occasion with brandy. Jayne's farewell to her attorneys, Javier Alvarez and Arturo Gomez Trevino, was, "See you in ten years." Jayne plans to return to Juarez later this year for another divorce, which undoubtedly will turn into another publicity circus.

Generally show business personalities who fly into El Paso and then cross the river into Juarez decide ahead of time whether they want the rah-rah or the hush-hush treatment. The conflict occurs, of course, when they want one kind of treatment and get the other. Marilyn Monroe, when she was divorcing Arthur Miller, expected that she could sneak into Juarez, disguised in dark glasses, an ill-fitting dress, no makeup. When she arrived at the U.S.-Mexican border, dozens of TV cameramen, reporters, newsreel photographers moved in on her. "Please," she mumbled. "No pictures, no photos, no comment." The photographers got their pictures.

Debra Paget, a starlet in the late 1950's, managed to avoid newsmen on her way into Juarez, but they caught up with her at the El Paso airport on her way out. The diminutive redhead raced into the women's restroom and stayed there with her mother until flight time. Then, protected by a flying wedge of friends and airport employees, she made a dash for the aircraft. When she reached the plane, a photographer standing in the entrance clicked away.

Singer Abbe Lane ended her 11-year-old marriage to Xavier Cugat in Juarez in '64.

Buxom actress Jayne Mansfield uses her Juarez divorces for publicity purposes.

If the U.S. had one national divorce law — a constitutional amendment would make this possible — there would be no need for Americans to use the Juarez divorce mill. Chances for the introduction and subsequent passage of such an amendment are slim indeed. Zealous protectors of states' rights and interested attorneys seem to prefer the crazy quilt of state divorce laws now in existence.

That the quilt is crazy, no one denies. For example, attempted murder of a husband by a wife, or vice versa, is a ground for divorce in only three states. Homosexuality is a ground in only two states. Habitual drunkenness is a divorce ground in 42 states, but drug addiction is good only in 11.

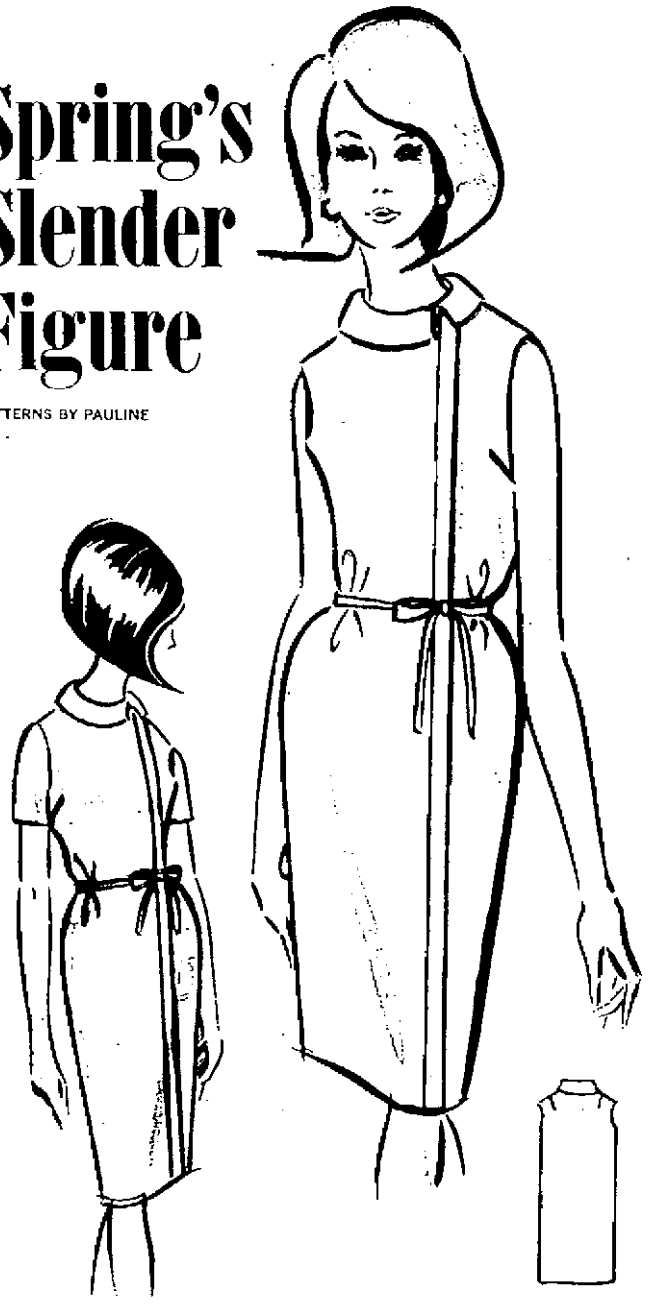

Nevada requires six weeks of residency before permitting a divorce suit to be filed in its state courts. Massachusetts requires five years for those who were not residents at the time of their marriage.

Divorce in the U.S. is a legal farce, with lawyers and their clients creating legal fictions, phony evidence and generally bringing the law into contempt. Most of the divorces in the U.S. (about 60 percent) are granted on the ground of cruelty, which can mean almost anything. Second most popular ground (28 percent) is desertion, which also can be fancifully interpreted. Hardly anyone—lawyer, client or witness—tells the truth in a U.S. divorce.

So long as this situation exists, Juarez and its almost instant divorce setup will thrive. When people are compelled to lie, they prefer to get it over with quickly.

HEY, kid, GET off my BACK!

• Speedy is in his 80's, weighs 350 pounds and never complains, but that doesn't mean he has nothing to complain about. At his age he figures he is entitled to a little respect and some peace and quiet, but he has a problem with a neighborhood kid. It seems no matter what Speedy does, this kid is always on Speedy's back.

Because Speedy is a tortoise, he has a stronger back than most octogenarians, but they never told him he had to provide taxi service for the residents when he came to live at the Welsh Mountain Zoo. That's what it amounts to, though.

Everybody but the monkey is on his back. Most of them hop on and off, but there's this new kid on the block, an honest-to-goodness, bona-fide, certified kid, four legs, long ears, two horns. He's only 6 weeks old, so maybe he doesn't know any better. Anyway, once he gets on Speedy's back, he won't get off. Somebody ought to tell him. Kids are supposed to have some respect for their elders.

"ONE A PENNY, TWO A PENNY..."

HOT CROSS BREAD

BY BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Ring a change this year, and serve Hot Cross Bread instead of hot cross buns. The bread is easier and quicker because it takes a lot less time to shape a single loaf than a dozen buns—and it has novelty appeal. Serve it traditionally on Good Friday, and give it a repeat performance for Easter Sunday brunch. It's a great companion for big cups of steaming hot coffee when weather's nippy.

HOT CROSS BREAD

1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water (105°-115°)
½ cup soft-type margarine
⅓ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup milk
3 to 3¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour, divided
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup raisins
¼ cup chopped mixed candied fruits

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Blend margarine, sugar, eggs and salt. Add milk. Sift 1½ cups flour with cinnamon, add and beat until smooth. Stir in dissolved yeast. Add raisins and candied fruits. Blend in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or cloth. Knead until smooth and elastic, about eight minutes. Form into ball and place in bowl coated with margarine. Turn dough to coat top with margarine. Cover and let rise in a warm place (80 to 85 degrees) until double in bulk (about one and a half to two hours). Punch down and form into smooth oval. Place in greased 9-x-5-x-3-inch loaf pan and press dough into corners of pan. Use scissors to cut bread through center lengthwise. Make six crosswise cuts. Let rise until double in bulk, about 45 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Cover with foil and bake 15 minutes longer. Cool. Make crosses on each section of the bread with frosting. To serve, pull sections apart.

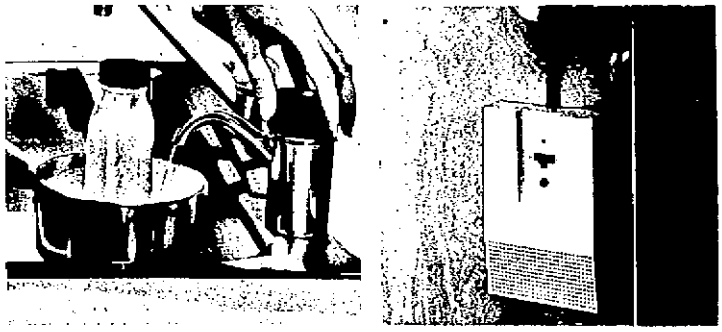

FROSTING: Blend ½ cup confectioners' sugar, 1 tablespoon soft-type margarine, 1 teaspoon milk and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Force through pastry tube with plain tip or wax paper cone.

Top tax collector and his exemptions: Sheldon Cohen, 39, and wife, Fay, pose with Melinda, 10; Sharon, 3; Laura Eve, 7; Jonathan Adam, 5.

Nice guy in a nasty job

by JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The nation's most scorned, scolded, hated and harassed official is a boyish, crewcut young man with an easy smile —a most unlikely public villain. Yet he is a defendant in more lawsuits than any other American, he has been rebuked repeatedly by congressional committees, he is a favorite whipping boy of the press. His name: Sheldon Stanley Cohen, who, as Internal Revenue Commissioner, is charged with enforcing the tax laws.

With the approach of tax time, he can expect to hit new peaks of unpopularity. Tax-tormented citizens, he has found, simply refuse to love Revenue men. Asked how he liked his work, Cohen told his erstwhile law partner, Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas, unhappily, "It's like walking across a room covered with eggshells with two or three hidden landmines underneath."

Cohen has cause to complain. He took over the Internal Revenue Service in January 1965, just before the day of reckoning for millions of taxpayers whose withholding had been reduced more than Congress had cut their tax bills. Result: They had to cough up $2 billion in unwithheld taxes. Outraged, they tended to blame Cohen.

This was also the eve of the Senate investigation into wiretapping. The persistent probing of Sen. Edward Long (D., Mo.) produced a number of eavesdropping scandals inside Internal Revenue. Though they had occurred before Cohen's term, he became the scapegoat. A libertarian who had contributed faithfully to the American Civil Liberties Union, he was portrayed as a tax chief who used police-state methods.

"BANE" OF THE OUTDOORSMEN

He is also a conservationist who loves to take his children on outdoor trips. Yet because he decreed that the conservationist Sierra Club had been violating its tax-exempt status, he was accused in full-page newspaper ads of opposing the club's campaign to prevent the Grand Canyon from being partly flooded by dams. "It's a good cause," he agreed. "I wouldn't mind sending them $10 myself." But the law, he contended, doesn't excuse good causes. The attacks on him were merely stepped up.

He also came under fire from right-wing outfits for taking away their tax privileges. They had been getting away with the claim that their extremist propaganda was a "public service," until he blew the whistle. Result: He is now pilloried in the right-wing press.

Public ire against tax loopholes, through which the special-interest and pressure groups escape paying their fair share of taxes, also is directed largely at Cohen. Yet he merely administers the tax laws; Congress dynamited the holes in them. Cohen himself is an average, middle-income, pay-through-the-nose taxpayer, who grumps as loud as anyone against special tax privileges.

Taking tender count of his bruises, he commented: "If you had told me two years ago that I'd have to take all this, I don't think I'd be here." At first, he took the attacks personally. But he breasted them one at a time, until he became accustomed to them. "It was like lifting a calf every day," he said, "until suddenly I realized I was carrying a cow." Now he is philosophical. "After awhile," he said, "I began to understand that the critics were aiming at the institution, not the individual."

When President Johnson recently invited Cohen to unburden himself and discuss his problems, the harried tax chief merely replied, "When I think of all the things that could have gone wrong and didn't, my problems seem small."

Cohen heads an organization of 65,000 employees — including 600 attorneys and 15,000 accountants — in 900 local offices scattered throughout 58 districts. With the help of computers, they process 104 million annual returns, filed by 68 million individual taxpayers. They have trouble with remarkably few. (Only 1000 civil cases, 1200 criminal cases are tried each year.) Recalling the late Sir Winston Churchill's comment on democracy, Cohen paraphrased: "Our tax system is the worst in the world, except for all the others."

A FAMILY MAN

He cites a study showing that the dishonesty rate among his tax agents, despite frequent temptations, is only one-fourth that of private, bonded employees. He also likes to boast that it costs Internal Revenue only half a cent for every $1 collected in taxes.

At 39, Sheldon Cohen is the youngest Revenue chief of this century. He also reached high office without the advantages of a Kennedy-style birthright. Son of a butter-and-eggs wholesaler, Cohen was raised in Washington. He joined the Navy at 17, got stuck as a record keeper at a Navy separation center. This introduction to bookkeeping persuaded him to take up accounting at George Washington University on the GI Bill.

After graduating in 1950 as an accountant, he won a scholarship to George Washington Law School. He whizzed through a three-year course in two years with a straight "A" average. He likes to joke that his wife put him through law school, and it's not entirely a joke. He worked as a $25-a-week, part-time accountant; she as a $40-a-week secretary.

Cohen is so much a family man that he remembers not only his marriage date (Feb. 21, 1951) but even the date he met his wife (Oct. 29, 1949). It was a blind date; nine months later he was engaged to Fay Fram of Baltimore. He is deeply devoted to his wife and their four children—Melinda, 10; Laura Eve, 7; Jonathan Adam, 5, and Sharon Ruvena, 3. The grade-school drawings of the older children adorn his office. He also manages to spend most Sunday afternoons with the children touring the zoo, inspecting some national shrine or taking rides at kiddieland.

The 6-foot Cohen, slim and trim in his Ivy League clothes, looks like the young college professor he once wanted to be. Instead, he joined the I.R.S. as an attorney, stayed four years, until he was lured away by the prominent Arnold, Fortas and Porter law firm. He became one of the bright young men in the firm's tax division, was offered a partnership at age 36.

He was at the point of embarking upon a lucrative practice when President Johnson asked him in 1963 to become chief counsel at Internal Revenue. Though reluctant to give up a promising income, Cohen told the President, "If I don't take this job, I can never criticize another government official. That's a luxury I can't afford to give up."

He was promoted to commissioner by phone. "Sheldon," drawled the Texan on the other end, "I'm gonna appoint you commissioner." Cohen wasn't so much as asked whether he wanted the job. "If you want me to," he replied, "I'll take it."

He had scarcely been sworn in before Senator Long, the antiwiretap crusader, told him, "You've got problems." This was the beginning of Cohen's troubles on Capitol Hill. But as I.R.S.'s only political appointee, he told subordinates, "My neck is available to be chopped off. That's what I'm here for."

Later, after enduring what Long called the "searing light" of Senate inquiry, Cohen paused for a haircut. He picked up a copy of Playboy magazine, turned to an article by Long about eavesdropping. "What do you think of him?" asked the barber, glimpsing over Cohen's shoulder at Long's picture.

"That S.O.B.!" blurted the tax chief.

No sooner did Cohen get back into his office than he received a phone call from the senator. "When a man calls me an S.O.B.," said the critic of eavesdropping, "I like to see his face to see if he's smiling."

The incident was forgotten, and Long now speaks highly of Cohen. "He's very able," the senator told PARADE. "He's trying to clean things up at Internal Revenue. Unfortunately, there's a hard core of midlevel employees obstructing his efforts."

JUST ANOTHER TAXPAYER

The Revenue chief, who gets his tax returns in early, may have to borrow to pay his own taxes the way his reserves are dwindling. Though he lives frugally, he bought a house in anticipation of a tax lawyer's income and has been falling slowly behind on his $28,500 government salary. High living certainly is not his problem. He shuns the Washington cocktail circuit, neither smokes nor drinks.

His position entitles him to a limousine and chauffeur, but he drives to work in his 1963 Plymouth station wagon. He figures someday he'll have to live without such a luxury, and he doesn't want to get spoiled. Eventually, he knows, he'll be just another taxpayer again — probably complaining about high taxes.

You can make her smile.

This sad little girl may have problems too big for her. Perhaps she is left alone for hours in a broken home. Or worrying about a sick mother. Or concerned about a father in uniform, far away.

Whatever the cause of her unhappiness, the good people of her community can provide answers through voluntary health and welfare agencies supported through their United Fund or Community Chest.

You give hope and reassurance to less fortunate people of all ages when you contribute your fair share to your local United Way campaign. It is a very personal kind of help, because your agencies have the same special feeling for the community as yourself.

Yes, you bring smiles to many faces when you pledge your once-a-year gift the United Way. And make your community better for all families, including your own.

Your fair-share gift works many wonders

MY FAVORITE JOKES

BY BENI MASON

EDITOR'S NOTE: Beni Mason, 32, born in Tarrytown, N.Y., used to have his own club in San Diego, gave it up to work as a standup comic at top nite spots throughout the country. Currently showcased at the Metropole in Palm Springs, Mason is booked into the Tropicana in Las Vegas, will spend the rest of the year on the road. Fans who've caught his act at the Casino Royal in Washington, D.C., the Bon Soir in New York, Marino's in Portland, Ore., say that in addition to an excellent sense of timing and fresh material, Beni also has a fine singing voice. Mason would like to give up comedy and become a serious actor, but his wife, Sally, insists, "We have to eat." Herewith some of the jokes Mason recently came up with at the Metropole:

I heard two women talking the other day on the main drag in Palm Springs. One turned to the other and said confidentially, "I'm going to have an affair."

"Really?" said her friend. "Who's catering it?"

A Houston millionaire, oil of course, owns six Rolls-Royces. A reporter who called on him for an interview, inspected the estate, observed that there were only five Rolls-Royces in the garage. "What happened to the sixth?" he asked.

"Oh, that," said the oil magnate. "Every 1000 miles we send it to London for a grease job."

Medicare is a wonderful thing. I know an old lady who went to the hospital and thanks to Medicare she got a semiprivate room—two in a bed.

An Englishman and an Italian were on a liferaft. A periscope rises out of the water. The Englishman says, "Look here, old chap. Is that a U-boat?"

The Italian looks carefully, answers, "No, that's a not my boat."

Two fellows meet on the street. One says to the other, "Say, I haven't seen you for five years. What have you been doing?"

The other says softly, "Five years."

My wife is one of the world's greatest cooks, only woman I know who can fry jello.

A Fuller Brush salesman I know just bought a $350,000 house in Miami. When I asked him how he could earn so much money selling brushes door to door, he quickly explained, "Easy. Everytime a housewife, no matter what her age, answered the door, I would say, 'Miss, is your mother in?' "

ANECDOTE OF THE WEEK

The American Psychological Society recently came up with some remarkable research especially in the esoteric field of commonsense. The society reports: "Extensive research has shown that, on balance, women who are by nature cooperative and easy-going, tend to be the most likely to produce children in rather greater numbers."

Now, who would have thought that?

COMPUTER DATING. History has long held, and literature has long sought to prove, that women are more romantic than men, more susceptible to love at first sight. Not true.

Data from computer-matched couples indicates that men are far more romantic than women. Five hundred college students were paired off at a school dance on the basis of qualities they most hoped for in a dating partner. In every case women were more exacting in their requirements, seemed always to have marriage consciously or subconsciously in mind.

For example, 24.1% of women as opposed to 13.9% of men said it was absolutely necessary that their date be of the same religion; 55.5% said that it was important for their date to be a good dancer; 86.3% desired that he be above-average in scholastic ability; 73.8% wanted him to be stylishly dressed. The only factor rated higher by men was physical attractiveness. So long as a girl was good-looking, the men were satisfied. But the women had higher demands, expectations and requirements. The qualities they sought were more in keeping with mate selection, social approval and potential marriage. The computer data also revealed that men were more generous in their appraisal of their dates and less critical than the girls. On the basis of their first date, the men were more romantically attracted to their partners than vice versa.

In short, practically all girls, whether they admit it or not, are husband hunting every time they go out.

NEGATIVE INCOME TAX. President Johnson and his economists are investigating the "negative income tax" proposed by a number of leading economists, among them Milton Friedman, one of Goldwater's former advisers and president this year of the American Economic Association.

The proposal assumes that a family with three children needs at least $3000 annually to survive in the U.S. Those earning less than $3000 should receive a payment from the federal government, "a negative tax." This would help replace the crazy-quilt pattern of relief and welfare payments to the poverty-stricken now in disarrayed existence in this country. The proposal is sure to generate heated debate in Congress and elsewhere, but certainly it will make news in months to come.

HYPERTENSION. A survey of the country's civilian population by the U.S. Public Health Service reveals that approximately one in four adults in the U.S. has definite hypertension or hypertensive heart disease, and another one in five has a borderline case of one disease or the other. Hypertension is the most common specific form of cardiovascular disease, according to the survey. It affects 17 million American adults, and another 16 million are suspected of having it: At least 40% of all people 75 or over are hypertensive, that is, suffering with high blood pressure, but physicians have met with great success in treating the disease with drugs and diet.

1966 MODEL: HIROKO

1967 MODEL: ANAK IBRAHIM

NEW MODEL. Every year at the Paris dress collections, Pierre Cardin manages to produce a new, exotic (usually Asian) model, who becomes the darling of the hour. This year the Cardin discovery is Anak Ibrahim, 22, from Singapore, 99 pounds, 5 feet 6, short straight hair, large, sad eyes, daughter of a Singapore physician and his nurse-wife, one of 12 children.

In 1965 Anak modeled her first collection in Singapore, was signed to work in London, where Vidal Sassoon cut her hair. A few months ago she was modeling in Hamburg, when Pierre Cardin spotted her. A friend told her, "Cardin has eyes only for you. Didn't you notice how he was staring at you all during the collection?" Replied Anak, "Sorry, but I couldn't see him. I'm myopic."

Hiroko, the Japanese model who used to be the star of the Cardin collection is pregnant. Mannequin connoisseurs, of which there are many in Paris, say Anak is a more than adequate replacement.

THE PILL. In 1966 approximately 10 million women throughout the world were taking contraceptive pills. Of these, 6 million were American; 1.13 million, European. In the underdeveloped countries with alarmingly high birth rates, use of the pill was much more limited: 1,850,000 women in South America, 950,000 in Asia and the Near East, only 100,000 in Africa. The International Planned Parenthood Federation predicts that by 1980 at least 80 million women will be using oral contraceptives.

GUN ACCIDENTS. Firearms are easily obtainable in the U.S. One reason is that Americans like to hunt. In 1964, for example, hunting licenses were issued to 19 million people. Almost half the firearms accidents in this country, however, occur around the home, claiming about 2200 lives.

A recent survey discloses that teenage males from 15 to 19 comprise the group most frequently implicated in the fatalities. They represent less than 5% of the population but account for about 16% of the mortalities resulting from unintentional discharge of guns and rifles.

YOUTH MARKET. The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce recently made public a 64-page study, "The Dynamics of the Youth Explosion," which sales managers, educators and demographers are studying with great interest.

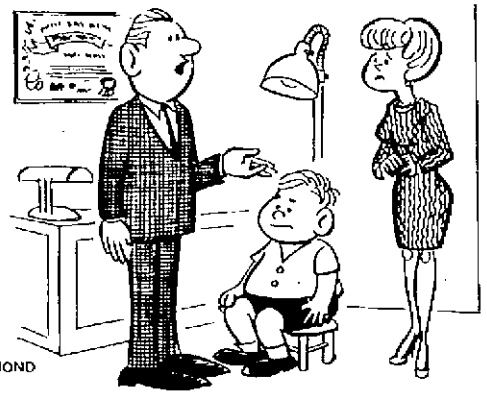

The survey reveals that between now and 1970, only three years away, the number of Americans born since 1945 will total at least half the nation. More than 90 million Americans are currently under the age of 25. By 1980 there will be 6.6 million young adults in California, a gain of 90% compared with 59% of the nation as a whole. The youth in the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area are "trend setters" in what the under-25 generation wants and copies in the way of fads, styles, trends.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce is selling copies of the survey for $7.50.

How to enjoy regularity even during the middle and later years of your life

True Facts About Irregularity

Question: Do I face any special constipation difficulties as I grow older?

Answer: As you enter your middle years, you may find that you are more and more troubled by irregularity.

Question: What can cause this "middle age" irregularity?

Answer: Constipation often results from a lack of enough moisture in the food waste which slows up elimination.

Question: Can I help overcome this problem?

Answer: The fact is, your daily intake of food may lack enough of a gentle laxative ingredient that is known as hydrogel. The addition of an adequate amount of hydrogel to your diet could bring really effective relief from constipation.

Question: How can I get enough hydrogel?

Answer: You could eat more fruits and vegetables . . . probably a great deal more than you do. Or, you can take a hydrogel concentrate like Serutan.

Question: Why should I take Serutan?

Answer: The hydrogel substance found in Serutan holds up to 20 times its volume in water. It is this lack of moisture that may be causing your irregularity.

Question: How does Serutan work?

Answer: Entirely differently from pills, oils or harsh chemical laxatives. Taken daily, gentle Serutan simply provides the hydrogel help you need to get you regular and keep you regular. You must be satisfied or your money back from Serutan. Try Serutan today.
